HEAVY CASUALTIES IN BITTER FIGHTING

Plane Shot Down First in History During Nocturnal Fight; Loyalists Rout Enemy Bombers.

MADRID, July 26.—(AP)—A withering barrage of Insurgent artillery fire drove government troops from protecting woods and into retreat today in the continuing battle of Brunete, Spain's "Chateau-Thierry."

There were heavy casualties in bitter fighting for the woods on the north of Brunete, but the intense bombardment of their trenches finally forced the government battalions to retire.

Elsewhere, the government machine held grimly to its positions along the 30-mile front west of Madrid in determined effort to stem the Insurgent offensive.

The Madrid militia had to submit to several hours of artillery bombardment of new positions around Villanueva de la Canada and Quijorna.

Insurgents Driven Back.

Insurgent infantry charged repeatedly to the north of Villanueva behind protecting tanks during the morning and afternoon, but each time the Madrid troops drove them back with grenades and machine guns.

Government artillery roared the day long in bombardment of Brunete itself, lost to the Insurgents on Saturday.

The result of the battle on this western front may determine the outcome of the war. Certainly, if the Insurgent offensive pushes beyond the present government front, the road to Madrid may be opened—just as a successful push past Chateau-Thierry might have opened the path to Paris for Germany in the World War.

100,000 Men Each.

The fighting has been severest of the war, in its second year, each side has an army of 100,000.

The government has its international brigade, including an American battalion, and its army of peasants and white-collar workers turned into an efficient fighting unit after a year of rigid training. The Insurgents have their foreign legionnaires, Moorish troops from Morocco, and foreign volunteers, including Germans and Italians.

The government places Insurgent casualties for the last six days of the offensive at 25,000 men. The Madrid army also has suffered heavy casualties, but its commanders contend that victory

7 Are Adrift on Barge In Gale on Lake Huron

CHICAGO, July 26.—(UP)—The Wilmette coast guard today announced receipt of a radio message from the Canadian steamer Harrison reporting seven men adrift on a barge in a gale on Lake Huron.

The message said the Harrison was standing by the barge.

The Harrison's brief message said the barge apparently had broken loose from a tug boat.

The United States coast guard's cutter Cardigan was sent from Alpena, Mich., to aid in a rescue attempt.

Captain Crossley McQuinn, of the Steamer T. W. Robinson, radioed the Chicago coast guard station he was standing by the troubled craft.

The Chicago station also received reports that 40-foot boats had put out from coast guard stations at Tawas bay and Harbor beach to aid in the rescue.

Olympic Hurdle Star Takes Marital Vows

Forrest (Spec) Towns, University of Georgia boy who was Olympic champion in the high hurdles and who is rated the best hurdler in the world, yesterday was married to Miss Martha Eberhardt, of Carlton, Ga., also a student at the university. They were married on the athletic field. Towns and his bride are pictured above after the ceremony, with the Rev. J. P. Rodgers, of West Palm Beach, who officiated.

Towns, Carlton Girl Marry On Site of Track Triumphs

Old Friend Comes From Palm Beach To Conduct Beautiful Rites.

By RALPH McGILL.

ATHENS, Ga., July 26.—They stood on the cinders of the running track at the University of Georgia to be married—

Forrest Towns and Martha Eberhardt.

The minister was an old friend, J. P. Rodgers, come from West Palm Beach to marry them. He made of the ceremony one that was beautiful in its simplicity and dignity. There was nothing incongruous in the setting. It seemed very natural seeing them there—a Georgia boy and a Georgia girl becoming man and wife on the athletic field of their school.

Sunshine and a Breeze.

Somehow there was about it more real dignity and solemnity than is to be found in buildings banked with flowers and filled with the thin music of violins or the deep tones of the pipe organ. There was sunshine and a small breeze blowing. Far away children could be heard shouting at play. But at the wedding was a very great quietness. There was a very real feeling that He whose blessings were invoked on the wedding was giving to it His blessing.

Forrest (Spec) Towns is the greatest hurdler in the world. He

Toll Is Mounting Hourly as Reports Trickle in Over Crippled Wires.

MEXICO CITY, July 26.—(AP)—Bodies of 30 persons had been taken tonight from the ruins in Vera Cruz and Puebla states where a heavy earthquake last night plunged cities into darkness.

The death toll rose hourly as reports seeped in through damaged communications systems.

A special train, carrying doctors and nurses left the city of Orizaba for the tiny railroad station town of Maltrata, 13 miles away, which appeared hardest hit.

Village in Shambles.

Half the buildings in the town of 8,000 crashed to the ground. Sixteen dead and 70-odd injured, 17 seriously, were extricated from the wreckage with many still missing.

RANKIN CHARGES PLOT TO DESTROY DIXIE INDUSTRIES

CITES HOME TOWN AS ILLUSTRATION

Mississippi Representative Declares CIO Agitators Have Ruthlessly Ruined Mills in Tupelo.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—Representative Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, accused the Labor Relations Board today of "conspiring with Communistic influences to destroy southern industries."

He added, in a formal statement, he expects to ask the administration to remove the present members of the board or curtail their activities.

Rankin, co-author of the TVA act, and one of the leading proponents of the administration's power policies, was the second member of congress to criticize the board within the last week.

Senator Nye, Republican, Indiana, issued a statement last Thursday saying the board "has such a pronounced CIO bias that the average man regards it as an adjunct."

Cites Tupelo Activities.

Rankin spoke specifically of the activity of the board's representatives in Tupelo, Miss., his home.

"The ruthless manner in which they (board agents) helped to destroy and forced the liquidation of the cotton mill in Tupelo, throwing all the employes out of work, and the brutal manner in which they are now trying to destroy the garment factories in that city, is enough to stir the people of my state to revolt," his statement said.

Rankin said that the Tupelo Cotton Mill had not paid a dividend in 18 years before "agitators" started a sit-down strike recently. The management consented to an election, he said, and the strikers won. The mill, he said, then went into bankruptcy and notified the strikers it would close.

Start Sit-down Strike.

Rankin mentioned three garment mills, the Tupelo Garment Company, Reed Brothers and Milan & Company. None of these companies had any labor trouble

1 KILLED, 80 HURT IN 3 STEEL RIOTS

Clubs, Rocks Wielded as Pickets Clash With Workers at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, July 26.—(AP)—Another steel strike battle marked the hour for the change of shifts tonight at the Corrigan-McKinney plant of the Republic Steel Corporation, where two previous major clashes today resulted in one death and at least 50 injuries.

About 400 men rushed from the plant shortly after 11 p. m. and engaged crowds of strikers in battle.

Clubs and rocks were wielded on all sides. The workers went back into the plant.

After the clash died down 30 men were taken to a nearby hospital. Assistant Safety Director K. H. Chamberlin estimated at least 75 autos were damaged.

The pickets were trying to keep workers from entering the Republic plant, which reopened under national guard surveillance July 6 after more than a month of inactivity brought by the CIO-called strike to obtain signed bargaining agreements with Republic and three other steel companies.

At the afternoon change of shifts, strikers threw rocks at some workers and ran after others as they left street cars.

A motor car ran down John Orecny, identified by police as a striker, battering his head fatally.

Sergeant Cornelius Sullivan said Fritz Swanson, 48, was detained as driver of the car which struck Orecny. Patrolman Prusnick said he was told Orecny hurled a stone

Principals of Hapeville Council Fisticuffs in Court

SENATE TO LAUNCH PAY-HOUR DEBATES

Judiciary Committee To Get Court Bill Today; Adjournment Fever High

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—"Adjournment fever" gripped congress tonight and the senate labored past its dinner-time to clear its calendar so it can begin the struggle over the Black-Connery wage and hour bill tomorrow.

Senator Black, Democrat, Alabama, plans to begin the discussion of his measure, which would authorize a board to fix minimum wages and maximum hours for large segments of industry.

Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, majority leader, declared the long sitting today was an evidence of the willingness of the senate to stick to its task and get the session finished.

Administration leaders arranged an immedate series of conferences tonight to determine how much of the Roosevelt legislative program must be jettisoned to meet a growing demand for congressional adjournment.

Barkley Promises Decision.

Just back from a week-end cruise with the President, Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, the Democratic floor leader, publicly acknowledged the strength of the movement and promised the senate a decision within the next few days.

In the house, Representative Snell, the minority leader, asserted that congress appears "no nearer adjournment than we were three months ago." He added that "it looks as if the Democratic majority was going around in circles."

The senate adjournment move had the backing of the Republicans and a large section of the Conservative Democratic contingent which emerged triumphant in the court bill battle.

Complete Court Draft.

A senate judiciary subcommittee completed today the draft of a bill to reorganize lower court procedure. It is a substitute for the rejected Roosevelt court bill.

The new bill will be considered

Montague Arraigned On Robbery Charge

LOS ANGELES, July 26.—(AP)—The one-time mystery man of golfing, John Montague, was arraigned in municipal court today on charges he participated in a New York roadhouse robbery seven years ago.

The case was continued until August 9 pending Governor Frank Merriam's action on the signing of extradition papers. He has received more than 60 letters opposing extradition.

Montague, whose feats on the links have earned him the title of "the world's best golfer" despite his avoidance of tournament play, is accused of having been a member of a quartet which held up and robbed a Jay, N. Y., roadhouse of $750 in 1930.

Stories Differ As To Fight At Hapeville

Mullins May Face Murder Intent Charges in Attack on Walker.

Demands that Councilman R. L. Mullins, of Hapeville, be bound over to superior court on a charge of assault with intent to murder Councilman W. A. Walker were made last night in Hapeville recorder's court as the aftermath of a fight Saturday night on the lawn of Hapeville's city hall.

Recorder Neal Leach deferred decision pending study of the trial transcript. He dismissed, however, charges of disorderly conduct against F. C. Garrard, mayor pro tem., and Everett Adams and Gregory Mullins, brother of the accused councilman.

Fist Wound Denied.

Testimony that Mullins struck Walker a powerful blow on the cheek, sending the councilman spinning into a fish pond, was offered by more than a dozen witnesses, although the prosecution contended Walker's wound could only have been inflicted with a weapon.

Dr. W. Frank Wells, testifying for the prosecution, asserted the wound on the left side of Walker's face and head could not have been inflicted with bare knuckles.

The defense claimed Walker's injury occurred when he hit his head on the rocks bordering the fish pond. This point was disputed by several prosecution witnesses, they declaring Walker fell on his right side.

Council Meeting Heated.

3 Negro Convicts Flee After 2 Are Wounded at Camp in Wilkes.

WASHINGTON, Ga., July 26.—(AP)—Wounding of two negro convicts and escape of three others from the Wilkes county chain gang today brought immediate attention from a legislative committee studying possible reform of Georgia's prison system.

Chairman J. W. Calloway, of the Wilkes county commission, said one of the pair wounded when they attacked a guard, was near death tonight.

Sturdivant Slayer.

Calloway listed him as Tom Booker, serving life for the killing of Police Chief Henry Sturdivant here, and said he was attempting to contact Booker's relatives in Savannah to notify them of his condition.

Calloway said he had a notice the legislative committee would arrive in Washington tonight to look into the prison camp disturbance.

In Atlanta, immediately upon learning of the report from Wilkes county, Senator Lee S. Purdom, of Blackshear, and Representative E. L. Almand, of Walton county, contacted Police Chief J. B. Orr for available details before launching a formal investigation.

Penitentiary Committeemen.

The two are chairmen of the penitentiary committees of their respective legislative houses, and are leading the survey of prison conditions.

Their departure from Atlanta caused them to miss seeing R. A. Moore, Douglas attorney retained

PEIPING (Tuesday) July 27.—(UP)—American marines were ordered out under arms today to escort American citizens to the embassy for safety, as Japanese and Chinese forces clashed at the gates of the city.

The marines broke out ammunition supplies and formed in squads in front of the marine barracks near the embassy after Japanese troops invaded the southern gate of the walled city, blazing their way through the gate with trench mortars.

The inhabitants of the Chinese quarter were in panic. Lights were ordered extinguished during the night in fear of a Japanese bombing raid, and the outer city was placed under martial law.

At Shainghai, Chinese newspapers reported 200 Japanese soldiers arrived at Chongping, short distance north of Peiping. If the troops occupy the town, they will control all the railways leading into Peiping.

300 JAPANESE TROOPS TRAPPED IN PEIPING

PEIPING, July 26.—(AP)—Three hundred Japanese troops barricaded themselves in an ancient temple and cemetery within Peiping tonight after running a hand grenade barrage at the southwest gate of the city.

They were surrounded by hundreds of Chinese troops and 1,000 Chinese gendarmes, faced with the choice of a desperate fight in the dark or acceptance of a Chinese offer of safe convoy if they would return to their Fengtai base.

Grenades Kill 20.

At least 20 of their number were killed by hand grenades dropped from Peiping's ancient walls as motor lorries rumbled through the southwest gate, Kwanganmen, carrying reinforcements for the Japanese embassy guard to protect Japanese citizens and property in the event the North China conflict develops into declared war.

The clash was the second serious flare-up of hostilities that shattered a week-old truce, more than a hundred Chinese soldiers and civilians having been reported killed in an earlier encounter

Wofford, Returned to Elbert Gang, Leads Break of Five to Freedom

ANDERSON, S. C., July 26.—(AP)—Three men and two women reported late tonight they had been held up by four men in convict suits and robbed of clothing and an automobile several miles south of here.

The men were forced to swap their clothing for that of the fugitives.

Thomas Meryle Wofford, 22, described as "one of Georgia's worst criminals," led a break from the Elbert county chain gang yesterday afternoon, to escape from the same camp twice within five weeks.

Wofford and Winford Sanders, 22, both Fulton county convicts, and three negroes ganged a convict guard, took his gun and escaped to South Carolina in a county truck about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Warden G. C. Crawford said.

Sanders also had escaped from the same camp within the last month, being recaptured in Atlanta two weeks ago.

Wofford was recaptured June 19 in New York by federal agents and was returned to Elbert county Friday to serve the remainder of a 20-year state sentence for robbery before starting a 15-year federal sentence for kidnaping.

Officers described him as one of the worst criminals in the state, while Federal Judge C. B. Kennamer, when he sentenced him in February, declared he was a "menace to organized society."

Warden Crawford said Sanders grabbed Guard Henry Saunders around the neck yesterday as the truck in which they were riding slowed to a stop en route to camp after a day's work on the roads. Wofford seized the guard's pistol and offered freedom to the other 12 convicts on two trucks under Saunders' care.

Winford Sanders, and three negroes, Charlie Sillman, Young Adams and Horton Garret, all serving minor sentences, accepted the offer of freedom but the other eight refused.

Fleeing toward Anderson, S. C., the five escapes, dressed in stripes, stole a citizen's car near Calhoun before the CIO came in, he asserted. Then eight men attempted to start a sit-down strike and were discharged, he said.

Labor Board officials commented that they had issued a complaint against the Tupelo Garment Company and had conducted a hearing July 6 in Tupelo. No decision on the complaint, charging discriminatory discharges, has been made, they added. Spokesmen for the board said it also has received allegations against Reed Brothers, but that it has issued no complaint against that concern.

Issues Ultimatum.

In his statement, Rankin declared he would oppose appropriating another dollar for the board until its representatives cease "their communistic activities." He added he would ask changes in the Wagner labor disputes act unless these activities are halted.

"I cannot withhold my protest until the streets of southern towns and cities are stained with the blood of innocent people as a result of the activities of these irresponsible representatives of the so-called Labor Relations Board," Rankin continued.

"I have affidavits from responsible people in Tupelo to the effect that these representatives of the so-called Labor Relations Board boasted that they were going to close every factory in the city before they quit, and that when they got through with it, there would be no Tupelo left.

"They are flouting the law, stirring up strife, cutting the throat of organized labor, and doing this administration more harm than all other influences combined."

$1-a-Day Worker Dies, Had Been Noted Builder

BLYTHE, Cal., July 26.—(AP) A $1-a-day county welfare worker was revealed in death today as Neal Austin, former prominent architect and graduate of Oxford University in England.

Using the name Samuel Adams here the 87-year-old Austin had chopped cotton and done other field work for $1 a day. He lived chiefly on rice before he became ill and was placed on relief.

His home was a makeshift trailer. He claimed he had no relatives. He spoke with a pronounced accent.

When he died last month, a heavy key-winding gold watch made in Liverpool, England, and inscribed with a British coat of arms was found among his belongings. There was an unsigned will leaving his property to Mary Odom, of Durant, Mississippi.

privately to investigate the death of a prisoner in a solitary confinement cell at Pearson several weeks ago.

The Pearson case is one of several the committeemen said they would look into in their study.

Escapes Cited.

Both of the committeemen declared in previous statements the number of escapes from Georgia chain gangs was one reason prompting their investigation.

Although failing to see the committeemen, Moore conferred with prison commission officials before departing from Atlanta, and declared in a later statement his purpose was to "prosecute persons responsible for the death at Pearson if we can."

The prisoner, listed on records here as Ernest Locklear, was found dead late one afternoon after being confined in a solitary cell.

Jury Verdict.

A coroner's jury declared there was no responsibility on anyone for his death, and doctors testified at the inquest he possibly died from over-exertion in an attempt to free himself from the cell.

Almand condemned the solitary confinement punishment of prisoners following the incident, terming them "sweat boxes."

Moore said Purdom and Almand were scheduled shortly to visit the site of the Pearson camp and investigate the case.

Calloway declared the three convicts who made their escape during the excitement of the shooting were still at large tonight.

Attacked Guard.

He said the two men, whom he listed as Booker and Bubber Jackson, attacked E. B. Flynt, a guard, when they dismounted from a truck transporting the gang to work.

Another guard, Frank Lamar, shot the prisoners, Calloway continued.

Chief Sturdivant, for whose death Booker is serving, was a brother of Former Chief T. O. Sturdivant, of the Atlanta police department. The Washington chief died after being pushed from an automobile while attempting to make an arrest here two years ago.

Both were taken to Grady hospital. Westbrook was hurled 10 feet in the air by the impact but Kinsey was carried with the wreckage.

TAXABLE PROPERTY LEAPS $15,000,000

Largest Increase Since 1928 Reported by Fulton County Receiver.

Largest annual increase in taxable valuations in Fulton county since 1928 was reported yesterday by Tax Receiver Guy A. Moore.

Estimating the increase this year at $15,000,000, Moore said taxable property listed on the tax digest this year would approximate $270,000,000.

"The largest single year's increase was in 1928, when $32,000,000 was added to the 1927 total of $253,000,000," declared Moore.

Every type of taxable property, including real estate, automobiles, personal property, bank accounts, bonds, jewelry and household furniture, is expected to show an increase this year, the tax receiver asserted. Tax officials said the jump in real estate valuations would lead other increases.

Better business conditions generally throughout the county cause the increase this year, it was said.

While Moore estimated the 1937 increase in valuations at $15,000,000, other tax officials in his office guessed it as high as $20,000,000. They have formed a pool for guessing nearest to the actual increase, the three nearest to get a free dinner from the losers.

Moore said the tax digest will be compiled early next month.

is the Olympic high hurdles champion. He holds practically every record in the books for the hurdle race. They have seen him run and win in Norway, Sweden, in Denmark, in France and in England. They have seen him run and win. They like him.

Learned on Track.

When the time came that he and Martha Eberhardt decided they would marry he thought it over, thinking of where they would be married. "I learned something about how to be a man on that running track there at school," he said. "It seemed a good place to be married."

They made a very pretty picture standing there. He is a tall, slim boy. She is a pretty, striking girl of real beauty and charm.

Martha Eberhardt came down the long steps to the field with her sister, Carolyn. She was the bride's only attendant. Behind came Towns and Weems Baskin, his track coach who had taught him to become the greatest hurdler in the world. Behind them came the family. They stood before the steps which the judges use to decide the finish of the runs. They represented there all the American traditions of family, of hard work, of going to church, of integrity and wholesomeness, and of ambition.

Towns from Augusta.

Forrest Towns grew up in Augusta. He went to the public schools there and played in the parks. His people live in Augusta now. They were ambitious for their children. Their father, a skilled craftsman in the railroad shops there, and their mother have followed with especial pride of their son, Forrest. He has had a flair for leadership. He has made his own way. He has made good grades in his classes.

In his running he developed the ability to finish. Others got off to an early start. They led. Yet at the finish he led.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Eberhardt, whose daughter married Towns today, are people who have helped build this state. He is a successful farmer, one of the best-known men in his town of Carlton. Three daughters have gone to the university. Two have graduated and are teachers. They are Carolyn and Hamella.

Bride Is Junior.

Martha Eberhardt Towns will be a junior this fall. Towns returns for some graduate work. He will be graduated on completion of a course at the Reserve Officers' training school at Fort Oglethorpe in August. He passed up that work to go to Berlin last summer and participate in the Olympic games. Otherwise, he would have graduated this past spring. This fall another Eberhardt will enter Georgia. She is Mis Virginia Eberhardt.

The romance of "Spec" Towns and Martha began at a basketball game. They were introduced there. Almost immediately he began to carry her books and to wait for her outside classrooms.

1,000 Persons Attend.

About 1,000 people came to the wedding this afternoon. And the simplicity and dignity of it won them all to the idea of the young people to be married on the athletic field.

There was rice and embraces and tears and laughter as they hurried away.

Tour Director $30 Out of Pocket For Telegrams To Deny Desertion

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, July 26.—Clouds of misunderstanding involving the Georgia Caravans, which caused an international stir here last week, were being dispelled today with the arrival in Mexico City of Clarence Y. Rose, director of the Georgia tourists, who is $30 out of pocket for telegrams to refute dessertion rumors.

Rose and the 228 members of the Caravans came back to Mexico's capital to find themselves in a "hornet's nest" of news stories and radio reports growing out of a minor misunderstanding here last week when the American tourists slept at a Mexican school while Mexican tourist authorities declared they were only supposed to bathe at the institution.

Telegrams Cost $30.

Thirty dollars worth of telegrams were hurriedly scribbled today by Rose to parents of the 228 members of the Georgia Caravans, and to senators and congressmen who, aroused by a report made by a radio "columnists" in the United States, had sent inquiries to Mexico City officials.

An official report of the whole incident was sent to Washington today by American Consul James B. Stewart.

While most of the 228 members of the party are southern students, many of them prominent young Atlantans, the false reports spread in the United States that Director Rose had abandoned the Caravans stirred international interest.

The Caravan returned here today from Acapulco, a Pacific coast town, where four days were spent sightseeing.

Extra Thrill.

Members of the party received an extra thrill Sunday night on this trip when they experienced the earthquake that shook Cuernavaca, which is an hour and a half drive from Mexico City.

Rose, explaining he and assistant directors of the party knew nothing of the furore until they returned here today, said the misunderstanding about use of the Centro Revolution school had probably caused all the trouble.

The ire of General Jose Quevedo, head of the Mexican tourist department, was aroused last week when the southern tourists "moved in the Centro Revolution school bag and baggage" when they were only granted permission to bathe there, it was said. Classes were being conducted at the institution and the "invasion" of American tourists disrupted school.

Director Rose said the Georgia Caravans will return to Laredo, Texas, tomorrow or next day. He declared all members of the party are safe and well, with the exception of one boy who is suffering from a cold.

Minister-Author Seeks Publisher For 'S' Volume

MACON, Ga., July 26.—(AP)—The Rev. J. F. Cargile, 66-year-old Missionary Baptist minister, is looking for somebody to publish his book, a 13,000-word novelette in which every word begins with "s."

He's been working on the book, "The Gladiator's Choice," two years and says he determined to confine himself to "s" words "for reasons of my own." He explained he has had much leisure—too much—since the depression and failure of a bank in which he clerked.

Seemingly simple sentences sometimes surprise students (excuse it, please, but it gets to be a habit) of the book, although Mr. Cargile himself admits reading it "takes some thought."

"But so does Milton's 'Paradise Lost'," he adds.

Sibilant sample:

"Spain's sapphire seas, surging sonorously, scared sickly sojourners. Stephen's 'Sea Ships' sailed swiftly southward. Scattered seaweed (sunstruck) shone serenely. Seagulls swiftly sped, sometimes swooping suddenly, scraping seething sea surfaces, stopping several seconds, seeing something stomach-satisfying."

It's like that all the way through—except the title and chapter heads.

Mr. Cargile is father of Mrs. George W. Fields Jr., of 182 Merritts avenue, N. E., Atlanta; and Miss Gladys Cargile, of 1028 S. W. Ninth street, Miami, Fla. He was born in Albany, Ga.

p. m. Atlanta time) and lasted from 30 seconds to two minutes or more, was fixed at 114 miles southeast of Mexico City by the National Seismic Observatory.

That would place it near Maltrata, 5,550 feet above sea level in the mountainous country around the long dormant peak of the Orizaba volcano.

Many towns and villages were unable to report because of broken telephone and telegraph lines.

In Mexico City there was no damage but the shocks sent hundreds, including many American tourists, running from hotels and movie houses. In other towns and villages throngs ran screaming, weeping and praying into the streets. Many spent the night in the open.

Strange Light Noted.

Jalapa, capital of the state of Vera Cruz, said the palace of the state government and many lesser buildings were damaged.

In near-by Esperanza a family of five was reported killed when the home collapsed.

Esperanza dispatches said "a strange light" played about the peak of the Orizaba volcano at the height of the quake.

The shock was felt in Puebla, Oaxaca, Chiapas, Michoacan and the Mexican Federal District.

STRUCK BY BUCKET, NEGRO WORKER DIES

Clarence McGee Fatally Injured as Cable Breaks.

Injuries he received yesterday when a bucket fell on him proved fatal last night to Clarence McGee, negro city employe, as city police established the identity of another negro who died of a stab wound while walking down Auburn avenue yesterday morning.

The wounded negro was listed last night at Grady hospital as Julius Derricott, about 22, of 629 Irwin street. He collapsed on Auburn avenue of a stab wound above the heart.

McGee was hurt yesterday when a steel cable holding a heavy bucket at the city crematory broke. The bucket, weighing several hundred pounds, hit the negro on the back, crushing him. He died at Grady hospital.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE
Caused by Tired Kidneys
Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, lumbago, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

OTTLEY KIDNAPER DENIED CLEMENCY; KILLER LOSES PLEA

Governor Spurns Appeal of Delinski; Doomed Slayer's Petition Also Rejected.

Governor Rivers has declined an application for clemency in behalf of William E. Delinski, former sailor, now serving a 20-year sentence for the kidnaping of John K. Ottley in 1933, it was announced yesterday by Downing Musgrove, the Governor's executive secretary.

Delinski has served nearly four years of his sentence and had asked the Governor to commute it to present service or to order his release on parole.

"The Governor feels that the kidnaping of Mr. Ottley was one of the worst crimes in the history of the state and that Delinski should not be granted clemency, particularly at this time," Musgrove said in announcing Rivers' action.

Banker Held Captive.

Delinski, aided by a 16-year-old boy, kidnaped Ottley as the banker was en route to his office from his home. He took him to a secluded spot near Suwanee, Ga., where the banker was held captive for some time. Ottley prepailed on the boy to aid in his release and it was effected without a ransom payment. Delinski, finding his captive gone, fled the state and was captured in Texas several months later.

Governor Rivers' action in formally declining the clemency petition means that Delinski cannot file another such petition for a year.

The prison commission had declined to recommend clemency.

Death Clemency Denied.

The Governor's secretary yesterday also announced that the chief executive had declined to extend clemency to Willie E. Douberly, of Savannah, under sentence to be executed for the murder of Peter Charles. The condemned man had been denied a new trial by the supreme court.

In asking the Governor to commute the sentence, Douberly's lawyers claimed that they had newly discovered evidence which would warrant a new trial. Musgrove said he had looked into the new evidence and that it involved only the time of the killing and would have no effect on the final outcome of the case.

FOOD STRIKE PEACE IS HOWLED DOWN

Buffalo Wholesale Drivers Reject Modified Closed Shop Proposal.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 26.—(AP) Striking American Federation of Labor truck drivers tonight howled down a 12-point compromise contract put forward to end a six-day-old walkout in 44 wholesale food houses.

Proffered by wholesalers' representatives, the compromise carried a modified closed shop clause which failed to win indorsement from a union mass meeting.

"Now you're on strike in earnest," shouted Business Agent Licata, of the United Teamsters' Union, an AFL affiliate, after the vote.

"You've got to fight now. It's the closed shop or nothing."

Licata ordered lieutenants to reinforce picket lines. He also directed a more vigorous blockade of roads leading into the city. Flying squads were organized to overtake trucks and persuade their drivers to turn back.

The compromise was drawn up by union leaders and wholesalers in a three-hour conciliation meeting with the Rev. Dr. John P. Boland, chairman of the New York State Labor Relations Board. It provided men now employed may or may not join the union but that new men hired must become members of the local.

Negotiations between CIO leaders representing 1,000 union butchers and operators of three major packing plants meantime broke down completely and precipitated a shortage of fresh meats.

Populous western New York felt a food shortage today for the first time. Independent and chain stores alike reported no butter, eggs, cheese, poultry and other foods on their shelves. Prices jumped with butter selling at 40 cents a pound, eggs at 40 and 41 cents.

CIO TO CONCENTRATE FIRE UPON REPUBLIC

(Copyright, 1937, by United Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 26.—The Committee for Industrial Organization has decided to direct its fire against the Republic Steel Corporation and to virtually abandon for the moment its fight to obtain signed agreements with other steel independents, it was learned tonight. First move was the calling off of walkouts in "captive" coal mines operated by the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., and Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

FORD WITNESSES DENY UNION FIRING

DETROIT, July 26.—(AP)—A group of witnesses for the Ford Motor Company denied at a National Labor Relations Board hearing today employes had been discharged because of union activity as charged in an NLRB complaint against the Ford company.

The witnesses, mainly foremen and other departmental heads, asserted the discharges were due to unsatisfactory work. Denial also was made by Ford witnesses today that any employes were threatened with dismissal for failure to sign a "vote of confidence" leaflet.

CIO DRIVE LAUNCHED FOR HARBOR WORKERS

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—A drive to organize under CIO charters some 45,000 harbor workers in American ports was announced today at the constitutional convention of the National Maritime Union. C. W. Deal, the Pacific Boatmen's Union, told the convention harbor workers' interests differed from those of seagoing men and recommended harbor workers request a separate charter from the CIO. The convention adopted the recommendation on the condition a national assembly of seamen discuss the question.

Widow's Appeal For Job Brings Buford Offer

The appeal of seven jobless widows for work Friday had its first return yesterday in the office of Fulton county commissioners as Frank Fling, secretary of the commissioners, announced receipt of a letter offering employment to one of the women.

The job offered is that of companion and assistant to an elderly housewife on a small farm about three miles from Buford.

G. R. Emery, of Route 2, Buford, wrote Fling that he read The Atlanta Constitution story Saturday telling the plight of the seven women, thrown out of work along with 500 others when WPA relief rolls were cut recently, and their plea for county assistance. He wrote:

"My wife and I are both getting along in years and I would like to find someone willing to make her home with us and act as a companion and assistant to my wife while I am at work in Buford."

Emery goes into Buford at 6:30 o'clock every morning to his job at the Bona Allen Shoe Company, where he said he has worked for 22 years. Fling said that the offer would be referred to the group seeking assistance.

Meanwhile, the county commissioners' office continues to receive about 40 calls daily for assistance in getting back on WPA work rolls, Fling said. They expressed hope that more offers from private employers would come into the office.

All the cases grew out of a strike called March 29 at the Covington plant of the Industrial Rayon Corporation by the Yarn Workers' Union, a CIO affiliate.

ANTI-LYNCHING RIDER IS TABLED BY SENATE

It tabled, 41 to 34, a proposal by Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, the anti-lynch bill by Senators Wagner, Democrat, New York, and Van Nuys, Democrat, Indiana, be considered as amendment to the McCarran train-limit bill.

Southern senators shelved the issue with the aid of several other senate factions.

Two-Ton Chunk of Meat To Be Used at Barbecue

A chunk of meat as big as a good-sized elephant, but much more edible, will be the piece de resistance at the Fulton county employes' party August 7 at Lakewood park, "Big Bill" Turner, impresario of the affair, announced yesterday.

Two tons of meat will be used in the Brunswick stew and for barbecue when county workers and their friends get together for the first annual county picnic. It will take several cows and quite a number of pigs to make up the elephant-size main course.

Committeemen arranging the party said 5,000 invitations were printed and will be sent to county employes. Admission is by invitation only.

'SARATOGA' SERIAL BOXOFFICE LURE

Story in Constitution Given Credit for Big Theater Crowds.

An all-time attendance record established by "Saratoga" with the late Jean Harlow and Clark Gable, now at Loew's Grand, was credited yesterday to publication in The Constitution of the "Saratoga" contest and the serialized story of Saratoga carried recently in this newspaper by Eddie Pentecost, Loew's Grand manager.

When "Saratoga" was published in serial form several months ago—with no reference whatever to the forthcoming production of the motion picture, there was an immediate reader response. Scores of calls were made for back issues of the paper with portions of the serial and the office was deluged with inquiries as to where the book could be had.

While to date, San Francisco holds the box office record for a complete run of "Saratoga," Manager Pentecost predicted that this mark would be shattered by Atlanta attendance figures.

Indicating the intense interest in the pictures—during the making of which the glamorous Jean Harlow was fatally stricken, Pentecost said, is the fact there has not been a single demand for refund by patrons obliged to wait for a seat. Patrons turned away from one performance have come back in hopes of getting in at another.

The substitution of a double for Miss Harlow—announced with her death—went unnoticed in the latter part of the film, Pentecost said, with patrons absorbed in the swift action and striking shots.

SOUTHERN SEEKING TO ABANDON LINE

40-Mile Stretch Is Involved in Petition.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—The Southern Railway renewed today its application to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to abandon a portion of its Atlanta-Fort Valley line in Fulton, Clayton, Fayette, Spalding and Pike counties, Georgia.

The commission on May 29, 1936, deferred action on the railroad's application on the ground a "further test of operation" for one year should be made.

The railroad said today the results of this "further operation" showed traffic will not provide revenue sufficient to pay "more than a fraction" of maintenance and operation costs.

The line which the railroad proposes to abandon extends approximately 40 miles from a point near Roseland through Fayetteville to Williamson, Ga.

Critic Tells Appeal Of 'Gone With Wind'

Have you ever wondered why Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind" is the fastest selling best seller in history? Belle Rosenbaum, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune's book section, has figured out why. It is because Miss Mitchell picked out the most popular and romantic theme in America—the War Between the States.

"The public was bored with endocrines, gangsters, debunked religion and amateur love," Miss Rosenbaum writes. She says: "That's why they bought more than a million copies of 'Gone With the Wind' in six months." She asserts the entire country was "ready for romanced history" and that the War Between the States was the most popular fiction subject because it contained more elements of human drama than any other crisis in the country's history.

AIR LINE SUBSIDIES SEEN AS POSSIBILITY

President Roosevelt Asks Aviation Committee To Study Question.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—American air lines operating to foreign countries may be granted direct government subsidies within the next year or two, officials indicated today.

President Roosevelt met with his inter-departmental committee on civil international aviation and asked it to study the question of subsidies.

Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy, of the Maritime Commission, who attended the meeting, told reporters afterward the report probably will be ready for the President within 90 days. This would enable congress to act at its next session, which begins in January, on any subsidy legislation the committee may recommend.

Well-informed persons reported that some members of the committee favor federal subsidies for trans-oceanic aviation similar to those now granted ship lines.

The ship subsidies are based upon the difference between foreign and American construction and operating costs.

H. B. ADAMS RITES HELD AT DECATUR

Real Estate Man Dies After Long Illness.

Funeral services for Homer B. Adams, 67-year-old Decatur real estate man, were held at 11 o'clock yesterday morning at the First Methodist church, Decatur, with the Rev. J. W. O. McKibben officiating. Burial was in Decatur cemetery, under the direction of A. S. Turner.

Mr. Adams died Saturday night at his residence at 506 Clairmont avenue, Decatur, after an extended illness.

He was a brother of G. C. Adams, former Georgia commissioner of agriculture, and was prominently identified with the department during his brother's term.

Before moving to Decatur 17 years ago he served for 13 years as superintendent of schools in Carrollton.

PLANS ARE PUSHED TO REDUCE TENANCY

Southern, Midwestern Farmers To Receive Aid First, Officials Reveal.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—Farm administration officials said today they hope to have the tenancy aid program under way early next month.

The name "Farm Security Administration" has been selected tentatively for the organization in charge. Efforts will be made to get it operating soon after the return of Secretary Wallace, now on vacation.

President Roosevelt signed last week the bill authorizing the Agriculture Department to embark on a long-time program to turn nearly 3,000,000 tenant farmers into landowners.

The bill allows $10,000,000 this year for loans to tenants to purchase farms, $25,000,000 in the 1939 fiscal year and $50,000,000 annually thereafter. It also authorizes $10,000,000 this year and $20,000,000 each in 1939 and 1940 with which the department may purchase and retire from cultivation land unsuited for crops.

Tenants in southern and midwestern states will be the first to receive assistance, officials said, since the program will be begun in the states with the greatest population and the highest percentage of farm tenancy.

Selection of the individuals to be helped and the land to be purchased will be left largely in the hands of county committees of farmers familiar with local conditions.

4,500 ARE EXPECTED TO GET AGE CHECKS

First Payment Will Total Between $10 and $15.

Lamar Murdaugh, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, announced yesterday that between 4,500 and 5,000 old persons would receive Georgia's first old-age pension checks the latter part of this week.

Murdaugh said the exact number would not be determined until the checks are put in the mails, the number depending on those certified by county welfare boards.

The director made no announcement of the amount each pensioner will receive in the first checks, but it is expected to be between $10 and $15. The payment will cover the month of July. This amount is said to be the highest paid by any southern state in its first month of operation. Murdaugh has approximately $750,000 on hand to pay pensions for July, August and September and it is expected that the number of persons receiving checks will be increased considerably within the next two months.

WEST'S COOL WAVE TRAVELS EASTWARD TO ALLEGHANY AREA

By the Associated Press.

The middle west's midsummer cool wave moved eastward last night to replace high temperatures beyond the Alleghanies.

Warmer weather already had entered the north central states, Forecaster J. R. Lloyd said at Chicago, coming in from Montana, where midday readings were in the 90's.

Minneapolis and Chicago registered 72 degrees at that time, while some points in the Great Lakes region continued in the 50's and 60's. Sault Ste. Marie and Alpena, Mich., had the low marks of the nation at 1:30 p. m. (eastern standard time), with 52.

Lloyd said temperatures were above normal in the New England and eastern New York, the middle and south Atlantic states, along the gulf coast and in the far west.

The cool weather which has overspread the north central states, the Great Lakes and the Ohio valley should be felt in some of the eastern warm areas by morning, and by evening should be spread over New England, New York and the middle Atlantic states, the forecaster said.

Rain was sighted for most of that area today. Lloyd said the prospect was for precipitation in the eastern Great Lakes region, New England, New York and the Atlantic states.

Temperatures were in the 70's in the upper and middle Missouri valley yesterday. Fair weather generally was in sight in the north central states.

PLOT TO REMOVE MAYOR IS CHARGED

Philadelphia Executive Terms Tapping of Wires Political Conspiracy.

PHILADELPHIA, July 26.—(AP) The tapping of telephone wires at the home of Louis W. Wilgarde, secretary to Mayor S. Davis Wilson, brought charges today by the mayor that it was a plot to have him removed as mayor and open the way to the appointment of a Democratic successor.

The mayor, who began a four-year term in January, 1936, after election on the Republican ticket, announced defiance of what he termed an "attempt to assassinate" his character, and reiterated he would be a candidate for governor in 1938.

He held State Policeman Wallace F. Ely in $5,000 bail Saturday on a charge of wire tapping, and today said a memorandum found in Ely's papers when he was arrested showed Ely had been assigned to investigate gambling and vice in the city for the legislative committee investigating Pennsylvania courts.

The mayor said he, Willgarde and Joseph A. Donaghue were mentioned in the memorandum.

Donaghue was appointed to the new city civil service commission by Mayor Wilson. The legislative act creating the new commission was ruled invalid by the supreme court.

TWO JAILED IN PROBE OF ALABAMA SLAYING

CLAYTON, Ala., July 26.—(AP) Sheriff Williams announced today the arrest of two men in connection with his investigation of the death of Ed Brown, 70.

Brown's body, bearing knife wounds in the body and head, was found today in his home near Blue Springs, Ala., where he lived alone.

Names of the men under arrest were given as Henry P. Clark, of Skipperville, and Jaimie Lee Teal, Blue Springs. Information on which they were arrested was not revealed, and no formal charges had been placed against them.

Sheriff Williams took several articles of Brown's personal property including a knife and pocketbook, to Columbus, Ga., for examination for possible fingerprints, but upon his return said none was found.

MATTERN DENIED RIGHT TO MAKE POLE FLIGHT

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—Commerce department officials reported today an application by Jimmie Mattern for permission to fly over the North Pole to Russia had been tentatively denied.

Authorities said Mattern would be permitted to make a new application, however. They said he would have to prove that the flight would be of scientific value.

Parted 23 Years, Couple Remarries

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., July 26. (AP)—Joseph and Mary Spano started married life anew today, picked up their childhood romance where the World War ended it 23 years ago.

Mary, now 40 years of age, again fondled the ring that Joseph slipped on her finger back in Sicily when she was 16 and he was 20.

City Judge Allen E. Bargar remarried them and Mary cooked a big dinner to celebrate the event.

The war ended their first marriage, Joseph going off to the trenches.

That was the last Mary heard of him for 22 years.

MORAL JUDGMENTS HELD WAR THREAT

Woodring Advises U. S. Not To Take Sides.

DURHAM, N. C., July 26.—(AP) Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring told the state American Legion convention tonight the danger of America's involvement in a foreign war lies in "attempting to pass moral judgment on the motives and responsibilities of other nations."

"Such an action," he said, "might easily be the first step toward involving ourselves in hostilities. It may be noted that it is precisely in this respect that many of us who earnestly and sincerely wish to avoid war show our inconsistency.

"However, in the United States we are in the happy position of being largely exempt from conditions that might seriously imperil our peace.

"Our close neighbors are our close friends. Our coasts are protected by wide oceans. Which, though much more easily crossed than formerly, still constitute formidable barriers for invading hosts.

"While, therefore, we are justified in viewing the foreign scene with much concern, there is no need of being unduly alarmed."

'A FAVOR TO YOU'

White-Slaving Father Gets 60-Year Term.

MIAMI, Fla., July 26.—(UP)—A 38-year-old barber, Cuthbert Cogbill, who admitted he forced his two daughters, aged 13 and 16, into virtual prostitution, was sentenced to 60 years in prison today.

"I am putting you away for what probably will be the rest of your natural life, which I think is a great favor to society, your family and to you," Criminal Court Judge Willard told Cogbill.

The two girls, both pretty, were taken to the county juvenile home after they had testified, before their father and a packed courtroom, that they had been forced into immoral relationships with their father and other men. They told how they had received money from the men, which always was turned over to Cogbill.

HOLDING COMPANY TAX DISCUSSED BY OFFICIALS

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—Treasury officials and a congressional committee explored today the possibility of discouraging the use of personal holding companies as a tax avoidance device by subjecting them to heavier taxes.

No decision was reached on rates. Members of the tax investigating committee said the rates would depend to some extent on whether adjustments were made in the tax deductions allowed by existing law.

WIFE MURDER, SUICIDE LAID TO LOUISIANA MAN

FARMERSVILLE, La., July 26. (AP)—Sheriff F. W. Murphy, of Union parish said S. J. White, 40, apparently killed his 35-year-old wife with a knife about midnight last night and four hours later used a shotgun to kill himself.

The sheriff said he believed they had been drinking at their home, 16 miles east of here, and later quarreled.

'PEEP-TELL' THREAT OF THRASHING TOLD

Dean Was Angered by Alleged Spying of Cashier, Court Is Told.

GREENFIELD, Mass., July 26.—(UP)—Former Dean Thomas Edwin Elder, of Mount Herman School for Boys, once threatened S. Allen Norton with a "good thrashing" as result of the latter's "peep-tell" activities, Defense Witness Henry Franklin Cutler, one-time headmaster of the school, revealed late today.

Elder, 55, is on trial in Franklin county superior court on charges of assault with intent to murder Norton, 66, retired Mount Hermon cashier, and assault with a dangerous weapon putting Norton "in fear of bodily harm."

Cutler, for 42 years headmaster at Mount Hermon prior to his retirement in 1932, was the last witness called as court recessed until tomorrow.

It was Norton, according to his own testimony, who bored peepholes through a closet wall at the school to watch alleged "kiss-hug" episodes between Elder and his secretary, Miss Evelyn Dill, during Cutler's administration.

After reporting the supposed incidents to the then Headmaster Cutler, Norton had said, a conference was called in the school leader's office and all three men knelt in prayer "for forgiveness."

From the witness stand, Cutler said Elder had denied to him having taken "liberties" with Miss Dill. As the defense opened this morning, Fairhurst told the jury he would seek to prove the purported "kisses" were no more than a "chuck" under Miss Dill's chin.

JEWISH-ARAB FIGHT HELD MINOR ISSUE

Future Balance of Power in Mediterranean Seen as Major Controversy.

PARIS, July 26.—(UP)—The whole vital question of future balance of power in the Mediterranean is linked with the Palestine participation controversy, French diplomats believed tonight as they awaited presentation of the British partition plan to the League mandates' commission.

Observers said the issue went far beyond the Jewish-Arab conflict or fulfillment of the British promise to provide a Jewish national home.

Britain Needs Tranquillity.

Restoration of tranquillity to the Mediterranean's turbulent eastern shore is vital to Britain, according to the French, because on her relations with the Islamic world depends her ability to maintain supremacy over Italy in the eastern Mediterranean and safeguard air as well as land routes to the Far East and India.

Re-establishment of normal relations with the Arab world and the Jewish community in Palestine was regarded as imperative if Britain is to overcome intensive Italian efforts to win a place as the best friend of the Arabs among European powers.

French Vitally Concerned.

The French themselves are vitally concerned because of the importance of their own near-eastern naval connections at Syria and Lebanon, where they relinquished mandates but have maintained influence.

Authorities here pointed to the recent speech of Lord Strabolgi in the house of lords as stating frankly and clearly the importance of Palestine to the empire and bringing forward the real international issue.

While Zanuck's reply wasn't enough of a classic to be remembered, especially under the circumstances, it stopped Jimmy. The boys now are said to be sharing $2,400 a week.

You don't travel in the best circles in Hollywood until you've told the treasurer that you can't get along on a measly thousand bucks. Ginger Rogers, aware that her dancing partner, Fred Astaire, was dragging down more shekels, sat down. It was a very profitable sitting, too.

Janet Gaynor went to Honolulu until her studio met her terms. Jack Oakie went to Mexico. Pictures (Jack wanted more for being so funny in them) and radio contribute $7,500 weekly to the Oakie bank account, one authority estimates.

Fred McMurray, rushed from one picture to another, went home to catch his breath. He caught his breath when the studio phoned. His salary went up, it is said, from $1,000 to $1,750.

Not all salary arguments conclude like a chapter from the Arabian Nights. Bette Davis and George Brent returned to work for the same old stipends, but they're happy now.

She was a daughter of the Rev. Charles M. Addison, retired Stamford, Conn., Episcopal clergyman who lives with another daughter, Mr. Charles E. Nutter, of Cambridge, Mass.

In addition to her husband, senior partner of the banking firm of Roosevelt and son; her father and sister, Mrs. Roosevelt is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Allesandro Pallavicini, of Rome, and Mrs. Herbert Whiting; two sons, George and Julian, and a brother, the Rev. James Addison, of Cambridge, Mass.

BAN ON MARRIED PAIRS IN ECONOMY ACT KILLED

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(AP)—Married couples who work for the government breathed more easily today when President Roosevelt signed a repealer of a section of the 1933 economy act.

The section provided that whenever personnel reduction were necessary an employe whose husband or wife was also in government service should be let out first.

Final Test of Civilization Rests On Individual, Judge Rosser Says

Jurist Tells Ministers Good Government Depends on Good Citizens; Public Opinion Must Be Developed, He Insists.

By LOUIE D. NEWTON, President Atlanta Baptist Ministers' Association.

"Good government depends upon good citizens, and the final test of civilization is the character of the individual," said Judge Luther Z. Rosser, presiding judge of the municipal court, in an address before the Atlanta Baptist Ministers' Association Monday.

Judge Rosser's address was the fourth in a series throughout the Mondays of July on citizenship. Previous speakers were Chief M. A. Hornsby of the Atlanta police department; Mayor W. B. Hartsfield and Judge C. Murphey Candler, of the DeKalb county juvenile court. Judge Rosser said:

"The first essential in good govenrment is the right sort of laws, which can only be enacted by an intelligent and alert citizenry. And after the right sort of laws have been enacted you have then got to find the right sort of public officials to enforce these laws. The third, and by far the most important step in the matter of good government, is the development of a public opinion that will sustain the public officials in the enforcement of duly enacted laws.

"Have Too Many Laws."

"In the moulding of public opinion, the pulpit and the press have been and will continue to be the most important factors, at least in this nation. We have plenty of laws in this country—too many, in fact—but we are short on public opinion to sustain the enforcement of these laws. It has been my confirmed judgment that whenever and wherever the pulpit and the press have united in vigorous support of good government, the courts have been enabled to enforce the laws against those who wilfully violate them.

"If you preachers will proclaim the teachings of the Bible in the earnestness which the prophet of God should manifest and the newspapers will keep constantly before the people the truths which none can debate with reference to the establishment and enforcement of those laws which make for security of life and property and the rights of freemen within the law, we will see a steadily improved situation.

"I am not here to lay blame upon either the pulpit or the press, but rather to emphasize the responsibility which you sustain in this important matters of citizenship. And now that the radio has come to join in the moulding of public opinion, the opportunities are enlarged to guide public opinion into the wholesome channels of law observance and better citizenship.

"Forces of Evil Alert."

"Unfortunately the forces of evil are ever alert to employ every possible device by which public opinion is misled and misguided. I have been a judge 24 years, and I wish to say to you that I could not maintain my work as a judge for 24 hours were it not for the support which comes to me and every other public servant from the good people of this community.

"Every time you preach a sermon filled with the teachings of the Bible, every time you speak a kindly word to some discouraged citizen, every time you discharge the thousand and one duties of your daily routine by which you lift up the spirit of burdened people and help them to rightly relate themselves to God, you are thereby making possible the better order for which we all are working.

"America is still a melting pot. We have closed our gates to the once flood of immigrants, but none of us would be so bold as to declare that there is yet a typical American. Too many forces are in play to permit a static situation in this young nation. And that may be our salvation. This flux in which we find ourselves is somewhat helpful in the fact that we cannot be evenly divided into classes as is true just now in some of the older nations of earth, as, for example, in Spain.

"Have Great Challenge."

"With this widely varying type of thought, we have the grand challenge of steadily bringing to bear great principles of government, great principles of economy, great principles of citizenship, by which and through which we shall evolve a common ideal and purpose of democracy. Democracy cannot be said to have yet succeeded in any nation. We believe it will succeed here, and believing that, we are willing, or should be, to take our stand for what we believe to be right and seek by every possible token of service to make effective these principles.

"In that direction lies the solution of crime, of poverty, of class hatred, of social and economic jealousies that have so disturbed us from time to time.

"Sure and swift conviction for those who violate the law will help to end much of our present crime, but we should not be satisfied to deal merely and only with the criminal, we must seek to save our young people from careers of crime. Life must be made attractive in the wholesome fields of positive endeavor, thus wresting these eternally valuable personalities from the snare of temptation.

"I would say unhesitatingly that if one wishes to establish a basis of good citizenship he must go to the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount. Recognizing God as the eternal, omnipotent, immutable, inexhaustible Creator and Preserver, moved always by love toward mankind, and being willing to work in His appointed place to bring to bear the kingdom of righteousness, is my conception of a good citizen. Given such a man, and you have not only a good government, but you have a strong, abiding civilization."

Troy Woodbury, president of the Baptist Training Union work of Atlanta and young merchant, conducted the devotional service, emphasizing the fact that civic righteousness is the direct result of a right relationship with God and a desire to serve one's fellow man.

The conference adjourned yesterday until September, when a program centered around the idea of "Building a Better World" will be featured with Francis E. Clarke, executive editor of The Constitution, as the guest speaker September 6.

Buggs' Beanery Loses Its Tidbits As Well as Buggs

TAMPA, Fla., July 26.—(AP)—Police Sergeant Morris said the food served in Leroy Buggs' beanery was every bit as good as that served in Tampa's finest hotel.

The choicest T-bone steaks, fine roast chicken, delicious hams, lobsters right at the prime of life, seafood tidbits to please the palate of the most fastidious, served with creamery butter and grade "A" eggs—these went across the beanery counter at two bits a plate.

Owner Doesn't Cook There.

But, Sergeant Morris said, there is no point in Tampa's negro population rushing down to Buggs' beanery now. The proprietor, a negro chef, doesn't cook there any more.

Neither does he cook at the Tampa Terrace hotel. The hotel management, puzzled by the disappearance of those $1.25 steaks, $1 lobsters, etc., asked Sergeant Morris to look into the matter. Buggs, the Tampa Terrace's chef, was placed under surveillance by the sergeant, who said he was a little puzzled by the actions of a garbage truck that loaded up each midnight. One large garbage can was handled oh, so gently.

Sergeant Makes Discovery.

And, said the sergeant, the gently handled garbage can didn't go to the usual disposal place. It was dropped off at Buggs' beanery.

The sergeant and two detectives looked inside the garbage can. There—they said this in their official report—reposed steaks, lobsters, dressed chicksn, hams, liver, fish, butter, lard, eggs and canned goods.

Buggs, his wife and the garbage man were taken to the county jail.

FLORIDAN KILLS SELF.

COCOA, Fla., July 26.—(AP)—Charles Reed, 38, prominent winter resident here, died today of a bullet wound which a coroner's jury said was self-inflicted. He was the son of the late Alfred Reed, one-time part owner of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

WEEVIL QUARANTINE REFUSED BY BOARD

Entomologists Discuss Means of Combatting Cotton Pest's Inroads.

FLORALA, Ala., July 26.—(AP)—The southern plant board refused today to recommend quarantine restrictions for 27 square miles of Alabama and Florida in which has been found the white fringed beetle, commonly known as the Argentine weevil.

Instead, the board left to plant boards of the two states involved a decision on whether to halt shipment of farm products and begin systematic search of automobiles leaving the area.

Members assigned the reason for refusal to ask quarantine to the lack of information about the beetle, which has infested three counties of this area.

Quarantine Procedure.

Dr. Lee A. Strong, chief entomologist of the United States Department of Agriculture, said his bureau has no immediate quarantine plans. Should the department consider one necessary, it would cover the entire states in which infestations have been found.

He said his men have $50,000 to spend in combating the insect's invasion of Alabama and Florida.

None of the agricultural experts at the meeting today at De Funiak Springs, Fla., and Florala would estimate the amount of damage done since the bettle first was discovered, or would predict how long the campaign of extermination will require.

Extent of Activity.

The new agricultural menace already has infested Covington county, Alabama, and Walton and Okaloosa counties, Florida.

The South American weevil cannot fly but it can crawl—about four feet a minute—and it has a ravenous appetite for most farm crops. It does not like tobacco or fruits, but it delights on cotton, sugar cane, potatoes, corn and like staples.

It apparently is harmless to tobacco, so far as entomologists now know, they said, and does not attack citrus or other fruit-bearing trees.

Self-Propagating.

In Argentina, the weevil is found in a climate comparable to Kentucky and Ohio. Because the insect breeds without a male, Watson said it was possible for one beetle, coming in with grain, to have started infestations in this country.

The pest is unable to climb the vertical walls of a trench. Ditches dug round the infested fields have been found the best method so far in preventing the insects' travel. Collected in a trench, they are easily killed with a kerosene spray or with a blow torch.

Null signed a confession, Assistant Monmouth County Prosecutor Charles Frankel said, that he fired a .32-caliber automatic at his father through a window screen because "the thought came to me all of sudden to shoot him."

Automobiles wrought havoc on highways all over the state during the week end.

In Macon 10 persons narrowly escaped death when two automobiles crashed head on. The two cars were driven by Bernard M. Lewis, of Macon, and J. H. Boring, of Valdosta.

Charles Morgan, of Macon, and several other occupants of his car were hurt Sunday when a car he was driving skidded off the highway at Saint Simons island and plunged into the marshes.

MORGAN DENIES HE WAS AT ISLAND

MACON, Ga., July 26.—(AP)—Charles C. Morgan, chief state game protector, said here tonight he was not in an automobile accident at St. Simons island Sunday.

"I was in Macon all day Sunday," Mr. Morgan said. "Monday I worked in this territory."

Dispatches from St. Simons said Mr. Morgan was driver of a car which skidded and plunged into a salt marsh.

SAFETY CERTIFICATE WILL BE GIVEN CITY

American Automobile Association Award Is in Recognition of Campaign.

Atlanta's reward for reducing traffic fatalities during the first six months of 1937 will be presented officially to Mayor Hartfield this morning when Robert P. McLarty, president of the Atlanta Motor Club, will hand over the American Automobile Association certificate of merit.

The ceremony, formal recognition of this city's effective campaign to reduce automobile deaths is scheduled for 10 o'clock with Police Chief M. A. Hornsby, Captain Jack Malcom, head of the police traffic squad, and C. B. Bishop, secretary of the Atlanta Motor Club, in attendance.

Atlanta was one of 10 selected cities in the United States with populations of more than 50,000 winning the award. Selection was based on the reduction in traffic deaths during the first six months of this year to 23 against 42 for the same period last year. A total of 84 traffic deaths was recorded here last year.

Other cities winning recognition with Atlanta, were Durham, N. C.; Miami, Richmond, East Orange, N. J.; Glendale, Cal.; St. Louis, Schenecatdy, N. Y.; Waterbury, Conn., and Minneapolis.

STANLEY EXPLAINS PRINTING PLANT

Commissioner Replies to Protest of Union.

Protests from the typographical union against the installation of a printing plant at the new state prison at Reidsville yesterday drew from Commissioner Vivian L. Stanley a statement that the plant will be used only to rebind and recondition used school books and will not compete with private industry.

The protest came from Frank L. Bodenhamer, of Augusta, secretary of that city's typographical union, who said he was acting on the request of the Atlanta local of the union.

Commissioner Stanley said the work to be done at the Reidsville plant is the type "you couldn't get any printer in the country to do."

The books to be reconditioned are those bought from children by the state department and will be furnished to negro pupils under the free school book program.

HIGHWAY PATROL TRAINING STARTED

100 Men Begin Six Weeks' Schooling at Georgia Tech Campus.

The 100 men from whom Georgia's 80-man highway patrol will be chosen yesterday began an intensive six weeks' period of training preparatory to taking to the highways in an effort to bring about a reduction in automobile fatalities and make the state safer for motorists.

The training school was only a few hours old when the men received their first lessons in life saving, these coming from representatives of the American Red Cross, who will be here for 10 days, together with Chief Deputy Inspector George Searle, of the New York state police, who will give instructions in the police manual.

The training period officially got under way at exercises presided over by Judge Clement E. Sutton, of Washington, Ga., and participated in by Mayor Hartsfield, Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, and Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby.

Mayor Hartsfield welcomed the men to Atlanta while Dr. Brittain bade them be at home at Tech where they will be housed as well as taught during the training period.

Most of the police work will be taught by Deputy Inspector Searle, who will be followed here by Albert Moore, chief inspector of the New York department. Searle will give his first lecture this morning.

Commodore W. E. Longfellow and George T. Costello, both representatives of the American Red Cross, yesterday afternoon began giving instructions in life saving following accidents. Before the training period is ended the men will be taken to an Atlanta swimming pool and there given instructions in life saving for swimmers.

Major John C. Carter, acting public safety commissioner, is in charge of the school.

MARKETABLE PRODUCE

Tobacco grading specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture have been busy for the past week instructing farmers of the Georgia tobacco belt on proper methods of sorting and grading their crops for the tobacco markets which open in south Georgia this week.

Not only tobacco growers, but vegetable and produce growers, should remember that there is no step in their business which more vitally affects the marketability and price value of their goods than proper sorting, grading and packing.

In the gospel of diversification, which has been preached to Georgia farmers for decades and which is today showing gratifying results, too little stress has been laid on the preparation of the produce grown when it is at last ready for market. Too many farmers make little or no effort at grading and sorting the vegetables or fruit they offer for sale, with the result they have received prices far below what they could have otherwise commanded and, in many instances, have found no market at all.

The buyers cannot be blamed for this condition. Accustomed to modern methods in packing and sorting used by growers in competing states, it is not surprising that the Georgia products, too frequently offered in hit-or-miss bulk condition, have been under heavy handicap.

There should be accepted standards for the grades and packages of all produce. When such standards are general the buyer will know exactly what he is getting and the vegetables and fruit of the state will be offered purchasers in condition and in containers that will tempt, instead of repel.

Then many hundreds of Georgia firms, desirous of handling Georgia-grown products, will be able to do so without placing themselves under the present handicap involved in offering unsightly goods to the ultimate consumer.

"POLICEMEN OF THE NATION"

Major Ryan L. Wood, reserve officer trainee at Fort McPherson and, in private life, pastor of a Presbyterian church in Tampa, aptly described the status of a fighting man under the banner of the United States army when he said he considered himself a "policeman of the nation."

Major Wood is not the only minister of the gospel who is learning the ways of war at the fort here. There is, also, Lieutenant J. Richards, who is pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Waynesboro.

These two soldiers exemplify, in striking fashion, the sentiment that animates the military forces of this country. Not formed for any possible aggressive war, but as a police force maintained to defend the nation against attack from the outside. That is the function of the American army. In the entire organization there is no provision for a war of offense. Everything is concentrated upon the duties of defense.

In such an army ministers of the gospel find congenial atmosphere. There is nothing that clashes with the teachings they preach from their pulpits and the work they do in fitting themselves to protect their homes and the nation, if danger comes, is proper example for the young men of their congregations.

To seek combat aggressively, whether individual or national, is an ethic crime. The appeal to force is always a confession of inability to reason. Only men whose ideas of right mount no higher than the instincts of a beast of prey would condone attack upon peaceful people.

But the man who is not prepared to repel that attack and to save his beloved country and his home from the heel of the conqueror, the weapon of the ravisher and the hand of the looter, is as foolish as the householder who will not lock his valuables away from the burglar.

He is delinquent in his duty as a citizen and guilty of the same error Christ Himself denounced when he told the parable of the man who built his house upon the sand.

The splendid Christian ministers who are studying the science of defensive warfare at Fort McPherson are exemplifying the intelligent ways of Christian citizenship and setting an example that their fellows and their congregations could, with advantage, follow.

CAPTAIN HENRY T. MEIKLEHAM

The entire textile industry, as well as the northwest Georgia community in which he lived, suffered a loss in the death of Captain Henry T. Meikleham, managing executive of the Pepperell Mills at Lindale, Ga., since their establishment in 1895.

Captain Meikleham contributed much to the industry in which he was a prominent figure. He enjoyed a rare popularity, not only with the executive interests of the industry, but with the workers as well. No mill director enjoyed a personal popularity with the men and women in the mill's employ surpassing that which had grown into true affection between Captain Meikleham and the personnel of the Pepperell Mills.

In other interests of life he was equally well known. To his fellow citizens of Rome, Ga., of which Lindale is a suburb, he was known as kindly friend, generous philanthropist and civic leader. Scores of struggling boys and girls owed their chance for education in life to the quiet help extended by Captain Meikleham at crises when help was most sorely needed.

Illustrative of the catholicity of his friendship was the fact that on the occasion of a recent birthday more than 5,000 people attended a party held in his honor.

Any man who can count his friends by thousands has contributed much to his age and time. Such a man was Captain Henry T. Meikleham.

"A STOUT-HEARTED MAN" DIES

Vivian Burnett died of a heart attack brought on by the strain caused when he rescued four persons from Manhasset Bay, after a sailboat had capsized. He was described as "a stout-hearted, ready-witted man of action" who "died as he had lived."

In that description lies the epitaph Burnett would have desired more than anything else in life or in death.

For he was, as a child, the original of that strange fiction boy, "Little Lord Fauntleroy," the child hero of the novel of that title which was a best seller of the long ago when it was written by his mother, Frances Hodgson Burnett.

The "Lord Fauntleroy" of the story is remembered as a youngster of such exceeding sweetness and light that the name has been anathema ever since on the lips of every red-blooded he-child of the nation. The very name has come to be a reproach and there are depths of childish shame almost beyond plumbing in the term of a "Fauntleroy."

The son of the novelist based his life on an attempt to prove to the world that, no matter how his mother had dreamed about him, he was in real life the very antithesis of a "Fauntleroy." At college he starred on the track team and went out for athletics in a big way, just to live down what he considered his shame. He entered newspaper work and became a cub reporter, and, later, a columnist and a magazine writer.

Old associates describe him as adopting, in his early days at least, a brusque and "rough" manner, undoubtedly caused by his constant dread of revealing, in real life, the lace collar attributes of his fiction incarnation.

Now, he has died as the direct result of an act of heroism. On his tombstone no more fitting words could be inscribed than those used by the reporter who told the story of the passing of "a stout-hearted man of action."

MINISTERIAL TRAGEDY

Once again, by the acrimonious public dispute between the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, English minister of the gospel who officiated at the marriage of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, and his superiors in his church, the truth is demonstrated that it is always unfortunate for the church when any of its leaders become involved in public controversies.

The Rev. Jardine is now in the United States for a series of public lectures which, regardless of the original intent, will certainly result in his return to his English home more or less enriched by American dollars paid in at the box offices of the lecture halls in which he will appear.

He is reported to have referred to the Archbishop of Canterbury as a "cad" in his Baltimore appearance and now the official publication of the Vatican calls that characterization "disgusting."

It is beside the point to enter any argument as to justification of the harsh three-letter appellation. That, in any event, could never be anything but a matter of personal opinion. The unfortunate circumstance lies in the fact that a minister of the gospel should ever lower himself to such mud-slinging in a public speech. Or in private conversation either, for that matter.

To this extent the Vatican publication is correct in branding the incident as "disgusting."

When dignitaries of the church descend to the epithets of the street in commenting upon each other, the average man cannot avoid losing respect for the cloth and the church it represents.

Editorial of the Day

THE PRESS AND ITS FREEDOM

(From the Hartford Courant.)

In their own establishments a particular obligation rests upon publishers to see that men who direct the gathering of the news, reporters who are sent out to bring it in, and editorial writers who may comment upon it are free from any connection with any organization that seeks to prostitute the newspaper to its own ends. The reporters, the correspondents, the editorial assistants cannot be true to the profession of journalism, they cannot be true to the interests of the public they serve, unless they maintain a detached position and are entirely free from any outside domination. When one finds a newspaper capitulating to a so-called guild flying the CIO banner and demanding a closed shop in news and editorial departments, is it not a betrayal of the freedom that the constitution gives it? Is such a newspaper in any position to render its readers impartial service? Is it in any position to protest against the infringement of its constitutional rights when it surrenders the control of its own columns to outside influence? To ask these question is but to answer them.

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAGE.

CIO CHARGE WASHINGTON, July 26.—Behind the fog that envelops CIO's charge that the administration has been indifferent to the rights of labor in the "Little Steel" strike, three things are hidden:

1. There never has been a real split between the President and John Lewis.
2. There isn't any now.
3. There is one coming.

By collusion, or coincidence, the first story several weeks ago of the break between the White House and Mr. Lewis, the man who claims that "labor won the election," had all the appearances of stemming from both sides. Before long, unofficial spokesmen (on both sides) were saying that no parting of the ways had been reached.

Now the same sources (on both sides again) are predicting that the fork in the road is just a piece farther down and around the corner.

Mr. Lewis has been using a type of pressure on the White House somewhat suggestive of that which "a high official" recently pointed out had been used on the supreme court to keep their decisions "more on judicial than on legislative lines."

When the head of the CIO thought he wasn't getting what he felt he had coming from the administration, he cast out a hardly-concealed hint. Frequently all Mr. Lewis got in answer was an impressive silence. Sometimes he shared a gentle wallop with his opponents—the plague wished on his house, for instance, which he didn't like at all.

However, these little literary bruises were only signboards pointing to the fork in the road and the end of a beautiful friendship.

WILL ASK "TOO MUCH" As one friend of the administration puts it, "Some day John Lewis is going to ask too much."

Cold-blooded associates of Mr. Lewis say the same thing in different words, namely, that "President Roosevelt is going to do too little."

They say the Democratic party platform promised protection to labor to organize without employer interference. The United Mine Workers declare that the administration is already indifferent to "flagrant and wanton" violations of labor in the steel strike.

When the White House-CIO split does come it probably will come on an epigram.

Mr. Lewis will doubtless say again, "Life is not cushioned with sophistries," ask for deeds and, unable to summon them, turn his back on the pillared mansion on Pennsylvania avenue. He knows when he does that it will be giving aid and comfort to some of the administration's enemies.

THE LABOR VOTE Whither then?

The answer seems to be the pursuit of a goal under the shibboleth borrowed from the English labor movement before it had a party of its own "independence."

Labor sympathizers point to certain cities where they say, as in Detroit and Akron, labor is betting behind candidates. Openly and definitely they are supporting these officeseekers, not to run on a labor ticket, but under an old-line party banner while committed to a labor following.

It shows John Lewis, Mrs. Lewis and their son coming down the steps at the Soviet embassy where they had been invited to a reception to eat caviar and meet the first trans-polar fliers.

The picture bore the label of a union printer, but did not indicate who had sent it.

Some members of congress thought that perhaps Mr. Lewis had hired a social secretary. Later they found out that the picture had been distributed by the Washington representative of the Citizens' National Committee of Johnstown.

FROM THE BULLETIN BOARD Sign in the Department of the Interior: "Visit the department's recreation room. It picks you up when the office lets you down."

MR. HOPKINS NEGOTIATES "The union," wrote the United Federal Workers of America (WHP Local No. 1), "has just learned that Mr. Hopkins is planning to leave town today for an indefinite period. We have wired Mr. Hopkins that he fulfill his responsibility to his employes by negotiating with the union before leaving town."

That was last Saturday.

But Mr. Hopkins, with Skipper Jimmy Roosevelt, had a rendezvous with the presidential yacht Potomac that he had to negotiate, too.

Autos and Roads Of the Future.

Charles F. Kettering, vice president of General Motors in charge of research, recently predicted in a speech that the car of 10 or 25 years from now will be just as different from the car of today, as our present new models are different from the cars of 1912.

But, he added, no one could predict what that car of 1960 will be like, because, if they could, automotive engineers would be building it today.

However, some of his general predictions are interesting. They were given as an indication of the changes in road and street construction, and general living conditions, which improving transportation will necessitate.

In the first place, he said, there will have to be roads provided to care for 50 per cent more motor vehicles in the next 23 years.

Then, with improved transportation, he believes population will move away from the congested city areas. He sees either a return to the smaller towns as residence centers, or an almost continuous area of homes along the routes of the highways. The workman, he says, will probably live in a home on a large plot of land 50 miles out in the country from the city where he works.

This will, of course, necessitate high speed, express highways leading in to the cities.

No Parking On City Streets.

The time is approaching when there'll be no parked automobiles on any thoroughfare built for traffic. He points out that it is absurdly expensive to use street or highway area as a parking lot. Maybe, he says, the present parkways found on many residence streets will be adapted for parking. Every large building will have to provide parking space for all its occupants and cities will have to furnish parking places, maybe two or three floors high.

He sees the eventual passing of the commercial parking garage, with the cities taking over this function as an essential free service to the public.

Biggest improvements in cars, he believes, will come in maneuverability and control, such items as steering, hill climb, top speed, vision, lighting, riding quality and ease of control. He points out that road construction must co-operate, illustrating by saying that quick stopping ability depends both upon improved braking, tire friction on the road and the type of road surface itself.

Size of cars he doesn't expect to change much. The present center of gravity is about as low as it can be brought. Lower door clearances are here to stay, he said, and this means co-operation in street construction by making the curbs lower.

Rear-Engine Possibility.

While rear-engine construction would aid road visibility, Mr. Kettering doesn't foresee this until the present weight of the motor is reduced at least one-half, because he points out, distribution of weight between front and rear axles is essential to the best maneuverability.

Tire construction today, he says, is probably ahead of car construction, so there will not be tire weaknesses to limit road speed. What tire improvement may yet come will be improved blowout resistance.

He doesn't expect cars to have speed governors. Few people, he says, desire to travel beyond 60 miles an hour and no one would consent to a governor holding top speed below 50 miles an hour. Only a small proportion of accidents occur at greater speed than 50 miles per hour, anyway, and the average highway speed is less than 45 miles per hour. Also, he correctly declares, automatic devices which limit speed or take control away from the driver may cause accidents.

Better lighting is essential for night driving. Probably congested highways will soon be illuminated, but there must be better lighting from the car itself. He talks of polarized glass, but says possibly other systems will prove better than this.

There'll be, of course, no highway grade crossings, there'll be wider, four lane highways, with angled and elevated systems for entrance from cross roads. There will be parking for trailers and other conveniences.

In fact, as Mr. Kettering said in the beginning, there are a lot of changes coming.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Saturday, July 27, 1912:

"DETROIT, July 26.—Eight aldermen and the secretary of the common council committees were arrested this afternoon on charges of accepting bribes."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Wednesday, July 27, 1887:

"West End, the quiet, pleasant southwestern suburb, was the scene of a bloody, thrilling and sensational tragedy yesterday afternoon, in which Grant Lamar, aged about ten years, and General Green Andrews, aged about thirteen years, played the leading roles. Grant stabbed General Green to death with a cheap, wooden handle pocket knife."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Inquiry Is Bust NEW YORK, July 26.—Mr. Roosevelt's tax inquiry has been a bust in some respects, but at least it has served to show that special privilege is not confined to his political opponents, and that for ways that are dark and tricks that are dirty the members of the Liberty League have nothing on the United States Department of Internal Revenue. The show would have played to much better business, but for the unfortunate intervention of the CIO trouble in the steel country, and the final defeat of the plan to pack the supreme court with political ringers.

Poor showmanship was to blame for this, because Charlie Mike and Steve Early, of the White House publicity department, would have realized that the material to be developed in the tax inquiry was too frail to contend with productions which were then running. But, at that, the management may now be glad to have been crowded out of prominence because, actually, the investigation took a bad hop and embarrassed the prosecution as badly as the defendants.

The Law At Fault The law itself was shown to be at fault, and the personal discretionary power of the reviewing agents to persecute and bulldoze reasonably decent citizens for political or other reasons was clearly disclosed, not that it needed revelation at this late date. Moreover, someone dug up and presented to Congressman Ham Fish, an old newspaper reporting that Mr. Roosevelt himself once admitted that he took advantage of a clever little scheme having the color of legality, to claim depreciation on a barn which had stood for more than a hundred years. Mr. Fish is still a Harvard sophomore in some respects, and nobody takes him very seriously, but the opposition made him look good when the committee laid down the condition that he must not refer to this or any other phase of Mr. Roosevelt's own income taxes before permitting himself to horn in.

The committee showed no such tender regard for the privacy of other Americans, and the protection for the citizen Roosevelt constituted a privilege somewhat more special than most. The fact that the clever little scheme was legal, would have nothing to do with the case and would not justify the austere refusal to examine Mr. Roosevelt's return. He himself was the force behind this inquiry, and his committee was not at all bashful about digging into the legal returns of others.

The whimsical, personal authority of treasury politicians to grant or withhold to individuals under the present law was never presented more clearly than in the case of Mrs. Roosevelt's contributions which were by-passed direct from her employers to her pet charity on official advice given by Robert Jackson, now assistant attorney general, when he was chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Bureau. There has been some mock indignation and cheap chivalry bursting in air on Mrs. R.'s behalf, but it is just too bad if an act of charity was just a leetle bit illegal.

Larceny, Terrorism The United States Treasury comes before charity, and if Mr. Jackson is unable to justify to the committee the advice by which the treasury lost a robust chunk of money, maybe his chivalry will impel him to dig up the amount himself and toss it on the blanket. The bottom fact is that the tax law means whatever any reviewer or bureau lawyer says it means, and is thus a rotten law. In other cases it is possible for a political bureaucrat to interpret the act against the taxpayer, and this makes for terrorism and larceny.

I read somewhere in the discussion of Mrs. Roosevelt's case that her friend, Miss Nancy Cook, personally received $400 out of the price of each broadcast discoursed for charity and, while the information was not complete on this point, I have been wondering if Miss Cook is an organized charity, an employe, or what, in Mr. Jackson's understanding of the act.

Far from avoiding the whole subject as though it were a religious issue, the inquiry should go into it openly and give us all a tell.

We can't all get individual advice from the chief counsel of the internal revenue. Just what does the law mean in these blurred spots, and why is it okay to expose the affairs of certain individuals, who complied with the act, but unpatriotic and indecent to ask a few questions of these others?

It Is Dangerous Still to Have Peanuts When the Others' Peanuts Are Gone

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

In the mountain resort drug store, a little girl in a sun-back dress was making her first purchase. Prompted by her nurse, she had ordered a choc'late ice cream cone, and now she extended a dimpled little hand to receive it. In the other hand she clutched a nickel.

So far she had done well, but the next step in the transaction proved too complicated for her limited training. She refused to give up her money.

It was clear that she considered herself a wronged woman. That the nice man should give her a cone seemed reasonable enough, but why in the name of common sense should she give her shiny nickel to a stranger? It was an outrage.

Soon the cone would be gone, but the memory of man's perfidy would linger and she would not soon forgive.

We expect that sort of thing from a little child; but when adults all over the earth use the same mental process to define justice in business transactions, the situation is discouraging and alarming.

A short time ago, Palestine was invaded by Zionists who came with money in their hands instead of a sword and settled down peacefully to grow up with the country.

When the money was offered for farm lands, the Arab owners couldn't resist. Thousands of them sold out, laughing in their sleeves at such easy victims, and for a little while they felt rich.

But soon the money was gone and the Zionists had the farms and there was such a protest as Allah never before had heard.

"These aliens," the Arabs now wail, "have taken our farms from us. They are stealing our land."

That way of thinking isn't confined to Palestine. An American or two, when times were good, borrowed another man's money and spent it in riotous living and then demanded a new law to save the old homestead from Shylock when pay day came. Any person who wanted his money back was an enemy of mankind.

And today you may read harsh criticism of such men as Chrysler, who "got their money by taking it from other men." Nothing is said about what the other men got in return.

No wonder we have "social unrest' when we have childish, one-sided thinking. Even nations think it unfair to reap what they sow, and high and low would eat their cake and have it too.

It is a very old idea, but our fathers considered it simple.

No Butter At Home

PARIS.—The Prague Volkszeutung publishes the following report from its special correspondent in Berlin: I have obtained from a quarter in close touch with the German Foreign Ministry a reliable estimate of the cost up to now of German intervention in Spain. "By February at latest," I was told by a man who holds a high official position, "we shall have sunk half a billion marks ($200,000,000)." He feels sure, too, that the adventure will turn out badly for Germany. General Franco's "purchases" amounted up to that time to some 280,000,000 marks for army stores of the most varied sorts, all provided on credit by Germany, since Franco has nothing to pay with but blank cheques in the form of promises to meet German colonial demands.

The direct expenditure on the equipment and maintenance of German troops is estimated to amount to 75,000,00 marks. A soldier with rifle and full equipment has cost by the time he sets out for Spain some 850 to 1,000 marks, according to a calculation made for the Ministry of Finance. The operations of German warships in Spanish waters also represent a heavy burden on the taxpayer. Extra expenditure already incurred on maintenance and cruising exceeds 30,000,000 marks. To this have to be added appalling sums for staff expenditure for "propaganda" and for "other expenses" of undisclosed nature. In the aggregate, all this belligerent expenditure amounts already, according to the correspondent's informant, to more than 400,000,000. (This figure has nearly doubled since February). Part of it has had to be paid for with foreign exchange. This is obtained on the strength of the assets abroad of big German firms, who are vitally interested in getting control of Spain's raw materials.

The Sense Of Smell.

The Council of the Smell Society, a highly respectable body, consisting of wine experts, tea-tasters, gourmets, doctors and research chemists, who are preparing a list of new words to describe smells, have entered upon a subject which has long offered a serious problem to scientists. What is smell? Does the old theory hold good that a piece of musk, for instance, will give off a faint odor in the shape of minute particles for a thousand years without any appreciable diminution in bulk, or is the smell "etherborne"?

It is a curious thing that not only materials, such as onions, have a distinct smell, but, for some at least, men and towns. James Mitchell, a blind man of Nairn, was able to recognize different persons by smelling. Indian travelers have recorded that certain natives who habitually abstain from animal food have a sense of smell which is so exquisitely delicate that they can tell from which well a vessel of water has been drawn. The guides who accompany travelers on the route from Aleppo to Babylon are said to be able, by smelling the desert sand, to tell how near they are to the latter place. Dr. Dan McKenzie, the author of a book on aromatics and the soul, was of opinion that the smell of London had changed in the last generation from faintly acid, with a mixture of horses and harness, to a mixture of tar and lubricating oil. Paris was one-half wood smoke, one-quarter roasting coffee, and one-quarter drains.

Rome he found to be a city of candles and incense, mingled with the dry mustiness of crumbling skeletons. In Edinburgh you encountered the smell of old Scotland, and in Glasgow damp soot struggled with the smell of the Broomielaw for the mastery. As for Dublin, it mingled the warm, rich aroma of Guinnes' brewery with "the cold smell of a corpse from the river Liffey."

Talmudic Tales

By DAVID MORANTZ.

They left him to his own devices, expressing their doubts, though, in no uncertain terms, because they were positive he could do nothing with the rock since their combined efforts had failed to move it in the slightest.

The young man immediately set to work with a hammer and chisel clipping off the rock piece by piece. Far into the night he labored at this. Taking a few hours off for sleep, he resumed his work the next day, and, stopping once more for food, he continued his constant chipping, chipping, chipping until Rabbi Akiba and his class returned at the time stated. He had by this time reduced the stone to such size that he was able, before their very eyes, to roll it into the river.

Rabbi Akiba was much elated to find at least one of his pupils who had been able to understand the motive of the apparently impossible task he had imposed upon his class the day before.

"It gives me great pleasure to present this prize to you," he said, "because as valuable as it is, the lesson you have learned should be many times more valuable to you.

"I hope this has taught each of you that perseverance and industry intelligently directed can overcome the greatest obstacles."

WANTS FEWER AND BETTER TEXTBOOKS

Editor Constitution: Now that the stage is all set for free textbooks, I am wondering if the appointees for selecting the books realize what a responsibility has fallen upon them. Textbooks should be selected by connoisseurs in textbook technique. Many books will be found vague in directions and point the way to nowhere. A textbook, especially for the higher grades, should be so complete that the pupil can find his way around with little help. Textbooks are to the pupil what tools are to the mechanic. After all, the main work of the teacher is to show the student how to use his tools.

We must avoid buying too many books. They tell us that a literary production that cannot be read twice with increasing interest is not worth reading. It is the custom now to skim quickly through one textbook and reach for another. My plea is for fewer and better textbooks that may be reviewed again and again with added profit.

The present quibbling over the price of the books is pathetic. As a taxpayer, I am as interested as anyone else in economy, but quality rates first. If I were buying an automobile, I would get an expert to select it for me, as I am ignorant of the requirements, and the cost would be a second consideration. I would use my car a few years, but the children will use the contents of their textbooks a lifetime. Avoid the penny-wise and pound-foolish program. My first Latin grammar cost $2.50. It did valiant service for me and the other children of the family, and today there is not a leaf missing. Consider the ways of the free textbook. It travels from house to house, finding lodgment in the homes of the rich and the hovels of the poor, in well-scrubbed cottages and disease-ridden cabins, the active life of the wanderer being a very few years. If the binding is not strong the book soon goes to pieces, and what can be more depressing than association with a ragged book!

Anything labeled "Free" always gets a big hand from "We, the People," but I warn that unless the selection of textbooks in this new venture is made with extreme care, there will be a lot of questions to answer when the rank and file discover what has happened.

WHY BIBLES FOR SCHOOLS?

Editor Constitution: Editorially, your paper is usually alert to all matters wherein public welfare is concerned and, for that reason, I am at a loss to understand why you overlooked the significance of the resolution of the newly created state board of education, whereby provision is made for the purchase of 800,000 Bibles—same to be donated to the school children of Georgia as a means of combatting Communism.

As a matter of fact, there is not one child in 10,000 within the borders of our state who has not access to the Bible, and, aside from this fact, no one can truthfully say that the Bible is a legitimate textbook for our schools as, to teach the same would be contrary to the supreme law of our land—the constitution of the United States.

Editor Constitution: I have read your editorial entitled "Crimes by Parolees," which appeared in the July 14, 1937, issue of The Atlanta Constitution and again I want to thank you for pointing out for the benefit of your readers some of the difficulties with which efficient law enforcement is faced. It is believed that a proper administration of the parole system would be of material advantage toward removing our crime problem.

KEEPING COOL NO PROBLEM TO TROPICS EXPLORER!

Mr. Anthony Fiala, noted jungle explorer, says: "When I hit the jungle trail tea is a No. 1 necessity. I vitalize with tea to beat fatigue, nervous tension, sweltering heat. Tea is the jungle belt's most popular drink. Tea gets you cool and keeps you cool far longer than other so-called cooling drinks."

The difference between tea and other so-called cooling drinks is this: Tea does more than merely quench thirst. Tea actually LOWERS body temperature. Its cooling effect is more LASTING.

Besides its cooling, vitalizing effects, iced tea tastes delicious. To get real flavor and VITALITY, select a good brand of Orange Pekoe that comes from India, Ceylon, and Java-Sumatra.

FARM GROUP ASKS CONTROL BILL NOW

Regional Bureau Leaders Called to Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—The American Farm Bureau Federation decided today to make a last stand before the house agriculture committee Tuesday for enactment of a crop control bill at this session of congress.

Regional farm bureau leaders from all parts of the country responded to a call by President Edward A. O'Neal to help draft an 11th-hour appeal.

An all-day conference was spurred to action by a statement from Speaker Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, no decision had been reached as to whether administration leaders would press for new farm legislation at this session.

"We feel," said O'Neal, "that the administration wants to respond to national demands. We represent the farmers and we know that we speak for them when we say they want this bill."

The Farm Bureau is supporting a proposal favored by Secretary Wallace to combine crop control features of the old AAA with principles of the "ever-normal" granary.

Georgian Braves Pistol To Prevent Escape by Logic

MACON, Ga., July 26.—(AP)—An armed federal prisoner's attempt to escape the fifth-story Bibb county jail failed today when Jailer T. J. McCommon stood his ground against the muzzle of a revolver.

Jailer McCommon identified the prisoner as Charles J. Muse, 26, and said he had just undergone an examination by the jail physician, and was returning toward his cell.

McCommon said that instead of following a trusty back into the cell block, Muse drew a .38 calibre revolver from his shirt front, pointing it at McCommon, who stood at the top of the stairs.

Calling to Emmett Earl Happold, trusty who keeps keys to the outer gate, McCommon told him to lock the gate and run for help.

McCommon then told Muse:

"You can kill me if you want to, but the keys are gone and you can't get out. If you kill me you'll go to the electric chair and you won't get out of here."

Muse surrendered the fully loaded pistol and was taken to his cell, the jailer said.

PAST LIFE ESCAPES AMNESIA VICTIM

Physical Condition Improves After Operation.

Memory of his past still escaped Horace V. Easterling yesterday though hospital attaches announced marked improvement in his physical condition.

Easterling, the amnesia victim from Holly Bluff, Miss., was slowly recovering from the delicate brain operation performed Saturday but nurses said he is not able to recognize his mother and sisters who are here with him. He conversed clearly on things that have happened since his admittance to Crawford W. Long hospital, but still cannot remember any of his past life.

"Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth."

Even if the Hebrew prophets had not told him so Franklin Roosevelt would have discovered this in his own experience. In his presidential career he has been blessed as often by what has been denied him as by what has been given him. If the supreme court hadn't thrown out some of his recovery organizations just when their usefulness was gone and their harmfulness was beginning, he would have been hard put to be rid of them in face of popular demand for their emoluments. And now, if congress had not refused him his court reform proposals after he had won what he really wanted from them and was going on with them unnecessarily and unwisely, he could never have hoped to regain in victory what he is very likely to regain in defeat.

The Lord giveth, the Lord taketh away—and there is profit for Mr. Roosevelt in both operations.

Our own prophecy, without pejudice, is that unless his advisors go a little crazy again with the summer heat, the President's popularity will mount once more now and leave some of the lip servants who have thought it safe to withdraw the service in a most embarrassing position. If he had won the court fight it would have been hard for some who have been with him on other matters but bitterly against him on this ever to forgive him. But now that he has lost the fight these will be remembering other causes for which he stands and disliking the company they have had to keep against him on the court bill.

If Dr. Gallup will get out his little thermometer on the matter we believe it will show the country developing a temperature in favor of Franklin Roosevelt again.

Anent recent comment here on the obnoxious candor of these new-fangled candid cameras, our friend Phil Barney, of the Tampa Tribune, wonders "if a fellow can't get his face copyrighted." Columnist Lucile Trice Carten (whose pictures show her beautiful and wise), suggests in the (Tampa) Saturday Evening News, however, that no one "with a drop of printer's ink flowing through his veins can object to any sort of publicity short of libel." The trouble is, Miss Carten, that Mr. Barney and we lack your obviously exceptional equipment for meeting victoriously the candid camera at its candidest.

Columnist C. H. Phillips, of the Meridian Star, agrees with us on the awfulness of writing something that is meant to be a purely general observation and then finding that someone you hadn't the least in mind takes it as a personal reflection. But he doesn't say what to do in such cases. The offended party will be even more offended if you swear you weren't even aware of his or her existence when you wrote the thing.

If Woodrow Wilson were living today he would enjoy hearing young President Robert Hutchins, of the University of Chicago, use his old phrase about genuine education. "Teach them to live, not merely to make a living." Wilson told his professors at Princeton. "St. Johns," says President Hutchins in comment on the little college at Annapolis upon whose board of governors he has consented to serve, "is an excellent place to try out the idea of educating people to live instead of to earn a living."

The rightness of Wilson then and Hutchins now becomes more and more apparent with the promise of increased leisure the machine age brings or should bring to justify itself. As making a living becomes easier and easier knowing how to live will become more and more necessary.

Real Fauntleroy Was Not a Sissy, Illustrator Says

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—Reginald Birch, who drew the pictures of "Lord Fauntleroy" and his famous curls 50 years ago, said today that he first met the subject of his drawings, Vivian Burnett, years later as a fellow member of the Players' Club when the latter was middle-aged "and bald."

Burnett died yesterday at the helm of his yawl in Long Island Sound of a heart attack after he had directed the rescue of four persons clinging to a capsized sailboat.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett wrote the story of the youth who became a classic symbol of the goody-goody boy, and in 1886 St. Nicholas magazine commissioned Birch to illustrate it. Birch then was not long in this country from England.

"Mrs. Burnett had sent along with the manuscript a photograph of her two boys to show how Lord Fauntleroy should look," Birch related.

They wore long curls, velvet suits, lace collars.

"I toned the costume down," Birch said in his still marked English accent. "It was a bit too much.

"But the Fauntleroy of the story was no sissy, in spite of the curls. There was once another character with long hair—Samson. I've always held that Cedric Fauntleroy and Sampson had something else in common—both were badly treated by the Philistines."

Mr. Burnett had said he spent his life living down the character. "I got myself just as damn dirty as other boys," he had recounted. And he went on to become a newspaperman and author. In 1924 he wrote a biography of his mother. It was titled "The Romantic Lady."

COLLIER DOUBTS NAVAJO DIVISION

Commissioner Discounts Political Party Prediction.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—John W. Collier, commissioner of Indian affairs, discounted today predictions that the Navajo nation would split into political factions as a result of dispute over Indian office policies.

Commenting on the formation of the "Navajo Progressive League" led by J. C. Morgan, Navajo lay missionary, Collier said that Morgan and his faction "have been licked by the facts" before the senate Indian affairs committee and "thrashed" by the majority of their own people back home.

"If Morgan wants to form a political party," said the Indian commissioner, "there is nothing to keep him from doing so. It will cause us little concern here."

Morgan seeks the removal of Collier. One of the demands of the missionary's followers is "self-government and control of their own lands and property."

DUCHESS, 2 CHILDREN MISS INJURY IN WRECK

LONDON, July 26.—(AP)—The Duchess of Kent and her two small children narrowly escaped injury tonight when their motor car collided with another at Wrotham Hill, in Kent.

Windows of the royal car were smashed and the Duchess had to send to Maidstone for another car to continue her trip to her summer cottage in Sandwich.

The Duchess, wife of the youngest brother of King George VI, is the former Princess Marina, of Greece. Her children are Prince Edward, 21 months old, and Princess Alexandra, 7 months old.

The Duke was not in the car.

PICKPOCKETS IN BANK TAKE $110 FROM MAN

Pickpockets lifted $110 from C. Kleiderer, 74-year-old white man, of 68 Cone street, in the lobby of the Citizens & Southern National Bank yesterday afternoon, he reported to police.

Cashing two checks at the bank, Kleiderer said he attempted to leave through a swinging door but was blocked for a moment by a man who dropped a pencil. As he waited for the man to recover it, Kleiderer said another man bumped into him from the rear. When he was out on the street his pocket book and his $110 were gone.

TAMMANY MUDDLED BY DOOLING'S DEATH

Democratic Leader's Passing Leaves Mayoralty Fight in Chaos.

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—A chaotic mayoralty battle with party and factional lines long since badly tangled was dealt a jarring blow today by the death of Tammany Hall Chieftain James J. Dooling, 44, leader of the Manhattan Democratic forces.

Dooling succumbed to a stroke at his Queens home only a few days after, playing a lone hand, he mustered enough strength in a climactic factional fight to set forth Anti-New Deal Senator Royal S. Copeland as Tammany's mayoralty candidate.

The victory was his last in a long series of revolts that have rent the Hall since a stroke made him a virtual invalid, but a fighting one, two years ago.

Tammany's indorsement of Copeland, instigated and carried by Dooling, was a touch-and-go affair in the face of the other four county Democratic leaders' backing of Grover Whalen.

Succeeded by Hall.

Dooling's death leaves the strength of Copeland's candidacy dependent of Tammany's unpredictable internal developments.

Dooling is succeeded temporarily automatically as Hall head by Executive Committee Chairman William P. Kenneally, an anti-Copeland faction leader, with the election of a permanent successor postponed until after Dooling's funeral Thursday.

Conspicuous candidates for the post are Representative Christopher D. Sullivan, of the second assembly district, and United States Marshal John J. Kelly.

Sullivan is backed by Albert Marinelli, prominent in the anti-Dooling faction, and Kelly by James J. Hines, lawyer and long one of Tammany's most powerful figures.

LaGuardia Balks.

Meanwhile another section of the mayoralty field was in extreme disorder over Mayor F. H. LaGuardia's clash yesterday with Republican Leader Kenneth Simpson.

LaGuardia, indorsed by a substantial liberal Republican bloc as a fusion entry, balked at the proposal he should run in the Republican primaries with a slate dictated by Simpson, although the latter's selections were Joseph McGoldrick for controller and Newbold Morris for council head, old allies of the mayor.

Copeland has announced his intention of running in the Republican primary, and up to a few days ago LaGuardia had said he would accept the support of any groups, with the possibility he might enter the Democratic lists if the Tammany row produced an opportune multiple party split.

DECATUR SUNFLOWER 10 1-2 IN. IN DIAMETER

Super-sunflowers grow on the edge of Decatur.

C. R. Broyles, mechanical employe of The Constitution, exhibited a mammoth seed pod measuring 10 1-2 inches in diameter, weighing nearly three pounds, which he found yesterday. The seed pod was too heavy for the supporting plant and was face down on the ground.

The sunflower patch, he said, grows wild in a thicket between Atlanta and Decatur.

FORGET YOU NEVER

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

INSTALLMENT XXX.

She looked across the table. "We haven't met before but our lives certainly have been entangled. It's funny you never heard about me. I—I could tell you things that . . . well, you wouldn't believe, things about Thelma and David and Neil Dane. You knew Neil, didn't you?"

Eden's heart raced. "Yes," she said softly. "I knew him. But what are you talking about?" Could she bear to hear the love story of Neil and Thelma? It would revive the hurt again. "Please tell me."

Pushing the plate aside, Joanna lighted a cigaret. "I'm not sure I ought to tell you. I'll be violating confidences and breaking promises, and I'm a pretty loyal person." She lifted her voice. "Oh, but I'm sick of all the pretense and lies! You were the cause of it, and you've been nicely kept in the dark!" She nodded. "But I think you should know, and a few of my reasons for telling you are selfish."

Eden's voice was breathless. "Please tell me, I don't know anything. I haven't the least idea what you're talking about." She thought, "All I know is that my happiness was smashed to earth, that my heart has been sick, and that Neil is lost. . . .

Nervously Joanna tapped the ashes from her cigaret. "You probably heard or read in the paper that Thelma shot herself because she and Neil had quarreled." She lifted her dark eyes. "But it wasn't Neil! It was David with whom she quarreled, and it was over you! Thelma was jealous. She's crazy about David. Neil came in and took the blame publicly because he knew that publicity would hurt David and because of some favor David had done for him once! He felt obligated. And it worked out all right because Neil had been seen with me a good bit and people thought it was Thelma, not I! Oh, it was a ghastly mess! And people believed that newspaper story! They thought that all the time Neil and Thelma had been going together. And David let Neil do it. He wasn't man enough to face the situation himself. His precious career, his precious name, meant too much to him. That—that's the story. I didn't think you knew about it. Why should you? David wouldn't want to appear a coward before you!"

Eden seemed scarcely to breathe. Her thoughts were swirling. "I know why," she thought. "David saved Neil from drowning when they were little boys." She asked, "Then Neil never loved Thelma. . . ."

Again Joanna tapped the ashes from her cigaret. "No. You see Neil and . . . I . . ."

Eden said, "Oh, I see. I understand."

There were tears in Joanna's eyes. "I feel cheap and mean for telling you. But I've despised David since that night. A man has a right to change his mind but David wasn't—wasn't nice about it. That's the least a man can do, don't you think, to a girl who has adored him and who thought she was going to marry him? But he didn't spare her feelings. I don't condone what she did. It was silly and mad. I've despised him, but Thelma hasn't. She's coming to New York today to look for work but her heart isn't in it. She's disagreeable and moody at times, but the one fine thing about her is that she loves David completely and faithfully in spite of everything. She'd make him a wonderful wife. So, you see," she said, meeting Eden's astonished eyes, "a selfish motive did prompt my telling you. Because if you don't marry him perhaps he'll. . ."

"Go back to Thelma?"

She lowered her head. "Yes. I told you for her sake. You probably think I'm. . . ."

"No," said Eden. "She's your sister."

Eden rose, leaving her breakfast untouched. Opening her brown leather bag, she took out money and left it on the table. All at once she felt as if she was suffocating. Joanna's speaking to her was not a gesture of friendliness! It was to turn her against David so that he would go back to Thelma. That much out of the chaos in her mind was clear. And also was it not quite clear that Neil loved Joanna? Yes, quite clear. . .

Many people were on the street now.

Joanna said, "I like you, Eden." She wondered if she should tell her what was foremost in her mind this morning. But instead she asked, "Do you think you'll marry David now?"

"I—I don't know what to think," Eden said. She moved away a little. "Thank you—for telling me. Good-by."

She walked hurriedly, seeing nothing. But a few blocks from Kay's apartment she began to walk slowly and by the time she reached the apartment and went in, the tumult in her mind had cleared a little. It was all very simply, really, except for one tormenting question she could not answer. "If Neil loved Joanna, why did he go away or why didn't he take her as he promised to take me?"

But there was still another question. When David came this afternoon, what would she say to him.

Kay and Vicky were having breakfast at the small table by the window when Eden came in.

"Out walking?" Kay asked. She look slim and young in green velvet pajamas. "Come and have some breakfast. Do you mind if Vicky and I desert you today? My boss and his wife are so anxious to meet her."

Eden said, "I don't mind at all. And I've had breakfast thanks."

"It's begun to rain," Vicky said. "I hope your boss and his wife like me, mother."

Before they left Vicky came to Eden and put her arms around her.

"I was awfully happy with you and Cousin Martha, Eden. You were awfully good to me. Tell Dee I—I don't hate her any more. "Her sweet red mouth curved. "The whole thing seems kind of silly now that I'm away from it and with mother again."

Through the long morning and early afternoon Eden waited, wearing the skirt of her brown suit and a yellow silk blouse fastened at her throat by a large glittering pin.

It was 3 o'clock when the apartment bell rang and she crossed the room and opened the door and saw David.

"It's raining," he said cheerfully. "Would you still like to go to Connecticut?"

"No. I'd like to talk to you, David."

He jerked up his head and frowned. Then he smiled. "You sound very serious. I thought I was the one who was going to do the talking today."

They sat opposite each other—Eden on the blue divan, David on the rust-colored chair. He lighted a cigaret and Eden clasped her hands.

"I ran into Joanna King on Fifth avenue this morning, just as she was coming from church," she said evenly. "I didn't know Thelma had a sister. We stopped and talked and went to a restaurant for breakfast. She told me—everything."

He stared, Joanna had not told him at dinner that she had seen Eden.

Eden said, "I know you've just had dinner with her. She told me she was meeting you. I had to tell you I knew, David! I had to! It—it changes everything."

He moved restlessly. "You mean you know what Neil did for me and that I caused him to lose his job? That, too? But how did Joanna know?"

Eden felt a chill sweep through her, then a flame.

"Yes," she said tightly. "But suppose you tell me about it." He had caused Neil to lose his job!

Ashamed, he looked down at the cigaret smoking between his fingers.

"Yes, I had him fired. I have a friend who is an executive in his company. I did it because I knew you and Neil loved each other." He glanced up. "I've known that all the time. And I knew he'd never ask you to marry him if he didn't have a job and that he'd have to go away to look for one. That was rotten considering what he did for me, wasn't it? But I did that before he came back from New York. Then, after he had let the world think that Thelma shot herself because of him, I didn't have the courage to tell him what I'd done. But men do things like that for girls they're crazy about." His brows drew together. "But how did Joanna know about that?"

"She didn't," Eden said. "She didn't tell me that. You did. You gave away your own secret."

For some time they just looked at each other.

At last she said, "You betrayed your best friend. Neil thinks you're the finest man alive. He told me that once. But you were thinking only of yourself. You didn't stop to think that the two King girls and Neil and I were involved, too. I loved Neil, David. I loved him terribly. I liked you. It never went beyond that." Her voice shook. "You don't realize what you've done to all of us!"

UNCLE RAY'S Corner

LIFE OF THE RED FOX.
II—Food.

Foxes can move through the grass with almost no noise. They are so silent in their motions that they can steal up on mice without giving alarm, and catch them very much as a cat does.

English Farmer with Tame Fox on His Shoulder.

Cats usually capture their prey in houses or barns, but foxes do their work out-of-doors. They like to eat field mice, and stalk through bushes or grass in pursuit of them. Sometimes the grass is tall, sometimes it is no more than six inches high. One man saw a fox catch seven mice in a few minutes.

The squeak of a field mouse tells the fox where it is, and seems to be a most welcome sound. Some hunters make squeaking noises like those of a mouse to lead the fox to come within range.

We have spoken about the habit of robbing henroosts which some foxes have. It would be a mistake to suppose that this is the general habit. Most of their food is obtained in the midst of nature. It is true that foxes like to live in half-settled regions, and are not common in deep forests, but their diet is composed mainly of wild things—insects, fish, frogs, small furry animals, and game birds.

It may seem strange to think of a fox catching crickets, but it does so now and then. Twisting and turning, it shoots out a paw at great speed and puts it down on a cricket. Then it lowers its mouth and eats the insect. Grasshoppers and May beetles are other insects caught and eaten by foxes. In this way (as well as in catching mice) they are of help to farmers.

Among the birds eaten by foxes are quail and grouse, but some hunters say that foxes do not destroy a large number of them. Woodchucks, ground squirrels and rabbits have to watch out for the red fox, who likes to hunt them and take them home for his family's food supply.

Some foxes eat berries and other fruit. Blueberries, grapes and even apples are on their diet list.

A red fox family often has a "storage room" in its underground home. This is several feet from the nest. Foxes also bury food under heaps of leaves, or in small holes they dig in the ground and cover with soil. A fish, a muskrat or some other animal may not be needed on the day it is slain, but a week or two later it will be greatly enjoyed.

Foxes are not often kept as pets, but in a few cases they have become tame and friendly. An English farmer in the county of Sussex tamed a fox, and it followed him around like a dog. It would perch on his shoulder, and would go with him in a little boat when he went out to fish.

Large numbers of foxes are raised on fox farms, but they cannot be called "pets." They are kept to be killed for their fur! As captives, they eat biscuits as well as fruit and other things given to them.

Soap Box Derby Race Finalists Are Feted at Banquet

More than 50 finalists of the fourth annual Constitution-Chevrolet Motor Company Soap Box Derby attended a banquet at the Atlanta Athletic Club given by The Constitution and the Atlanta Chevrolet dealers last night. Shown above is the group of enthusiastic youngsters in the banquet hall, just before leaving for Loew's Grand Theater, where the major prizes were awarded by H. M. VanDevender, director of the Derby, and Eddie Pentecost, manager of the theater.

Major Prizes in Soap Box Derby Given Winners at Grand Theater

Awarding of Victory Tokens Follows Banquet for Finalists at Atlanta Athletic Club; Wyndal Carter Adjudged Owner of Best-Built Car.

Last night on the stage of Loew's Grand theater, the major prizes were awarded the winners of the fourth annual Constitution-Chevrolet Motor Company Soap Box Derby. The awarding of the prizes followed a banquet given all the finalists by The Constitution and the Atlanta Chevrolet dealers at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Hugh Flury Jr., the winner of the northeast Georgia championship and the Atlanta representative to the All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron, Ohio, August 15, received the Loew's Grand first prize, "The Leo Special," a miniature, motor-driven automobile.

Other Awards.

In addition, he also was presented with a complete woodworking outfit, given by Atlanta Chevrolet dealers, the M. E. Coyle championship trophy, a complete clothing outfit, given by Davison-Paxon Company and 30 quarts of Green Spot orange juice, given by Foremost Dairies.

The winner of the best built car prize was not announced until immediately before the presentation, coming as a complete surprise to Wyndal Carter, whose blue streamlined racer was adjudged best by the judges.

Wyndal received a miniature car similar to Hugh's, which was given by the NuGrape Botting Company, and a five-dollar meal ticket, given by York Coffee Shop. Second place went to Albert Clarke, who was awarded the Gulf Refining Company's prize—a gold watch.

Picture Outfit.

Third place went to last year's hard luck racer, Preston Mauldin. The prize was a complete moving picture outfit, given by Diamond Jewelry Company.

Paul Trammell, second place winner in the Atlanta race, received a Ranger bicycle, given by Pig'n Whistle, the John Sloan trophy, and 20 quarts of Green Spot orange juice. Robert Hamilton was given the Berry Cohen award—a bicycle, and 10 quarts of Green Spot. He was the third place winner in the Atlanta race.

William Harvey, fourth in this year's race and second last year, received a RCA radio, given by Kay Jewelers; a pair of shoes, given by George Muse Company, and 10 quarts of Green Spot.

Best Steering Device.

Harold Gruman's car was adjudged to have the best steering device and he received a wrist watch, given by the Belle Isle Garage. The twin cars of Robert Dewald and Paul Dewald had the best brakes and each received a tennis racquet, given by Raleigh Drennon.

The winners of the other northeast Georgia finals and the runner-ups in the grand finals were also given prizes. Hansford Small, of Gainesville, was awarded with a Delco radio by United Motors, and a Brownie camera by George Poulos.

Hamil Murray, of Athens, was given a wrist watch by the J. W. Boone Jewelry Company, and a Brownie camera. Fourth place prize went to Billy Barfield, of Griffin. He received an airplane and motor set given by Miller's, Incorporated.

Flury's Comment.

Hugh Flury, when awarded with his prizes on the stage of Loew's, was asked by Eddie Pentecost, manager, how he felt. To which he replied, "I haven't ever felt this way before."

On the stage, a short talk given by C. M. Snyder, advertising manager of The Constitution, who congratulated the boys on their success and wished them more success next year. The prizes were awarded by H. M. VanDevender, director of the Soap Box Derby. Mr. Pentecost awarded the "Leo Special."

At the banquet, at which more than 50 enthusiastic youngsters, the Atlanta Chevrolet dealers were introduced to the boys. Tommy Howard, last year's winner, was present. Harry Murray, the 210-pound boy who has a car that weighs only 40, was presented with the prize for the most unique racer.

Robert and Paul Dewald, of Lakeland, received the prize for the boys who came longest distance to enter the Atlanta race. They were given lapel watches.

COURT BILL DEFEAT REVIVES UTILITIES

Executives Believe Adverse Proposals Will Meet Resistance in Congress.

(Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, July 26.—Renewed interest in public utility stocks is a gesture of relief over the defeat of the court bill. The public utility holding company bill and other measures which come up for consideration in the fall have overshadowed all the favorable factors in the public utility picture for some time, causing timidity on the part of investors and acting as check to corporate expansion to take care of new projects.

The resistance shown in congress to the administration on the court bill leads public utility executives to believe that adverse proposals affecting their business will also be thrown out.

The utility companies are now said to have revived plans for many major projects that had been temporarily held up and manufacturers report a strong inquiry for new heavy equipment. Considerable expansion is necessary to take care of the increasing demand for power.

If serious work begins on the much needed improvements in the public utility field, the copper companies will be the first to feel the effect of the business.

The utility companies are among the largest buyers of copper. According to Dow-Jones, last year the light and power lines took 72,000 short tons of the metal or 9.61 per cent of the output. This figure compares with 33,000 tons in 1933, or 7.95 per cent of the output, and with 130,000 tons or 13 6-10 per cent in 1930. The telephone and telegraph companies used 122,000 tons of copper in 1930 compared with only 26,000 tons last year.

ATLANTAN IS INJURED AS CAR CRASHES POLE

Injured when his automobile skidded off the new Macon highway and crashed into a telephone pole, George Henson, 41, of 632 Central avenue, was admitted to Grady hospital last night in serious condition.

Hospital attaches said a vertebrae in Henson's back was fractured. Patrolman Eddie Hughes, stationed at the hospital, said Henson was brought in by passersby but that details of the accident were not learned. The wreck occurred between Constitution and Conley.

EARTHQUAKE REGISTERED.

PASADENA, Cal., July 26.—(AP) The Carnegie Institute seismological laboratory reported it recorded an earthquake of "considerable intensity" at 12:08.22 p. m. (10.08.22 a. m., Atlanta time) today. The quake was about 5,600 miles from here.

GENERAL SUMNER DIES.

HAPEVILLE FIGHT STORIES AT ODDS

to elect a successor to City Clerk A. M. Simpson, resigned. When Hapeville Policeman E. L. Hopper, Walker's son-in-law, was elevated to the city clerkship, witnesses said Mullins declared "they are just railroading him in."

Further remarks made by Mullins on the floor of council caused Walker to say, "let's settle these personal matters later," it was testified.

After the meeting, Walker said he asked Mullins if he wanted to "see me now," and Mullins replied in the affirmative.

"You tried to make me out a damned liar," Walker testified he said.

Swung at Councilman.

Mullins took off his glasses and swung at his brother councilman, it was testified. Some witnesses declared Walker was advancing on Mullins at the time.

In the melee which followed, some witnesses tried to interfere and others attempted to allow the fight to proceed.

From this part of the fight, Acting Chief of Police J. W. Jones yesterday made disorderly conduct charges against Garrard, Adams and Gregory Mullins. Garrard said he attempted to separate the fighters and that Adams grabbed him around the neck. Hopper said Mullins grabbed him.

Large Crowd Attends.

A crowd so large court had to be moved in the city auditorium heard the three and a half hour trial last night.

Walker, in testifying about Saturday's council meeting, said Garrard had moved to increase the new city clerk's salary from $90 to $115, or $10 less than Simpson drew. This, and Hopper's election, together with controversy over Hapeville waterworks within council, brought on the bitter words that led to the fight, witness declared.

OPPOSITION MOUNTS TO BAILEY CHOICE

County Committees Plan Meetings To Force Arkansas Primary Vote.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 26.—(AP)—Opposing factions marked time today in the party dispute arising from action of the state Democratic committee in nominating Governor Carl E. Bailey to the Joe T. Robinson senate vacancy without ordering a primary.

Those who had urged a primary, as opposed to a committee nomination, awaited called meetings of county Democratic committees to determine local sentiment with respect to the committee action.

In Saline county, the Democratic committee was called to meet Wednesday to discuss the proposal of State Committeeman Prather the action of the state committee in making the nomination be appealed to a state convention of Democrats.

State Representative Coffelt, of Saline, who announced that Greene, Franklin, Faulkner and Benton counties had joined Saline in protesting the committee nomination, said he expected "25 or 30 other county committees" to meet and discuss the convention proposal this week.

SENATE TO LAUNCH PAY-HOUR DEBATES

by the full committee tomorrow.

An attempt to broaden the measure on the floor was announced today by Senator Minton, Democrat, Indiana. He said he would seek to add an amendment requiring concurrence by two-thirds of the supreme court to invalidate laws of congress.

La Follette Quashes Stories.

At the same time Senator La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin, quashed stories speculating on his appointment to the high court.

The Wisconsin senator spent the week end with President Roosevelt on a fishing trip, but said there was no significance in the trip.

He said that due to an agreement that objection by a single senator would block any addition to the legislative program agreed upon it did not seem expeditious to add receivership legislation to the "so-called compromise bill."

Ashurst Questioned.

Senator Schwellenbach, Democrat, Washington, questioned Ashust's statement there was a unanimous consent agreement covering the extent of the bill.

Ashurst replied there was an understanding to that effect in the judiciary committee.

GEORGIA SOLON ATTACKS WAGE-HOUR BILL

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—Representative Carl Vinson, Milledgeville, Ga., Democrat, described the wage-hour bill today as "the worst type of legislation" that has been presented to congress during his 23 years as a member.

He declared it would place labor and industry at the mercy of a Washington board.

"It is not to the best interests of labor or industry," he said. "It is a gold brick for labor, and would paralyze industry, particularly southern industry."

PAY-HOUR BILL HELD MENACE TO SOUTH.

MONROE, La., July 26.—(AP)—A warning that enactment of the Black-Connery wages and hours bill now before congress would work "untold disaster to small business plants and to farm operations throughout the south," was voiced by W. T. Murray, president of the Tremont Lumber Company at a meeting of representatives of various manufacturing interests, including the Southern Pine Association here today.

"The present bill will affect every employer of one or more persons in his manufacturing operations," Mr. Murray said. "It will prove a death blow to many small interests which will be unable to compete with larger concerns that will be forced to mechanize their plants in an effort to reduce labor volume.

"The law, if enacted will cause vast unemployment and bankruptcy for some industries. This is particularly true of the lumber business in the south."

MARINES CALLED IN CRISIS AT PEIPING

at Langfang, halfway point on the Tientsin-Peiping railroad.

The Peiping clash came after the Japanese high command had issued an ultimatum that was said to have plunged the North China situation into acute danger of war.

Despair of Peace.

Spokesmen for both governments said they despaired of preserving peace.

(At Tokyo, Foreign Minister Koki Hirota, in outlining the tense situation for parliament, declared "There exists the danger of an untoward outbreak at any moment.")

The ultimatum was issued by Lieutenant General Kiyoshi Katsuki, commander of the Japanese North China army, to General Sung Chehyuan, commander of the Chinese 29th army and chairman of the Hopeh-Chahar council. It demanded:

1. Withdrawal southward to Changsintien of all units of the 37th division of the Chinese 29th army in the Lukouchiao-Wanpingsien area, southwest of Peiping, by noon Tuesday.

2. Withdrawal of all other 37th division units in the Peiping or the west barracks garrison to the west bank of the Yungting river by noon Wednesday.

Noncompliance, General Katsuki warned, will call for drastic punitive action by the Japanese army. He disclosed that all available Japanese strength in North China had been mobilized for such a campaign

May Ignore Ultimatum.

Chinese commanders evidently intended to ignore the ultimatum. Their troops were said to be reinforcing new positions south of Peiping. General Sung, unconfirmed reports said, rejected the ultimatum and ordered the 29th "not to withdraw but to resist!"

(Both Chinese and Japanese at Nanking expressed belief that war now "is inevitable.")

HIROTA SAYS POWERS "UNDERSTAND" POLICY

TOKYO, July 27.—(Tuesday)—(AP)—Foreign Minister Koki Hirota told parliament today in the crisis between Japan and China "there exists the danger of an untoward outbreak at any moment."

Speaking in a diplomat's guarded terms, the foreign minister outlined the empire's foreign policies for the two chambers of the diet, assembled for a two-week special session.

Most of his address was devoted to the tense relations between Japan and China.

Hirota avoided mention of war, but declared to insure the safety of Japanese nationals in China his government was "prepared to use all available means consonant with the development of the situation."

The foreign minister declared other world powers had been fully informed of Japan's purposes in the current conflict and added, "I believe they understand fully Japan's attitude of patience and self-restraint."

Japan's relations with the United States, he asserted, "have been of late really good, being marked by ever-growing amity."

He also spoke of improved contacts with Great Britain.

But Japan's relations with China, he said, have been, "frankly speaking, far from satisfactory." This was due, he declared, to China's failure to appreciate Japan's basic policy, which he defined as "directed solely toward the realization of stability in east Asia through conciliation and cooperation between Japan, Manchoukuo and China and stopping the Communist invasion of the Orient."

Hirota made clear Japan's determination to gain a settlement of the North China conflict on her own terms.

Hirota said "the Japanese government are deeply concerned over the state of things on the Manchoukuo Soviet frontier, which gives rise to frequent frictions."

WOFFORD IN, OUT OF ELBERT GANG

Truck Seen in Anderson.

He said he did not know the circumstances surrounding the stealing of the car, but stated Anderson citizens saw the truck with its crew of desperate men early last night. Anderson is about 30 miles from Elberton, county site of Elbert county, and approximately 18 miles from Calhoun Falls.

Early this morning, as FBI agents in Atlanta announced they will take up the search for the five fugitives, Sheriff John A. Starke, of Elberton, said the convicts had stolen another automobile and split in two groups.

Warden Crawford said Sheriff Starke and Elbert County Commissioner S. B. Seymore were pursuing the escapes in South Carolina.

Crawford asserted Guard Saunders was the only guard with the 13 convicts but he was not hurt by the escapes. Wofford and Saunders removed parts of the ignition of the other county truck as they drove off, he asserted.

Wofford, Saunders and the negro, Horton Garrett, were shackled when they left, Crawford said.

Garrett and Adams were serving sentences of six and three months, respectively for hoboing. Warden Crawford said, while Silliman was sent up for several years for burglary.

Saunders Auto Thief.

Sanders had served six months of a one to three-year sentence for auto theft in Fulton county, but Wofford had a record which reached back to 1931, when he was 16 years old.

In federal court, when Wofford was sentenced to 15 years for kidnaping L. C. Dobbins, shoe salesman, and forcing Dobbins to drive him from Ashevil'e, N. C., to Atlanta under threats of death, Judge Kennamer viewed his past record of 31 filling station holdups in 1931 and declared him a menace.

Wofford had been pardoned while serving two five-year terms by Governor Talmadge and the federal judge added the 15-year sentence to his 20-year state sentence for robbery of a College Park resident to "make sure he was not pardoned again and freed to prey on the public."

About five weeks ago, Wofford walked off from the Elbert county chain gang while guards were not looking. Sanders did the same thing one night a week or so later, both being recaptured in a short time.

After riding on the truck through Anderson, Crawford said they doubled back to Calhoun Falls, where the car was stolen.

The warden declared the eight convicts who refused to leave were minor offenders, although the negro, who had just arrived from Augusta, was under a three-year sentence.

This man, Warden Crawford said, told Wofford and Sanders, "I don't want to escape from here" when they offered to take him along.

Of the eight who did not escape, seven were negroes, the warden said.

REDS DRIVEN BACK BEFORE HEAVY FIRE

will be theirs if they hold firm but a few more days.

For the first time in military history, a government bulletin said, an airplane was shot down in a night battle. It was an Insurgent tri-motored bomber, one of five Insurgent planes brought down by government squadrons during the last 24 hours, the government said.

Franco's Strategy.

General Francisco Franco's evident strategy still was to hammer at vital centers of the government's lines rather than expose his forces in a broadside offensive.

His immediate objective was Villaneuva, an important communications center almost squarely within the government territory bounded on the west by Valedemorillo and Quijorna, on the east by the Guadarrama river north to Villafranca del Castillo, and on the south by a line eastward from Quijorna just north of Brunete.

Government commanders declared their loss of Brunete was not unexpected because the stronghold was in a particularly exposed position at the spearhead of their southward drive toward Navalcarnero.

More in their minds than the relentless pressure of the Insurgents' counter-offensives, they said, was the necessity of preserving morale within their ranks.

They reasoned that the Insurgents, attacking, would burn out their own strength if the government lines could inflict heavy enough losses while holding their own to a minimum.

Rebels at Peak.

General Franco's army, they explained, apparently has reached the peak of its offensive power. If the government lines can hold until that is spent, the Insurgents will be too exhausted to withstand well-timed resumption of the government drive.

RUSSIA REFUSES TO RECOGNIZE FRANCO.

LONDON, July 26.—(AP)—The principal European powers, striving to keep alive the principle of non-intervention in the Spanish civil war, broke one deadlock today but appeared to be running into another.

Possible Russian refusal to accord belligerent rights to the Insurgent regime in Spain was the new obstacle.

Russia Objects.

Ivan Maisky, Soviet ambassador, startled a long, wrangling meeting of the non-intervention subcommittee with this statement:

"Under no circumstances will I accept granting belligerent rights to Franco (General Francisco Franco, the Insurgent leader)."

After the meeting Maisky said his statement did not necessarily bind his government. Authoritative observers said that if Moscow did stand by it, however, it would dynamite the whole non-intervention scheme.

One Deadlock Broken.

The subcommittee, directing group of the 27 nations committee seeking to isolate the Spanish war, ended an earlier deadlock, which took the form of a contest of questionnaires between Britain and Italy.

After five hours' debate the subcommittee agreed to send the original British proposals to each of the non-intervention powers—totaling 27—with a covering letter asking the governments to state "clearly and briefly" their views.

GRID FANS OPIN NATION'S VOTING ON STARS' COACH

Player Poll Closes; Tinsley Is Leading Flankmen.

The player poll closed last night, but with thousands of votes still uncounted, officials of the contest said complete returns on the 11 players who will start against the professional champions would not be available until Wednesday.

Milo Steinborn Warns Luttrell To Be Nice Boy

In the words of Milo Steinborn, a plain man who has never been known to go around "poppin' off," Cowboy Luttrell will think he is in the ring with a pack of lions if he starts any of his fouling practices tomorrow night in the semi-final attraction to the Dorv Roche-Dan O'Connor headliner at the ball park.

Last week Steinborn watched Luttrell in action and following one of his particularly flagrant fouls, spoke up and said—" Dat beeg steef. He can't rassle. If he use dot tape on me I keel heem."

Well, Steinborn gets his chance at the wild man, and Luttrell, who has defied opponents, referees and even policemen in past appearances here, isn't likely to change his ways just because he is meeting the strongest wrestler in the world. It should be quite a match, not in a class with the feature as a scientific performance, but full of dynamite and action, just the same.

An unannounced preliminary will open the card.

Major Neyland Lands Three More Tarpon

SARASOTA, Fla., July 26.—(UP)—Major Bob Neyland, head coach at the University of Tennessee, today landed three more tarpon to become a favorite in the international tarpon tournament here.

Neyland's prizes today weighed 85, 60 and 79 pounds.

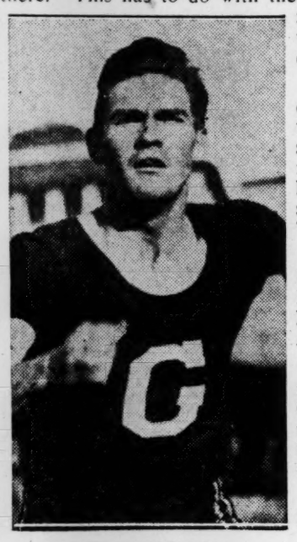
GAME WANTED.

The Gulf Oil Corporation baseball team would like to arrange games with out-of-town teams for any Saturday afternoon. Any team interested call E. F. McCormick at Walnut 4915 or Raymond 8384.

ATHENS, Ga., July 26.—We were waiting around for the hour when that great young man, Forrest (Spec) Towns, was to be married to that very fine young girl, Miss Martha Eberhardt. You will have to look on the first page of the news section to read the story of the wedding. They took it out there. This has to do with the story of how Spec Towns almost did not have a best man when the time for the wedding did arrive.



"SPEC" TOWNS.

Mr. Weems Baskin, who coached Spec Towns and taught him to hurdle, was himself a great hurdler. He, too, ran in meets in Europe and he left some world's records which stood until his pupil, Spec Towns, came along.

Here of late, however, Mr. Baskin has gone in for pigs. He has turned farmer and he has pigs here and there about Athens.

This afternoon, as we stood about the Varsity and about Costa's waiting for time to go to the wedding, a man with a black mustache came up to me and asked:

"Do you know Weems Baskin?

Mr. Baskin edged away and disappeared within a doorway.

"Why?" I asked the man.

"I represent the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals," said the man, "and I want Baskin."

"Surely Mr. Baskin has not been cruel to animals. He is a kind-hearted man."

"That's what you think," said the man with the dark mustache. "But I will leave it to you. He has got three pigs penned up at one end of the stadium."

"What about that?"

"What about it? Man, haven't you got any heart? What must be the feelings of those pigs as they are penned up there where they must each spring and fall watch football practice and know that the ball the boys are kicking about is made of pigskin. Why, you sportswriters are always writing about the boys carrying the pig skin. Imagine what suffering a sensitive pig must have to endure spending his life next to a football field and never knowing what fall his skin might be out there as a football cover."

This argument was so conclusive that I started aiding the man from the S. P. C. A. in the hunt for Mr. Baskin with my heart full of rage for the man who would thus submit innocent pigs to such extreme mental cruelty. But Mr. Baskin had made good his escape.

THREE NOT-SO-LITTLE PIGS.

It was not until much later, after the wedding in fact, that Mr. Baskin explained things. He showed up at the wedding clad in very fine raiment and handled the ring in expert style. When the showers of rice were done Mr. Baskin pulled me to one side.

"That man is all wrong," he said. "I have told Seminole Merrigold, Critic's Maid and Excels Partner that footballs are covered with cowhide. They look up the hill at the Ag College cows and nearly die laughing.

"Why, they may be a help in football this fall. We are thinking of using them in developing the ends. By fall I figure that Seminole Merrigold will weigh about 250 pounds and that Excels Partner and Critic's Maid will weigh about 220. They may be a lot of help in blocking practice."

By this time we were close to the pen where the three not-so-little pigs were grunting in porcine peace. We stood admiring them.

"My goodness," said Mr. Baskin suddenly, "this will never do."

Whereupon he leaped the fence and grabbed a rag from a box and dipped it into a bucket of oil. He rubbed the pig briskly and presently a white spot on the back began to show up much clearer.

He gave the hoofs a polishing. They shone like mirrors.

"I use only the best oil," he said. "I get it from the filling station up on the corner by the campus. There is nothing like good Pennsylvania oil to really show up pig's bristles."

The three little pigs, each weighing about 150 pounds, looked at Mr. Baskin with a very happy look on their faces. I made a mental reservation to see the man from the SPCA. He was wrong. These pigs were happier by far than Mr. Walt Disney's three little pigs. In fact, Mr. Disney might use Seminole Merrigold, Excels Partner and Critic's Maid as models and call them Baskin's three little pigs.

OINK, OINK, OINK.

"I started to give one of these pigs to Spec Towns as a wedding present," said Mr. Baskin. "Do you think he'd like it?"

"Oink, oink, oink," said the three little pigs, very sad at the prospect of being separated.

"He might find it a bit difficult to carry to camp with him."

"Well, he can keep it out at the farm. But I guess I'll make it something else. These pigs are very fine pigs. Of course nothing is too good for Spec and Martha but after all, I guess I'd best keep these pigs."

He hopped back over the fence and brushed a bit of dirt off the hoof of one of them.

"This one," he said, "goes to the National meet and these other two go to the Southeastern meet."

"I mean the Southeastern Fair."

Mr. Baskin left orders with the attendants to feed his three little pigs with five gallons of sweet milk, oats, corn and barley.

"Say," he said, "if you'd like a pig to take home with you, I think I know where I can pick you up one cheap. There is a farmer over here who is selling out."

"No, thank you," I said very hastily indeed. "Some other time."

"There is nothing as cute as a pig," said Mr. Baskin.

From the direction of the pen I heard the echo: Oink, oink, oink. I don't understand how Mr. Towns got his best man, even if he is the best hurdle coach in the game, away from his new hobby of pigs. As a matter of fact, it was very difficult not to come home with a pig. Mr. Baskin is very enthusiastic about his hobbies.

Dot Kirby Fires 76; Qualifying Is Billed Today

By DOROTHY KIRBY.

BILTMORE FOREST COUNTRY CLUB, ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 26.—I am glad to say that I played somewhat better today, and managed to finish with a 76. They have made the qualifying pairings and I qualify with Marion Miley and Marion Gayer. We are qualifying in threesomes this time.

Everybody I have talked to seems to like the course fine, but they always wind up by saying that they couldn't get on to the greens, they were so fast. I three-putted several today. It is quite easy to do, especially if the putt happens to be one of those long ones.

They were to have a two-ball foursome this afternoon, but I just couldn't take it. The 18 I played this morning was enough for me. Since we had nothing to do this afternoon a few of us went up to Chimney Rock and looked around and later went motorboat riding on Lake Lure and had quite a time.

Last night we went on a tour through the Biltmore house. We only covered half of it; no telling how long it would take to go all over it. They told us all about it. It was built by George Vanderbilt in 1890 when he was 22 years old. There are 110 guest rooms and over 230 rooms in all. There is one unfinished room and nobody knows what Mr. Vanderbilt intended for it to be.

In all, the estate covers 10,000 acres. That is far past my comprehension, but they say it's so. I nearly forgot about the library which contains 32,000 books. I think that is about all I can remember about the estate.

Going back to golf, there were quite a few new entries in the tournament today and it looks as though it is going to be a fine tournament. At any rate by this time tomorrow the qualifying will be over and I hope I will be in.

Constitution Staff Photo—Cornett.

Columbus may have discovered America, but Big Jim Lindsey (left) and Earl Mann, who positively did not come across with the Spanish explorer, boarded a train last night and went off to discover Columbus, Ohio. Mann will attend an executive meeting of the National Association of Baseball Clubs in the Ohio city and Lindsey, who was released yesterday by the Crackers, will seek employment with an Association team. He has one definite offer already. Lindsey plans to make this his last season of pitching.

Mann, Lindsey Depart For Columbus Meeting

Cracker President To Attend Executive Session; Big Jim Seeks Double A Job.

By JACK TROY.

Two great big men from the south rode north last night.

They were Earl Mann, president of the Crackers, and Jim Lindsey, who yesterday was given his unconditional release.

Both were headed for Columbus, Ohio, where Mann will attend an executive meeting of the National Association of Baseball Clubs and Lindsey will contact managers relative to securing employment for the remainder of the season.

Lindsey already has had a tentative offer from an American association team that is up in the running. The all-star game is being played in Columbus tonight and most of the managers will be there. It will give Lindsey a chance to make some valuable contacts.

NO STRANGER THERE.

Big Jim is no stranger in the association, however, having pitched for Columbus, St. Paul, Milwaukee and Kansas City.

"The offer I have does not include any of those clubs. I'd rather not say which club it is. But I am to get definite word Wednesday."

Lindsey feels that he will get a double A job, all right, and hopes to win several games before the season ends. The report that he was sent home because of a minor injury is erroneous. There is nothing wrong with his arm.

"If I can get on a club with a chance to pitch regularly, I believe I can win. Because the old arm feels great and my fast ball is all I could ask," Big Jim declared. "Columbus discovered America and I'm leaving to discover Columbus.

"I want to say that I hate to leave Atlanta because everybody has been my friend. The fans have been very good to me. The baseball writers have been my friends. Earl Mann is one of the greatest executives in baseball and Eddie Moore is a fine manager," Lindsey added.

HAD FINE RECORD.

Big Jim came to the Crackers on July 10, 1934. He came in a trade that involved Jumbo Elliott and cash. And in his three years with the club he won 36 games, while losing 25.

It was really Lindsey who paved the way for Eddie Moore to get the regular job of managing the Crackers. He won four of the last 10 straight won by the club after Moore replaced Spencer Abbott in 1934.

So Lindsey's record was 10 and 3, in 1934; 11 and 8, in 1935; 10 and 8, in 1936, and 5 and 6, this season.

It is to be doubted that any pitcher who ever graced the mound in this league had more success against any one club than Jim Lindsey had against Nashville.

He leaves the Southern league with a record of 12 victories and two defeats against Nashville.

NOT ENOUGH WORK.

Lack of work has not helped Lindsey any in the last two campaigns. And when it came to a point of going on the inactive list, he asked for his release. President Earl Mann granted his request.

"I guess Old Jim is pretty well fixed, anyway. I've already paid my taxes, so I can be as-

Reese Winner In Toronto Tourney

TORONTO, July 26.—(AP)—Four United States entries, Walter Senior, of California; David M. Jones, of New York; Billy Reese, of Wilmington, Del., and Johnny Forman, of the University of North Carolina, entered the third round of the Canadian lawn tennis championship at the Toronto Cricket Club today.

Senior, one of the leading contenders for the title won last year by Jack Tidball, Berkeley, Cal., downed two Toronto entries, J. Sibulash, and A. Centner, by scores of 6-2, 6-3, and 6-2, 6-2, respectively.

Reese whipped Jim McDougall, Montreal, in his first-round match, 6-2, 6-0, and then went on to down Maurice Morgesson, Toronto, 8-6, 6-0. Forman turned in some of the best play of the tourney with triumphs over Bruce Hall, northern Ontario champion, by 6-3, 7-5, and over Lewis Duff, Montreal, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

Jones won on default in the first round and then eliminated J. A. Irvine, Toronto, 6-0, 7-5.

This game promises to be a vary good one, since both teams boast a most successful season and numbers of outstanding stars.

Ben Cantwell Sold To New York Giants

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—The New York Giants, now in St. Louis for the opening of their western tour tomorrow, have purchased Ben Cantwell, veteran right-handed pitcher, from their Jersey City farm in the International league.

Cantwell, purchased from the Bees by the Giants for Jersey City this year, replaces Clydell Castleman, who was left behind with sciatica. He was the mainstay of the last place Jersey City's mound staff, having won 12 and lost 7 games.

ROSE, MAILHO, CHATHAM SOCK HOMERS IN WIN

Fourth Inning Spurt Nets 7 Runs; Williams Pitches Steady Ball.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 26.—Knoxville's cellar-dwelling Smokies, who have existed for some time on a badly curtailed diet of scattered hits and fewer runs, went to bed run-hungry again tonight.

A hoped-for feast on Atlanta Crackers barely materialized into enough of a snack to give the Knoxville baseballers another attack of indigestion as the Red Caps from down in Georgia hurdled the home team's fence with three homers and sent eight other men across the plate for an 11-to-4 victory.

Rose, coming up as the first man in the second inning, started the Crackers' big barrage by effortlessly sending the second ball pitched to him over the right-field fence. A couple of frames later Mailho drove out one to keep close company and Chatham found the center field portion of the fence low enough for a third a few minutes later.

It was on hard, fast single and double shots in the fourth, however, that the Crackers scored seven of their runs to put the game on ice and give spectators a headache keeping count of the points netted.

After Mailho had homered in the beginning of the frame, Hill drove a hard one against the right-field fence for two bases. Chatham walked and Richards reached first on a short infield shot. A long shot into center field by Mauldin scored Hill and Chatham.

Another free pass to first was handed Luby by Gordon Maltzberger, who by now was looking rather frayed around the edges. Hooks doubled to brings Richards and Mauldin home, and Rose followed suit to score Luby and Hooks.

At this point Maltzberger, formerly with Atlanta, was replaced by McClure, who held the now surfeited Crackers to six hits and three runs during the remaining five and a third frames.

Al Williams went the route for the Crackers, pitching hard, sure ball which proved effective, if not particularly spectacular.

Warren gave the Smokies their first run in the second and McClure, Russell and Whitehead added their contributions in the seventh.

Maetall Is Victor In Saratoga Race

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 26.—(AP)—Maetall, a son of Tall Timber from Dewitt Page's Maemere farm, started the Saratoga racing season just as did his stablemate, Maldic, last year, when he whipped ten other two-year-olds in the five and a half furlongs of the Flash Stakes today. F. J. Buchanan's Now Then was second and J. W. Brown's Spillway third.

Running over a muddy track, Maetall set all the pace and won by three lengths to earn the purse of $3,225 and pay his backers 13 to 5 as the favorite. The victory was the third straight for the Maemere colt and his fourth in seven starts.

Seven Atlantans Seek Three Places in National Amateur Today

Yates, Rainwater Chief Contenders

Thirty-Six Hole Qualifying Opens at East Lake at 9 A. M.

By ROY WHITE.

Seven Atlanta golfers will battle 36 holes today over the No. 2 East Lake course in the annual sectional qualifying rounds for the national amateur tournament. Three places have been allotted to this district and for the first time since the eliminations started it will be an "all-Atlanta" fight, giving the city three certain entries in the Portland, Ore., tourney August 23.

Charlie Yates and Crawford Rainwater, head the group and are almost certain to win two of the places. Jack Cook, young Ansley Park star, who led Tech High to a couple of southern prep championships and was the southern prep champion himself. John Terwilliger, medalist in the city amateur several years ago; Tommy Barnes, Atlanta's open and amateur champion, and Dan and Alan Yates, complete the all-Atlanta entry.

FIGHT FOR THIRD.

There will be a great scrap for the third place, granting Charlie and Crawford two of the places. Any one of the five entries has an equal chance to crash through and win their first place in the national amateur.

Only Alan Yates will be playing his first time, as the other six have attempted to qualify before.

Charlie has played in several amateurs and today's competition is not new to him. Rainwater also has been "initiated" into the national amateur, playing as an alternate in the place of Dr. Julius Hughes.

But for the other five, the experience of qualifying for the biggest amateur tournament in the country, will be something well worth the while although they have all, except Alan, entered before.

THREE BROTHERS.

When today's play opens, a unique record in the history of southern golf will be recorded. Charlie, Dan and Alan Yates, the sons of P. D. Yates, well-known Atlanta businessman, will be the only three brothers from the southern states attempting to qualify. It will mark the first time that three brothers have played on the same course in a sectional elimination for any major tournament.

Charlie and Crawford have played probably their best golf of the year in recent weeks. Charlie won the amateur medal in the Augusta national tourney and has set a new Lithia Springs course record and tied the Capital City course records a couple of times. A penalty stroke on each round cost Yates new Capital City records.

His lowest score was a 62, at Lithia Springs. He tied that score a few days later at Capital City but was playing winter rules. Last week, playing summer rules and from the back tees at Capital City, Charlie had a 65, which tied the course record.

RAINWATER READY.

Rainwater, after making the best score for the amateurs in qualifying for the national open, ran into some putting trouble and was beaten in the finals of the annual Georgia state tournament at August. Otherwise his play is perfect.

Dan Yates had a 70, two strokes under par in a practice round Sunday on the No. 2 course.

Barnes, Cook, Terwilliger and Alan have equaled par several times in recent practices and had good rounds Monday in their final trek over the No. 2 layout.

Tommy Barnes and Jack Cook will tee off at 9 o'clock in the first of the 36-hole play. John Terwilliger and Alan Yates follow at 9:05 o'clock, with Charlie Yates, Dan Yates and Crawford Rainwater, forming the last group at 9:10.

The same order will be followed in the afternoon round starting at 2 o'clock.

Twenty-Eight Clubs Are Hosts to Golfers Seeking 153 Places.

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—At 28 golf clubs from West Orange, N. J., to Honolulu and from Madison, Wis., to Tampa, Fla., 550 amateurs tomorrow will battle for 153 places in the national amateur golf championship, to be played August 23 to 28 at the Alderwood Country Club in Portland, Ore.

Two qualifying trials already have been held, 14 out of 45 starters making the grade last Friday at Tacoma, Wash., with another six, from a field of 20, passing their sectional test today at Boston. The addition of six former title-holders, including Defending Champion Johnny Fischer, of Cincinnati, brings the total of entries for this forty-first championship to 621.

The largest sectional delegation of club-swingers will check in tomorrow morning at the Olympia Fields Country Club near Chicago. Sixty-four players filed entries for the Chicago test, with 16 places available and such campaigners as Paul Leslie, of Louisiana State, Don Armstrong, Gus Moreland, low amateur in the Chicago open; Johnny Lehman, Russell Martin and Bob Harlow, former P. G. A. tournament manager, in the field.

Detroit, despite having only 14 entries for six places, scheduled one of the most interesting of the qualifying rounds. Freddy Haas Jr., lean New Orleans youngster who holds the interscholastic title, will play his 36 holes there and then go on to Ottawa to defend his Canadian amateur crown.

Lightning Kills One Horse, Injures Eight

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., June 26.—(AP)—A terrific electrical storm killed one horse, knocked out eight horses and played havoc with the attendance at the opening of fashionable Saratoga today but the accompanying rainstorm turned the racing strip into a sea of slop and set the stage for the victory of Dewitt Page's Maetall in the 63rd Flash stakes.

W. S. Kilmer's Gino Vive, a two-year-old filly, was killed when the lightning struck several times around the barns about noon. One bolt hit Trainer Max Hirsch's stable, badly stunning eight of his horses, including the King Ranch's Dawn Play, winner of the American Derby and Coaching Club Oaks. Mrs. Parker Corning's two-year-old Thanksgiving and Mrs. Julia M. Loft's Mosawtre, outstanding three-year-old.

The seventh place American league team has lost 18 contests of the 82 played by one run and four by two. Both games of a double-header with Washington Saturday were 6 to 5 defeats.

GRIMM REJOINS HIS CUBS TODAY IN HOME STAND

Chicago, Leading National, Opens 21-Game Stay.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY.

CHICAGO, July 26.—(AP)—Charlie John Grimm, who left his Cubs in Boston on a stretcher ten days ago, came back to Chicago today, driving an automobile to assume command of his club in the opening game of the series with Brooklyn tomorrow.

Grimm declared that he "felt real good." He gave every indication that he had been relieved of the sciatic condition in his back which forced him to turn over the National league leaders to the managerial talents of Catcher "Gabby" Hartnett.

Grimm can see nothing but the National league championship for those pace-setting Cubs, still hanging on to the same two-game lead with which they left Chicago almost three weeks ago. They are all ready for a 21-game home stay that gives them every opportunity for pulling farther ahead of the Giants.

KEEP FIGHTING.

"We are going to keep right on our toes," Grimm declared, "and move on to the championship. Boy, everything is just great. Hartnett has done a grand job in managing the team in my absence and every member of the team gave everything to win. They got swell breaks and if we continue to get them, nothing can stop us."

Since leaving the Cubs Grimm has been confined to a St. Louis hospital under the care of Dr. John F. Hyland. He is physician for the St. Louis Cardinals, but has ministered to a score of players in both leagues.

Grimm, who lost a great amount of weight during the weeks he suffered, regained some of the pounds he lost and much of his strength.

"I was pretty weak when I left the Cubs," Grimm said, "but I'm feeling stronger now. I'll be back with the team tomorrow. It will be a real pleasure to congratulate Hartnett and the boys for the way they carried on."

PITCHING STEADY.

The Cubs returned with a much steadier pitching staff than the badly riddled one that was staggering all over Wrigley field at the turn of the month. They also came home with their "big four" hitting the ball again. Despite his added managerial burden, Hartnett paced the club with a .369 mark for the trip and ran his consecutive hitting string to 20 games by getting two hits off Pitcher Gumbert in New York Sunday.

Rhodes Is Named Jacksonville Pilot

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 26. (AP)—Dusty Rhodes, third baseman, will be temporary manager of the Jacksonville Tars of the South Atlantic league until the club finds a successor to Manager Bill Steinecke.

Budge, Mako Win; Americans Lead, 2-1

Wilde and Tuckey Bow, 3-6, 5-7, 9-7, 10-12, As U. S. Takes "Death-Grip."

By SCOTTY RESTON.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 26.—(AP)—The United States took what looked like a death-grip on the Davis cup today as the California combination of Don Budge and Gene Mako won the pivotal doubles match from C. R. D. Tuckey and F. H. D. Wilde, 6-3, 7-5, 7-9, 12-10. This gave the Americans a 2-1 lead over Great Britain in the challenge round.

Unless the British can pull a tennis miracle out of the hat in the final two singles matches tomorrow, the cup, held by Great Britain since 1933, will be headed back to New York for the first time since 1927 when France's Lacoste, Cochet, Borotra and Brugnon won it at Germantown, Pa.

Again today it was "Bullseye Budge" who carried the match. While Wilde, Mako and finally the inspired Tuckey saw their serves battered back and beaten, Budge held steady throughout all four sets, allowed only 19 points against his service in 15 games and took four of them, including the match clincher, at love.

FINE SERVING.

It was one of the finest serving exhibitions seen on Wimbledon's center court in this, or any other, season.

From America's standpoint it was Budge who was so effective. The pick-up British combination, with Tuckey bearing much more of the burden than was his rightful share, put up a surprisingly stiff battle. If Wilde, named to the team after illness forced the withdrawal of George Patrick Hughes, had been able to hold up his end, the Britons might have pulled the match out of the fire.

Ironically, it was Tuckey who finally wilted in the 21st game of the overtime fourth set. The Americans broke through his service in that game for the first time during the match. They took a 11-10 lead and then raced through the 22d at love on three fine smashes by Mako and a service ace by Budge for set and match.

Frankie Parker, 21-year-old youngster from Milwaukee, can clinch the cup by beating Charles Edgar Hare in tomorrow's opening singles match. If he fails, Budge will have to shoulder the full burden once more in his closing match with the clever British stylist, Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin.

HARE FAVORED.

On the basis of his 28-game set with Budge on Saturday, Hare—a big fellow who ran his bicycle into a tree, broke his right arm and took up tennis left-handed while waiting for the right to heal—will be favored over Parker, who made a disappointing showing against Austin on Saturday.

It wouldn't be surprising if the burden did fall on Budge. The Oakland (Cal.) redhead has won the only singles victories scored by the United States thus far in the Davis cup campaign abroad and likewise has figured with Mako in two doubles triumphs. So far America's advantage is his personal accomplishment.

Hare showed Saturday that he has a deceptive service and an effective net game. He likewise revealed a decided weakness against lobs and it's possible Parker can beat him that way.

BUDGE FAVORED.

But even if Parker loses, Budge will be strongly favored to take Austin. Bunny's had a good rest since he gave Parker a tennis lesson Saturday but Budge has fallen off very little since his victory in the all-England singles championships and his spectacular five-set triumph over Gottfried Von Cramm in the deciding match of the inter-zone finals.

Riley Smith Signs Football Contract

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—Jack Espey, general manager of the Redskins, of the National football league, said today four players had been signed including Riley Smith, former All-American quarterback of Alabama, and Sam Busick, former Ohio State end.

Smith made his professional debut last season. Espey said signing him up for 1937 dispelled rumors that Smith would quit football for a business career.

Other contracts signed were with Ed Justice, former Gonzaga University halfback, and Lester (Swede) Olsson, former Mercer University tackle.

RUBIAYAT LOCATED.

MANN, LINDSEY VISIT COLUMBUS

sured of being at least two jumps ahead of the sheriff.

"Then, too, I may be back here in a few years pitching left-handed. What's the word for that—ambidextrous? Yes, sir, I may come up as a left-hander.

"I'll never forget a story about that. A fellow said 'That player yonder is ambidextrous.' And a companion spoke up and said, 'yeh, better look out for him, he may cut your throat'."

Lindsey said that in the event he doesn't land a job in the association, he'll return to Baton Rouge at once because he has heard the trout really are biting there now.

RETIRES NEXT YEAR.

Lindsey is scheduled to retire from baseball next year and become coach of the Louisiana State baseball team. His main idea now is to finish out the season with some good club and end his career with a good record.

"Eighteen years ago when I started playing baseball I was dumb enough to save up for a rainy day. The sun is shining outside, but I guess this is that day I had in mind.

"Old Jim leaves with no regrets except that he hates to leave the fine people of the greatest town in baseball. If the fans ever booed me, I didn't hear them. I appreciate that most of all, for I tried to give them the best I had."

The best wishes of Atlanta fandom and the baseball writers go with Big Jim Lindsey, a prince among baseball men and a fellow you're proud to call friend.

When the Crackers go to camp next year, his ready wit and inexhaustible store of funny baseball stories will be missed. Most of all he'll be missed by the rookies. He gave them sage and helpful advice—and a pat on the back.

Kallio, Londos Top Avondale Mat Card

Gus Kallio, middleweight mat champion of the world, meets Young Londos, popular Atlanta grappler, in a title match Thursday night at the Avondale arena.

Kallio, due to bookings elsewhere, was scheduled to leave here after tonight's match, but due to the fact that Young Londos challenged him for the title, he will remain over for the bout.

Kallio is the undisputed champion of the world and one of the smoothest grapplers in the business today. He has held the title for the past 17 years, meeting all comers.

Londos, in all probability, will furnish the champion with the toughest opposition he has met in many a day.

Bill Jeffries, Arkansas, meets Dock Pole, Texan, in the semi-final match. Both grapplers are capable and it should be a corker from the start.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., July 26. (AP)—With Lloyd Brown, George Uhle and Bob Feller taking turns on the mound the Cleveland Indians, of the American league, blanked Wilkes-Barre's New York-Pennsylvania league team, 5 to 0, in an exhibition game before 5,500 today.

Landis Investigating Ball Players' Betting

ST. LOUIS, July 26.—(UP)—An investigation of betting on race horses by major league ball players was opened today in Chicago by Kenesaw M. Landis, high baseball commissioner.

Aroused by the gambling revelations in connection with the release of Rogers Hornsby as manager of the Browns last week, Landis said in a telephone conversation from his offices in Chicago this afternoon that he "would dig to the very bottom of the entire affair."

Hornsby admitted after his release that betting on race horses was the cause. He denied that betting interfered with management of the Browns and surrendered his contract, calling for $20,000 for 1937 and 1938 for approximately $7,000 in cash.

Milton "Alabama" Delmas, clubhouse boy for the Browns, may become the key-man in Landis' investigation.

"I understand Delmas has some information that may be of importance to my office," Landis stated. "If he has been running bets on race horses for some ball players in the American league, as he has been quoted, then that means I'll have to roll up my sleeves and go to work on this case."

VOLS 5; LOOKOUTS 3.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 26.—Second-baseman Rospond's single with two out in the ninth inning brought in the two runs which gave Nashville a 5-to-3 victory over the Lookouts here tonight.

Glenn Chapman's triple, followed by Bill Rodda's single in the same inning had manufactured the tying marker.

CHICKS 10; BARONS 2.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 26.—A barrage of singles and doubles smothered Birmingham tonight, 10-2, as Memphis returned to winning ways after disastrous engagements with New Orleans and Little Rock.

Paul Spencer, hurling his second full-length game of the season, set the Barons down with seven hits and himself accounted for two of the Chick's runs. The Tribe collected 16 hits off Cy Moore.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 26.—(AP)—New Orleans came from behind to beat Little Rock, 6-5, in the series opener tonight.

The Pels tied the count in the seventh when Rogers blew up. Midkiff replaced the southpaw but in the eighth George doubled of the scoreboard, advanced on an infield out and scored on Irwin's long fly to the outfield.

Drake was in trouble all the way, walking 11 men, but the travelers were unable to take advantage of his generosity.

F. D. R. PLANS TRIP

President To Visit North Carolina August 18.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—The White House announced today plans for President Roosevelt's contemplated visit to the Roanoke Island celebration in North Carolina, August 18.

Mr. Roosevelt has said he will attend the celebration, commemorating the 350th anniversary of the birth of Virginia Dare, first child of English parentage born in the new world, if the congressional situation permits his absence from the capital.

Tentative plans call for the President to go to Elizabeth City, N. C., by train and there board a coast guard cutter to Roanoke Island. Returning he plans to motor to Norfolk, Va., to board the Presidential yacht for the trip back to Washington.

Gene Dahlbender Jr. Cards 28 for 9 Holes

Promising Young Star Has Five Birdies and Three Pars at Candler Park.

By RALPH McGILL.

Young Gene Dahlbender Jr. shot himself a very fine mess of golf yesterday at Candler park, thereby delighting his fond father's heart and also setting some sort of a record.

He had a 28 on the Candler park nine, which is four under par. Which is a record for junior players and one which is as good as the adults manufacture there.

Par is 32. The first time around young Gene, whose father is a golf goods drummer, had a 34, two over. The next time he had that 28 for an 18-hole score of 62.

He had five birdies on the round and would have had himself a 27 had he not slipped one over par on No. 3, getting a four on the par three hole.

Par	433	334	444	—32
Dahlbender	324	234	433	—28

His finish, with two birdies, was a very fine finish. And the fact he had five birdies and three pars on nine holes speaks very well for the young man.

He was playing in a foursome with Bob Adams, John Hall and Bill White. Adams had a 34-34—68 and Hall had a 77. Bill White said he was having trouble and to forget about his score.

Dahlbender is one of the promising youngsters playing golf in Atlanta. When he learns the lesson of concentration he is going to take several more figures off his scores. He played well in the recent Canton tournament despite an early defeat. His lack of concentration caused him to blow a good lead there. He will play in several other invitation tournaments this summer and should be a contender in all of them.

KALLIO, JORDAN GO SET TONIGHT

Due to the inclement weather, the matches slated to be held at the Key arena last night were postponed until Tuesday night. All rain checks will be honored.

Gus Kallio, middleweight champion of the world, will meet Tarzan Ben Jordan, former light heavyweight champion of the south, in the main event. Kallio challenged Jordan at the West End arena last week after his match with Buck Lawson, and he stated he would pin the local star in straight falls. Jordan remarked in the presence of the champion, that Buck Lawson would have beat him for the title last week if he had not taken out excessive time after the second fall and this irritated Kallio. He immediately challenged Tarzan, to a catch-weight match.

Baron Von Hoffman will meet Bill Jeffries, Arkansas, in the semi-final.

The first match on the program will start promtly at 8:30 o'clock with Jack Layden meeting Mike Cassidy.

LIONS' MOTORCADE ENTERTAINED HERE

Group Returning From Convention Is Feted by Local Club.

A 45-car motorcade of Florida Lions clubmen, returning from the International Lions Club convention held recently in Chicago, stopped in Atlanta last night en route to Florida.

They came from Knoxville via Chattanooga, where they visited Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge and Chickamauga, battlefields of the War Between the States.

The Atlanta Lions Club changed its regular meeting from 12:30 to 7 o'clock in order to greet the 175 Florida members.

George B. Hamilton, state treasurer, representing Governor Rivers, extended the state's greeting, while Mayor Hartsfield welcomed the visitors on behalf of the city.

The incoming motorcade was met at the city limits by a police escort, and directed to the Henry Grady hotel, where the visitors spent the night.

This morning the group started on the last leg of their trip to Macon and Lake City, Fla., where the motorcade will disband.

Two Negroes Head For Melon Cutting

L. B. Blalock, of 182 Auburn avenue, reported to police yesterday he is looking for 952 things—two negroes and 950 watermelons.

He hired the two negroes to sell the 950 watermelons, he stated, but yesterday all were missing.

POLICE DISCOUNT ROBBERY REPORT

Just Imagination of Negro Janitor, Officers Say.

City police yesterday were inclined to doubt the report of an attempted robbery of the bonding office of R. F. Mobley, near the police station.

Officers said they were of the opinion "it was the imagination of a negro janitor."

Mobley himself said he doubted that an incident in which a white man entered the office and ruffled through some papers in the office was an attempt to rob it. The description given by the janitor did not tally with that of Tom Hamrick, Alabama prison escape, Mobley said.

CHIEF NABS DRIVER

Hornsby Makes First Arrest as Head of Force.

The first arrest he has made since becoming chief of police was credited to M. A. Hornsby yesterday.

Chief Hornsby arrested a man listed as Harry Bass, 37, of a Ponce de Leon avenue address, when Bass almost ran into Mayor Hartsfield's car on West Peachtree street yesterday morning. The chief, who with the mayor, jumped out and caught Bass. He made charges of "drunk and reckless driving" against him.

GEORGIA HOLDS LEAD IN FHA INSURANCE GAIN

Georgia held a position above the national percentage increase in savings, building and loan mortgages insured with the Federal Housing Administration for the fifth consecutive month, William A. Sirmon, state director, said yesterday.

The total of mortgages accepted for insurance from Georgia associations rose more than 11 per cent in May over the amount of loans reported at the end of April, he said.

Judge's Birthday Gifts All Practical—Jokes

The judge was 57 years old but he attempted to keep his anniversary quiet. Court attaches discovered the important date and showered him with gifts, all of which were practical—jokes. One was a fountain pen that squirted water in his eye when he unscrewed the cap, another was a book of matches that exploded with a loud bang when struck.

ATLANTA MEN TAKE A BOW FOR NIFTY "MAKIN'S" SMOKES!

They use that good-tasting tobacco that lays right, rolls firm

LOCAL "makin's" smokers know their rollin'. And they know "makin's" tobacco too. It's Prince Albert for them! They say the "crimp cut" is easier to handle—lays right—no spilling or bunching—rolls fast, firm.

Besides, P. A. is EXTRA-MILD due to the "no-bite" process. Taste? Just get a drag of that rich, full P. A. body. It's somethin'! (Takes the prize for pipe-smoking too!)

"MELLOW? Why this good Prince Albert whiffs over your tongue so cool and smooth that you can smoke it all day long without a hint of tongue-bite."

"PUT ME down as a 'makin's' roller for 18 years—and believe me, I haven't found another tobacco that's a patch on P. A. for clean, rich taste and body. Yet there's not the least bit of harshness or rawness."

Day-by-Day Life of Haitian People Presents Odd Aspects to Southerner

People of Black Republic Courteous, Kindly in Dealing With Whites With Government Run on Lines of United States, If Much Slower.

(What sort of a nation is one run entirely by negroes? Brown Tyler, Hapeville publisher, on a leisurely vagabond tour of the Caribbean, has been in Haiti. This article, descriptive of the people and customs of the black republic, is another of the several he has written for The Constitution. Others will appear from time to time.

By BROWN TYLER.

Many southerners wonder no doubt just what a country controlled entirely by negroes is like. A southern white in Haiti wonders, too, what it is like, or rather if it is like anything else on earth. He concludes there is no way to compare it. No way to describe it—it must be seen. This black republic on the Caribbean is a strange land indeed.

The government is modeled after the American and on the surface, at least, is efficiently operated. Officials and employes as a general thing go about their work in a businesslike fashion, much slower than in America, of course, and they are more or less watchful always of foreigners, but they do what they tell you they will do and they are courteous and kindly about it. Many of the laws and the manner of executing them have a background of French or African custom.

Everyday Life Strange.

But the strangeness of the country lies in the day-by-day life of the people, their manner of living in their homes, their ways of doing things, their religion and their superstitions. The ancestors of these people inherited from the French colonials a high civilization and today there are on both sides of them nations fairly modern in their way of living. Santo Domingo as a whole is a modern country; so is Cuba. In addition the United States was in control of Haiti for nearly 20 years. And yet the country has an existence entirely peculiar to itself. The mighty majority of the people, practically the entire population in the hills and mountains, have dropped far down the scale, little if any better than their African ancestors. Yet in the cities there is a class—pitifuly small, it is true—of the highest type civilization. Many of them are as black as their country brethren with whom they are in daily contact, but there is a deep and wide gulf between them, much more so than between whites and blacks in Georgia. Mulattoes predominate among this upper or wealthier class, but a black aristocratic madame will frequently have light colored servants, and coal black merchants and government officials are driven about by mulatto chauffeurs.

Pick-a-Back Transport.

Road laborers carry their bosses and timekeepers across muddy places or streams on their backs. An official or member of the educated class will not stand for a moment's disrespect from a member of the poorer class. A surprising thing about all this is, that despite this attitude, there is the utmost good feeling between the classes. Except in politics, which is always between factions of the upper class, there is no ill feeling anywhere. Even politics provokes no deep ill feeling. Haitians have a much better feeling toward Americans than do Cubans. There is an anti-American faction, but generally the feeling is good toward America. A gendarme at a station where the camion stopped on the road to Jacmel asked the driver if the writer were an American. On being assured of that fact, he casually remarked, "They are the best people on earth."

There are some peculiar facial types in Haiti. Men of many races have bred to Haiti women and the faces you meet along the street, although frequently coal black, show unmistakable characteristics of Jew, German, Russian, Chinese or English. At one time a colony of Polish Jews was established in the southern part of the island. They have long since been absorbed. There is no trace of them so far as skin is concerned, but their noses remain—everywhere over the country you see them.

Fought in Revolution.

Haitian history says that Haiti's famous King Christophe, builder of the Citadel, and his coruler Petion, were volunteers in the battalion of 600 blacks who went from Haiti to help America in its War of Independence. They fought with the French at Savannah. Haitian men and guns were also used in other famous battles in America. For this reason many Haitians believe their country has a just claim to continued aid from America.

In the cities all the country native dances are called voodoo or verdu, not that that word is the proper name for them, but it has been applied by foreigners and it sticks. In the country neither the dance nor the ceremonies of a religious nature are known as voodoo. In fact, few of the country negroes know the word. The dance is known as "Congo danse" and the ceremony as Petro or Rado. The dance is common. Small groups, with a drink or two of tafia, assemble around a few drums and it starts. As it progresses others at a distance follow the sound of the drums and come and join. A dance frequently lasts all night and into the next day. Usually the dances are on Saturday night and Sunday, but every night and all night from the hills about Port-au-Prince comes the steady beat of drums.

Attends With Companion.

In company with an Italian doctor the writer attended one of these dances two nights ago. Traveling into the hills toward Petionville we turned from the main road and went for some distance along a rock-strewn trail and soon came within sound of the drums. When it was not possible to go further in the car we left it and went on afoot. The night was dark and the path was difficult. Every step we stumbled over rounded rocks. It is remarkable how the barefoot negroes travel over these rocks. We finally came to a little clearing with a thatch shelter in the center. About the shelter were a few candles on tables where candies and drinks were being sold. Under the shelter hung a flickering lantern with a cracked shade. The dance was under way and in the darkness we came upon them and stood and watched for some time before they discovered our presence. In the presence of whites there is always a disposition to want to show off, but coming upon them as we did we saw them dancing in their usual and natural manner. Later, when our presence became known, there were a number of special dances executed for our benefit. These special dances were of the same sensual type.

Different Dance.

The regular dance is different. It starts as a slow, lazy-like movement of the hips and upper part of the body increasing in pace gradually. The couples do not hold each other with their arms, except on occasion to prevent stumbling, but let the arms hang limply down. There is little changing of position of the feet. The faces of both dancers and drummers wear a serious expression. There is one oblong great drum, one about the size of a gallon pail and another of the dimensions of a large wash pan. The large one, played with the palm and heel of the hand, produces the heavy sound that carries so far; the gallon size is played with sticks; the other emits a peculiar zooming sound produced by setting the drumhead in vibration and then drawing the knuckles or thumbs across it. Variation of the zooming is accomplished by touching the drumhead with the fingers of the other hand: Occasionally it was noted a dancer or drummer would throw his head back and, rolling his eyes, assume a fiendish sort of expression. There was never any laughter. In the dim light of the candles and old lantern there was something weird about the whole business—the groaning music, the serious expressions, the snake-like writhing of the black bodies.

Doings of Marines.

There are many stories in Haiti about the doings of the marines. An official of a fruit concern tells this one:

A sergeant and a corporal in charge of a detachment stationed in a small town had become great friends with the local priest of the Catholic church. They were the only whites in the town and were much together, Father Pierre spending long hours with them in their quarters in conversation or playing checkers. They were invited frequently to dinners and pleasant evenings at his house. On several occasions the father had mentioned to them the poor condition of his church and his inability to secure sufficient contributions for the most necessary things. For instance, a new image of St. Anthony was badly needed. The old one was of wood, badly cracked and falling apart. All the other images were of beautiful plaster of Paris. He had told his congregation time after time how badly St. Anthony looked in his condition there among the other clean white saints, but to no avail. One Monday on a visit to the marines the father had seemed downcast. He had again mentioned the poverty of his church and especially the appearance of St. Anthony. After he had gone the two marines went into conference and began the formulation of a deep plot. The details were all worked out by night.

Psychological Attack.

Bright and early the next morning the sergeant and corporal stalked to the center of the market place. Sellers and buyers made way for them as they seemed to have serious business in mind. The sergeant started a speech in Creole. "You are all a lot of ungrateful bums," he began. "Father Pierre is sick at heart because you show no appreciation for his labors. He is downcast because you dislike to provide him with the few pennies he must have to keep you all out of hell. You are not only ungrateful to Father Pierre, you are ungrateful to the saints. Look at St. Anthony. What hasn't he done for you? What would you do without him? Let me tell you something, mark my words, some of these days St. Anthony is going to quit you cold. He is going to walk right out of that church." When he had finished the corporal spoke. "Yes, the sergeant is right. You are a lot of good-for-nothings. Father Pierre ought to kick you out and let the devil take you. If you belonged to the sergeant's Methodist or my Baptist church at home you'd know what real giving to papa is like. Yes sir, Sir Anthony is getting fed up with it. He is going to leave that place."

The reproving speeches were listened to carefully, but after the speakers were gone, there were such remarks as "It's the same thing Father Pierre has always told us." "As for St. Anthony, he is just as good in old wood as in new plaster." And they went again about the business of selling and buying. But the words of the sergeant and corporal stuck. For the next three days there was discussion in the huts and places of congregation.

Plot Is Pursued.

On Friday night after 12, when it was certain all the town was asleep, the sergeant and corporal stole toward the church. They entered the little side door and felt their way along until they came to the image of St. Anthony. Lifting it from the niche, they carried it out and to their quarters. There they chopped it to fragments and burned it in the cook's stove.

The next morning when old Louis, the peddler, came by as usual with his coconuts the sergeant casually remarked to the corporal, "That was bad about St. Anthony, wasn't it?"

"What was bad about St. Anthony, m'sieur?" asked Louis.

"Why, he's gone. I been telling you poor fools what would happen. Now he's quit you. The corporal and I were near the church last night and saw him come right out and disappear in a sheet of fire."

That was enough for Louis. Applying his stick to his donkey's rump the two of them went off up the street at high speed. "St. Anthony is gone," Louis yelled as he went along. In 15 minutes the whole town knew it. In 30 minutes the whole town was in front of the church door. Father Pierre hearing the hullabaloo hurried out of his house.

"What is all this doing," he demanded. "What manner of foolishness is it?"

"Haven't you heard?" they asked. "St. Anthony has left. The marines saw him go last night. Open up, father, so that we may see for ourselves. The marines do not lie, but then they sometimes drink much of tafia—who knows?"

Priest Mystified.

Father Pierre was as much mystified as they when he entered the church and failed to find St. Anthony in his customary niche. Every corner was searched, under the pews, behind the altar. No, St. Anthony was gone.

"What can we do, father?" the crowd pleaded.

Father Pierre threw up his hands. "Come to church tomorrow and we shall see."

It was a sad and repentent mob who filed out of the church. There was no laughter in the town that night. On Sunday morning they were all at church and on time. Father Pierre spoke briefly about St. Anthony. He had no knowledge of how he had disappeared. The marines said they saw him go out of the church and up in smoke. How be it, it was certain St. Anthony was gone and it was certain a new figure should take his place. Beautifuly executed ones could be sent for to Paris for a price. But that was a matter for the parishioners to decide.

They did decide it. When they had gone there was sufficient in the priest's hands to buy several St. Anthonys.

On Monday, Father Pierre made his customary call on the marines. He was beaming, but St. Anthony and the episode at the church was not mentioned. He suspected the marines of some part in the business and the marines knew he suspected them, but they let it go at that.

'Dr. Faustus' Opens Tonight At the Atlanta

Tonight at 8:30 o'clock at the Atlanta theater, the Atlanta Federal theater presents Christopher Marlowe's "The Tragicall Historie of Dr. Faustus," with a distinguished cast of 75 performers headed by Walter Armitage. Mr. Armitage, who plays the role of Faustus, is also director of the spectacular show.

"Dr. Faustus," which is continuing its extraordinary run on Broadway throughout the summer, is a massive production. Presenting his own adaptation of the Christopher Marlowe script, Mr. Armitage uses a lyric chorus of 14 Atlanta beauties to enhance the charm of the play. Brilliant and unusual lighting effects, elaborate stage settings and colorful costumes specially designed for the Atlanta show indicate the outstanding presentation of the local Federal theater to date.

"The Tragicall Historie of Dr. Faustus," directed and enacted exactly as it might have been seen 342 years ago, is a weird, impressive play. The story of Faustus, who sold his soul to the devil for 24 years of recaptured youth, unfolds with the uncanny skill of one of the greatest dramatists the world has ever known. Christopher Marlowe's magnificent legend is powerfully alive today.

Roy Elkins, in the difficult role of Mephistopheles, supports Mr. Armitage. Edwin Peebles plays Lucifer, and Susan Falligant is seen as Helen of Troy. Other familiar Federal players appearing in important roles are Evelyn Eden, Maurice Fain, Jack Barefield, Gilbert Maxwell, John Williams, Amasa Windham, Helen Stringfellow, Royal Mitchell and Maurice Frye. Well-known Theater Guild players include Paul Carpenter, James Reese and Martha De Golian.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Wiley, of Winter avenue, in Atlanta, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Emily Anne Wiley Brannon, to Sergeant Wallace H. Brannon, of Fort McPherson, which took place December 31, 1936, in the home of Rev. Mr. Strozier, a retired Methodist minister of Marietta. The young couple kept their marriage a secret until after their joint graduation from the commercial department of Central Night school in May of this year, and this is the first formal announcement of their wedding.

Mrs. Brannon took a prominent part in student life at Central Night school, serving as associate editor of the Modern Knight, as salutatorian at the graduation exercises, chosen as the "cleverest girl" in the 1937 graduating class, and being elected as secretary of student council for the coming year. She is possessed of a lovely voice and most engaging personality, and is well known in business and church circles. On her maternal side she is descended from the Dean and Tuggle families of Georgia and Virginia, and on her paternal from the early Dutch settlers in Pennsylvania, the Wiley and Gruenwalt families.

Mr. Brannon is a young man of fine intellectual and cultural attainments and has won an enviable place in the life of the city. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Brannon, prominent citizens of Atlanta. He is sergeant in the regular army, and is being transferred from Fort McPherson, Ga., to Fort Bragg, N. C., and the young couple will leave Atlanta about August 1, 1937, for their new post.

Miss Stevens Weds Mr. Cochran At Church Ceremony in East Point

Miss Frances Stevens became the bride of Robert Cochran at a ceremony taking place at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the First Baptist church in East Point, with the Rev. W. A. Duncan officiating.

The musical program was presented by Miss Grace Hendrick, pianist, and Roy Almon Hendick, soloist. Forming a background for the altar decorations were ferns and palms, flanked by branched candelabra holding lighted white tapers. In the center were floor baskets filled with pastel-shaded flowers, and two vases filled with similar flowers graced the altar.

Ushers were Wright Campbell, W. A. Duncan Jr., Guy Wheeler and Edward Gabriel, followed by the bridesmen, Arthur Carraway, W. H. Simmons and John Lawton Smith. Bridesmaids were Misses Rachel Johnson, Avis Cochran and Elizabeth Colquitt, entered next, followed by the maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Lipes.

The attendants of the bride were gowned alike in pastel shades of lace posed over matching taffeta slips. The gowns, made floor-length with full skirts, featured square necklines in front ending in Deep V's in the back, and short, pleated sleeves. They wore velvet Juliette caps and flowers to match their costumes. Miss Johnson wore peach lace; Miss Colquitt, yellow; Miss Cochran, orchid, and the maid of honor, aquamarine. Their flowers were arm bouquets of pastel-shaded summer flowers tied with streamers of satin ribbons to match their gowns.

The bride, who entered with her father, J. Henry Stevens, by whom she was given in marriage, was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Ashfield Yarborough.

White satin fashioned along princesse lines was worn by the lovely bride, the gown featuring a high neckline finished with appliqued white satin flowers. The sleeves, made full at the shoulders, were long and close fitting from the elbows, ending in points ovr the hands. Fitted close to her slender figure, the skirt introduced fullness at the hemline, ending in a train in the back.

Her tulle veil was worn coronet style caught on either side with tiny sprays of valley lilies and worn with a chin strap. Falling shoulder-length over her face, the veil extended floor-length in the back. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of bride's roses showered with valley lilies.

Mrs. J. Henry Stevens, mother of the bride, was gowned in a flowered chiffon in tones of orchid with a picture white straw hat and a corsage of pink roses and valley lilies. Mrs. Rosa Cochran, of Albany, mother of the groom, wore poudre blue chiffon with a white straw hat and a corsage of white roses and valley lilies.

1937 Brides Tackle Problems Of Housekeeping With a Smile

By Sally Forth.

ATLANTA 1937 brides of May and June have made no complaints about the hardships encountered in their new routine of housekeeping. They are enjoying tremendously the time they spend in arranging their beautiful wedding presents in their new homes, and the thrill of interior decorating is not lost on any of them. These young matrons take as much pride in their successful culinary experiments as they do in surprising young husbands by appearing in some heretofore unseen part of their trousseau. Their artistic flower arrangements suggest that they will all be future garden club presidents! Would you enjoy looking in on them for a few minutes and seeing them as they are at home?

Mrs. A. C. Spinks (Mary Helmer before her marriage last month at her home at Niskey Lake), thinks that married life is pretty much of a cinch. Mary and her husband are living with Mary's mother, Mrs. Harry J. Helmer, so Mary has not yet really had a taste of meal planning or tried her hand at the stove. She is also pleased to admit that just nothing seems to have worn out and the mending bag is still unused. Lucky bride!

Mrs. W. Tucker Wayne (Virginia Courts before her marriage last month at her home on Cherokee road), is still being extensively entertained by hosts of friends. She and Mr. Wayne are living in one of those kitchenless apartments on Peachtree and are becoming true authorities on the subject of "Where and What to Eat." Virginia's biggest domestic problem up to this point is that age-old question—How much laundry? After spending the better part of two hours getting up that first list, this new bride was quite amazed to find that she and her husband had something to wear the next week.

Mrs. Marion Rivers Jr. (Anne Jeter before her marriage on the seventeenth of June in the garden of her Roswell road home), is far more enthusiastic about her cooking than she is about her sewing. Even Mr. Rivers has become optimistic about the eating situation since those first mornings when his wife simply could not hit the happy medium between rock boiled and raw eggs. Now Anne says that Marion is gaining weight under her skill, but that she is rapidly growing thin running to get all parts of her meal done at the same time.

Mrs. William Bryan (Nancy Jones before her marriage several months ago at one of the loveliest home weddings of the season), is residing in Montreal, Canada, now and writes back that housekeeping is more fun than anything. Nancy, as you know, could cook cakes and candies miraculously before she even thought of getting married and was even an expert with fundamentals like biscuits. Now, in her new home, she simply refuses to allow her maid in the kitchen, as she enjoys so much putting her own experience into use.

Mrs. Garnett Austin, of Chattanooga (Harriett Anne Baylor prior to her marriage last month at a beautiful afternoon ceremony at the Peachtree Christian church), is engaged in unpacking her numerous wedding gifts these days. The pretty brunette and her husband spent the past week end in Atlanta with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baylor, en route to their Tennessee home from their honeymoon in Cuba, and they left in their car filled with as many of their wedding presents as could be transported in this manner. They have a charming home on Missionary Ridge which will be further augmented and beautified by the addition of their gifts and the decorative ability displayed by the young bride in the arrangement of her furnishings.

THE memory of little five-year-old Susan Maybank Smith, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Augustine Smith, is perpetuated in the beautiful stained glass window dedicated Sunday morning at St. Luke's Episcopal church. The subject of the window, which was executed by well-known artists in London, is "Christ Blessing Little Children." The window's central figure is the Savior holding a babe in His arms and surrounded by young children wearing garments of exquisite harmonizing shades.

Rev. John Moore Walker officiated at the dedication services, followed by the regular 11 o'clock service with the rector's sermon emphasizing the simple and beautiful faith of a little child. The base of the beautiful memorial window was banked with baskets and bouquets of flowers sent by friends of little Susan's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith are numbered among St. Luke's churche's most prominent communicants. The former has served the church as vestryman for many years as well as filling other important offices in the various organizations of the church. Mrs. Smith, who was formerly Louise Hawkins, is a lifelong member of St. Luke as are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hawkins. The late Mr. and Mrs. Wright Otey Smith, the little girl's paternal grandparents, worshiped at St. Luke and were also numbered among its most beloved and valuable members.

GLIMPSED here and there: Mrs. Harry English very smartly garbed in a pink sports dress and white accessories. Ida Sadler wearing a stunning costume of hunter's green silk and matching accessories, dining at Brookhaven Country Club with Dan O'Day, her attractive fiance. Virginia Courts Wayne taking aquatic exercises in a good-looking white satin bathing suit in the Driving Club pool. Little Will Theus arriving all alone on the train from Savannah to visit her grandmother, Mrs. W. E. Hawkins, and wearing her blond hair in two pigtails just like her mother used to do when she was little Will Hawkins, of Atlanta, before she married Charlton Theus, of Savannah. Sara Meador Little and son, Lewis Little Jr., of Anniston, Ala., greeting Atlanta friends during their visit to Mrs. Robert L. Meador.

Narcissus Garden Club Meeting.

July meeting of the Narcissus Garden Club, division of the Railway Mail Association, was held at the home of Mrs. A. P. Roberts on Cherokee avenue, with Mrs. Ira McDavid Sr. as co-hostess. In the absence of the president, Mrs. G. H. Hanlan presided. Mrs. W. B. Ellington arranged a flower contest; the members brought 63 varieties of flowers. Mrs. H. R. Gill won first prize, and Mrs. W. B. Ellington won second prize.

In the monthly horticultural exhibit on arrangement, Mrs. McDaniel won blue ribbon, Mrs. Waller red and Mrs. Gill white. In the specimen, Mrs. Ira McDavid Sr. was awarded blue ribbon, Mrs. A. D. Turner red, and Mrs. McDaniel white. Mrs. McDaniel offered her home for the club picnic to be held in her yard on August 19.

SUMMER SEASONINGS ADD WEIGHT.

Summer is the slimming season. You can lose weight without going on a diet and without exercise. In fact, your chances of losing weight without effort are never better than when the weatherman is pulling for you.

Hot weather takes the sharp edge off your appetite, induces perspiration and is altogether favorable to your slimming program. At this one season, a reducing diet can actually be tempting. Fruits and vegetables are high in flavor and low in calories. Help yourself to peaches, blueberries, cantaloupe, corn-on-the-cob, tomatoes, cucumbers, cherries, strawberries and a generous slice of watermelon.

The summer bill of fare can help to make you slim if you watch exactly six things: Butter, mayonnaise, cream, sugar, salt and water.

Butter and mayonnaise should naturally be restricted in hot weather, since they add fuel to the menus. On the other hand, it is easy to use an excess of butter on sandwiches, and of mayonnaise on salads. No matter how you take it, one pat of butter and one tablespoon of mayonnaise add up to 200 calories and (if above your daily calorie limit) accumulated in one-half pound of weight in a week. At that rate, you could gain several pounds this summer just on butter and mayonnaise.

Cream and sugar can convert a low-calorie fruit into a rich dessert. The difference between cream and milk on your fruit is a matter of 100 or so calories. Make it a rule to use whole milk rather than cream this summer. Remember, you cannot get slim on summer fruits when cream is added.

What NOT to do while reducing.

Most people who do not use sugar are prone to take an excessive amount of salt on vegetables and fruits. Salt has no calorie value, but it is, nevertheless, an important incidental in your summer menu. Do not be reckless with salt on melons, vegetables and salads. As I have told you before, salt is a factor in water storage, and can retard your loss of weight. If you will notice, it is the overweight who salts heavily. Taking an excess of either salt or sugar is mostly habit.

You need plenty of water between meals, but you do not need many sweet beverages. In fact, it pays you to go out of your way to drink more water in the hot weather, for it will keep you in better spirits. The more you perspire, the cooler you will be, and the more efficient. However, it is very important that reducers should guard against excess mealtime liquids. You are apt to overdo with tall glasses of beverages and ice water with the meal. Excess liquid with the meal creates an appetite and, immediately after the meal, stretches the stomach. An hour before the meal is an excellent time to drink a big glass of water.

You can have a slim summer by taking these trimming tips. "The Reducer's Ten Commandments" will show you where you are making your missteps. Send for this leaflet.

Corsage Used For Trimming

Black silk net gown with ruffled bolero, flowers at waist.

Sheer black is a frequent theme this summer. It might be called the summer theme song.

It is worn for morning, noon and night. And for night the query is, shall it be a slim, long dress that touches the floor, or a short dress with an infinite amount of material used—one of the new "waltz" dresses?

By the way, the note now being sounded by French couturiers is short in front and long behind.

Flowers accent the waist, and horsehair braid in the hem gives the ballerina flare.

Black Leads.

In the autumn openings too, black leads, both shiny and dull being shown.

Black is featured for silk afternoon dresses as well as evening, and also in velvet. Black is the favorite for winter coats, too, with Directoire plum and wine as runners up, and green coming closer to brown than for a number of seasons.

Did you ever give a thought to the type of gown you need when you plan to go a dancing atop one of the swank hotels or at the country or night club and the weather is not clear and moonlight? If you have not given this little matter thought, you may be caught going through and through your wardrobe without being able to decide which dress is appropriate or will show the least damage if it gets a bit wet and wrinkled.

Black, White Is Answer.

Black and white is the answer given in New York on a recent wet night when the crowd was dancing. Hardly any color was visible at the height of the dancing. And that in a night club that permits dresses of street length—informal in type—to be worn during the summer months.

A long black satin skirt worn with white top, and maybe a small evening hat would be smart and practical for such an occasion. There is a wonderful opportunity for originality in such costumes, in the black with touches of white, or the more even matching of the two colors.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: My boy friend is a swell guy about most things but he is peculiar about money. He brings me presents and then throws them up to me as though I had asked him to put out. He gave me a lovely wrist watch on my birthday and since that time not a single date has passed that he hasn't made a remark about what a fine present it was. I don't want to give him the run-around but if I can't break him of this habit, I will have to. Maybe you can tell me what to say to him. JEAN.

Answer: Jean, the omens are none too good and you will do well to ponder them. The boy friend is stingy. He hates to part with his money and when love loosens him up a bit and he buys a gift, he wants full credit. He is selfish: The pleasure you derive from the presents he makes you is secondary. He uses his gifts to buy your favor and he keeps reminding you of their value with the hope that you will rate him higher if you know how high they came. Furthermore, he wishes to impress you with a sense of obligation to him, little guessing that this is the best way to queer his game with any gal.

A wise old gentleman of my acquaintance says that if you know a man's attitude toward money and know how he treats his womenfolks you know all about him. Perhaps this is true and it is also true that his attitude toward money goes a long way in determining how he treats his womenfolks. If he will throw up the birthday gift to his best girl, he will throw up the biscuits to his wife, remind her how much they cost and keep the count on how many she eats.

Neither best girl nor wife can change a man's attitude toward money for it is an ingrained part of his character and as unchangeable as the color of his eyes or his complexion. There is one thing the best girl can do that the wife can't: hand back the gifts and refuse to be put under obligation to a skin-flint.
CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: About three years ago a certain boy showed me plainly that he was interested in me. This pleased me but it also embarrassed me for our home is very poorly furnished, I was ashamed of our surroundings and knowing his family were top grade I dreaded to have him see my setup. I dodged him for a long time because I knew he would naturally ask me for a home date. But he pursued me and I used to go to shows and games and in this way we had our fun together without home dates. Now he has gone far away to take a position and I have the awful feeling that I missed my chance to win him by holding him at a distance. I am sorely tempted to write him a letter and open my heart to him. We agreed to write often. Would this be throwing my fat in the fire?

Answer: A better plan would be to start off the correspondence with interesting chatter, accenting the I-miss-you-and-absence-makes-the-heart-grow-fonder note. In this way you will have a grand chance to get the three little words without begging for them.

The boy friend will be lonesome, homesick for you and the old home town. Then feed him the news, adding your views of it and hold on to your trump card until some later date. People who are shy and sensitive can frequently spread themselves in letters and write with an abandon unknown to them in personal conversation. The inhibitions are removed when the dear one is at a distance. Where formerly you were stalling to keep him from getting too close up on you, now you may say "come on" with every line.

GROUP SEEKS FUNDS TO EXTEND REA LINES

WAYNESBORO, Ga., July 26.—(AP)—The Electric Membership Corporation here has applied to the Rural Electrification Administration for a $142,000 loan to extend lines in Burke, Jenkins, Screven and Richmond counties.

The corporation already has nearly 100 miles of rural lines under construction. If the new application is approved 142 miles of lines will be added.

Both projects would make electricity available to approximately 900 families, the sponsors say.

SALLY'S SALLIES

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sunday—Early Saturday morning I left Hyde Park by motor. I was going to visit Mrs. Edward S. Ely, who is Jean Dixon on the stage, somewhere near Gloucester, Mass., and she wanted us to get there for lunch.

I have learned if you want to cover a great many miles, the thing to do is to get up early in the morning, but somehow I never want to go to bed at night! I like to listen to the 11 p. m. news on the radio, I like to read for a while after I get into bed. It's really a question of self-discipline to go to bed early enough to start off early the next morning.

We didn't quite make it for lunch, but we weren't so very late in arriving in the afternoon. It is a long while since I have been to Gloucester. It has a picturesqueness and a flavor all its own which extends to the neighborhood.

New England is a delightful part of the country. I sometimes think it is rather trying to like as many different parts of your own country as I do. When I am in the southwest, I think Texas is enchanting with its wide open spaces and I know that I think Santa Fe is one of the most fascinating cities in the world. When I am on the west coast, from San Diego to Seattle, I am enthralled by the life, the climate, the people, the variety of scenery and the way of living.

There is no part of my country I do not enjoy visiting but I know my own state of New York best. I always return to it with the feeling I think one should have about one's home. It always seems to me a state, lacking perhaps in certain things which may be found in other places, but having a great variety of scenery and of interest. When all is said and done, "This is my home and I love it."

I know New England almost as well. There is a sense of age and a feeling that people have had time and leisure to beautify their own particular spot. You get it nowhere else in our country. You can pick out many individual houses and corners of gardens which you would like to paint if the good Lord had given you the ability to be an artist.

I wish over and over again as I live my daily life at home and as I wander through the world, that I had been given a few more talents. There is so much all about you that you would like to paint well enough so that other people could see it and enjoy it too. All I can do is to enjoy it myself and talk about it afterwards.

It is pleasant to be with congenial friends. I was sorry to say goodbye this morning and wend my way, this time alone, down to Newport, R. I., to see my cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parish. Early tomorrow morning I will leave them to start on another, but very beautiful, drive home.

A short time ago, one of the envoys from a foreign country told me that while he thought Newport was very beautiful and while he was interested in going there because he had heard so much about it in Europe, he still did not wish to spend his summer there. The life was too much like the life he lived in winter. I feel a little the same way and, for many reasons, think perhaps it is just as well I do not pine to spend long periods of time in this gay summer capital.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

An aged woman, realizing that death was near, and yet fully in possession of her faculties, was talking a few days ago about life in terms of the experiences that had brought joy and those that had brought grief. It was most interesting and helpful to listen to this grandmother talk. I shall never forget what she said Since that day I have asked a number of people to tell me what they felt sure would represent a list of things that we might do that would leave no regrets in our own or in the hearts of others. What do you think of this list?

Showing kindness to aged people. Destroying the letter written in anger. Offering the apology that saves friendship. Stopping a scandal that might wreck a reputation. Helping a boy find himself. Showing consideration for your parents. Accepting the judgment of God.

I stop with seven, just because it is a good number, not because I have exhausted the suggestions offered. Suppose you try making out a list of your own. Benjamin Franklin had a fine list, and Colonel Lindbergh has an excellent list. I think it is very good discipline for anyone to make out such a list of everyday principles of living. A farmer told me the other day that he made such a list 40 years ago, writing the list on the inside of the barn door. Later he bought the old home place and replaced the log barn with a modern structure, but when they got to that old door with his boyhood list of ideals, he made them take it down carefully and when the new barn was completed he tacked it up inside the building so he could go now and then and read his list. "And now my grand-boy is spending the summer with us—and I caught the little rascal in the barn the other day, copying my list in his notebook," said the fine old gentleman, his eyes all but overflowing with emotion.

Some Easy New Canning Recipes

Delicious home-canned foods for jiffy meals and company treats! How quickly you can fill your shelves using modern canning methods.

You'll keep cool as a cucumber, making uncooked chopped pickle. Simply put 2 quarts chopped tomatoes, one quart diced celery, one-half cup chopped onion, two chopped red peppers, seeded, in a sieve to drain. Place in a sterilized earthenware jar and sprinkle with these spices—one-half teaspoon ground cinnamon, one-half cup mustard seed, one-half teaspoon ground cloves, one-half teaspoon ground ginger, one-half teaspoon ground mace. Scald together one cup sugar, two-thirds cup salt, two-thirds cup grated horseradish, one quart vinegar. Pour this mixture over vegetables. Stir thoroughly, keep closely covered.

Now that tomatoes are plentiful, put up the family's favorite tomato juice. It's such a quick process that before the kitchen's heated you're done. Wash, drain, cut up tomatoes. Simmer only until tender. Press through a fine sieve. Bring juice to a boil. Pour in sterilized jars and seal with sterilized rubbers and lids while still boiling hot.

Tomatoes add zest to delicious canned vegetable mixtures. And of course you'll want to put up Creole tomatoes, snappy with peppers and onions. You'll find directions for these in our 40-page booklet, New Ways of Canning Fruits, Vegetables and Meats. 108 delectable time-and-money-saving recipes. Handy chart shows how to prepare, how long to process fruits and vegetables. Pressure, steam-cooker, oven, open-kettle and hot-water bath methods fully explained. Can chicken in August when it costs less. Learn about meat canning, too.

Pleasant Homes

By ELIZABETH MacRAE BOYKIN.

ENCHANTING WEEKS.

A Chinese bed, intricately carved sets lengthwise against the wall.

Yesterday a lady came to tea whom we'd met in China. And we haven't been able to get down to earth since because she reminded us of enchanting weeks we once spent in Pekin. And recalled a visit we'd had in a beautiful home just a stone's throw from the walls of the Forbidden City.

A Home in Pekin.

It was the home of Mrs. W. J. Calhoun, widow of a former American minister to China. A lovely little white-haired lady is Mrs. Calhoun, who wore the softest of white Chinese brocaded silk and made a dramatic picture against the brilliance of the old Chien Lung palace that she had bought and renovated for her home. Like all such places, it nestled behind a drab stone wall that presented a non-committal front to the outside world. You entered this wall through a brilliant red gate guarded by an antique doorman who peeked at you first through a little slot in the side wall. Inside the wall, the rooms of the house wandered hither and yon around through flowering courtyards, so that each room had windows on opposite sides and sometimes on a third side.

The ceilings of the various rooms were brilliantly painted in characteristic Pekin palace designs, usually emerald green in tile-like squares, with elaborate motifs in crimson and gold and white and blue and purple. It may sound barbaric but the effect was quite magnificent. Most of the wood trim of the room was in the same brilliant red and the walls were hung with antique fabrics, fine old scrolls and panels, these mostly in antique parchment tones, very mellowed in effect.

The furniture was partly carved Chinese blackwood, but not so dragon-y as we usually see in this country, and combined in such a way as to seem very tranquil and pleasant. Mrs. Calhoun's bed was probably the most beautiful piece she had. This was an old one of a light fruit wood, carved like lace with posters and a carved canopy. But the way it differed from our beds interested us. Instead of standing out in the room, it stood longwise against the wall and had a carved railing all around except for an opening of about two feet in the front to get into the bed. In the old days, no doubt, the whole thing would have had a heavy damask curtain enveloping it completely.

The most dramatic pieces were made of Pekin shop fronts, believe it or not. But in Pekin, the old shops have beautifully hand-carved wooden panels for the entire fronts and a young American architect-designer in Pekin hit upon the idea of using these for making furniture. Certainly in those antique courts in Mrs. Calhoun's home, nothing could have been lovlier.

Too often oriental furniture in America seems rather stuffy and heavy, but that's because it isn't used properly. In Mrs. Calhoun's home, it was so beautifully co-ordinated and in such a perfect setting, that the effect was something breath-takingly beautiful, yet with a certain tranquility that is the essence of every Chinese home.

Hollywood Today

HOLLYWOOD, July 25.—Clark Gable telephones Carole Lombard every morning and evening from his hunting retreat in Pocatello, Idaho, but they can't hear a word they say because every operator from there to here listens in to get the love lowdown. . . . If and when Margaret Sullavan gets tired of playing with her new baby daughter, she will star in the movie edition of "Roadshow," now being scripted for Hal Roach by Marc Connelly.

Sophie Tucker is letting her hair go dark for the new mother-type role she plays in "Molly, Bless Her." "But you will still see the natural gold peeping through," says the imaginative Sophie.

So Errol Flynn is trying to get to Spain again. We hope he has better luck this time. Incidentally, Ernest Hemingway, recently in Hollywood with his picture of the Spanish War, told me that he invited Errol to the war zone on the occasion of the headline rumor that the actor had been killed in action.

"I told him I could take him right to the front, with actual fighting, guns 'n' everything. Errol said, 'Fine,' he'd like to come, but he immediately left for Valencia," stated Hemingway. Even the story of the falling plaster has been shattered by the author of "Death in the Afternoon." The bump on Flynn's forehead occurred, as far as can be ascertained, by banging his head while trying to get a better view of some beautiful senoritas. As well, another illusion broken!

According to Merle Oberon, her romances with David Niven and Brian Aherne were arranged by Jock Lawrence, publicity genius for Sam Goldwyn. Which proves what this writer has always contended—stars are too prone to believe their own press agents. . . . Bill Powell is still heartbroken over Jean Harlow's death and it will be a long time before that old quizzing smile or his normal health returns. . . . Madeleine Carroll, who recently completed her role in "The Prisoner of Zenda," leaves with husband Philip Astley, July 28 on the Queen Mary for a two months' yachting trip in European waters. On her return she terminated her contract with Walter Wanger to sign with David O. Selznick.

The latest bulletin from the "Gone With the Wind" news front . . . Paulette Goddard had a fair chance of playing Scarlett until she demanded $100,000 plus $150,000 for another film to follow up. Director George Cukor considered this price too high for an actress who has only appeared twice before the screen—as a show girl in a Sam Goldwyn musical and opposite Charlie Chaplin in the silent "Modern Times." When informed of this, Paulette penned a dignified letter, relinquishing her desire for the role. I think she has made a mistake. The production is being delayed for two important reasons—to find suitable leading players, and to give the public a chance to forget the sharp facets of the story so that the changes necessary for a successful screening will be acceptable to the readers of the book.

JUST NUTS

HEALTH TALKS

DOWN CELLAR AT ODD HOUSE

Cellar! Quick, what association has the word in your subconscious or conscious mind? To one individual it suggests heavenly surcease from the heat of a summer day. To another it suggests blowing froth from a scuttle of suds. To another it suggests discovery of the hastily concealed body! To me it suggests congealed butter in a crock and milk pans with sweet cream rising and the clean assuring odor of many bushels of potatoes in the bin.

Webster defines cellar as a room or set of rooms below the surface of the ground and usually under a building, used for the keeping of provisions and other stores, or for refuge. For refuge, eh? Well, maybe so in Kansas or Oklahoma. The cellar at Odd House, however, is primarily intended to serve the provisions and others stores, or provide on occasion a haven for gramp or unk from the bla-bla-bla upstairs.

The basement is the ideal place for laundry, storeroom, playroom and garage, especially where ground space is costly. In the old days before ice boxes and mechanical refrigerators, we poor folk, at least in the northern states and Canada, got along fairly well with one section of the cellar for preserving potatoes, apples and other vegetables, milk, butter, eggs and meat. What the temperature in the cellar may have been in mid-summer I don't know, but it was cool enough down there to keep these perishable foods for a few days, and that was as long as they needed to be preserved. Today we think a temperature not above 50 degrees F. is necessary to preserve such food.

Of course, one section of the cellar of Odd House must be partitioned off for the furnace room. The boss may be a nut, as many old-fashioned readers of these articles believe, but he does like to be comfortable. Whether the heating be with coal, coke, wood, oil or gas, whether from one central plant or from units in various parts of the house, no reasonable expense or pains will be spared to provide adequate vents for the products of combustion, through ample stovepipe connections to a chimney of generous capacity. The head man at Odd House cannot be persuaded by any merchant or agent that this or that fuel or this or that type of burner does not produce harmful by-products of combustion or does not need such vent pipe to carry off the harmful products of combustion. As specified in an earlier talk about the culinary arrangements at Odd House, even the kitchen range must be equipped with ample flue connection to protect whoever works or lives much in the kitchen from the health-destroying or life-menacing anoxia due to frequent slight pollution of the air with odorless carbon monoxide. These observations apply with equal cogency to gas plates, laundry stoves, water heaters, floor heaters and all portable or makeshift heating appliances (except electric).

It is hoped, needless to say by whom, that a corner in the cellar with light from the northern sky will be available for a work bench and such tools or gadgets as the everyday household construction and repairs require.

What is a home without a cellar? Certainly not Odd House.

SOIL CONSERVATION DRIVE IS PLANNED

Organization of Districts To Be Sought at Meeting.

The Georgia Conservation Committee announced yesterday plans for a drive to organize voluntary soil conservation districts throughout the state.

The drive will begin at Athens August 10 during the annual Georgia home and farm week at the State College of Agriculture.

The function usually attracts large numbers of farm people from throughout the state, including members of 4-H clubs and farm women's organizations.

At an open meeting, the committee will hear reports from various agencies and organizations throughout the state which have been called upon to furnish information for organizational procedure and co-operation in the movement.

The soil conservation committee was created by the last general assembly to aid farmers desiring to band together for land rebuilding farm practices. Funds for the work will be furnished to a large extent through the federal government.

Announcement of the drive came from the office of Governor Rivers, who is chairman of the committee.

HARLEM GREETS 4 FREED NEGROES

Thunderous Applause Given Leibowitz, Youths.

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—What looked like most of Harlem all but raised the roof of Pennsylvania station today in shouting a thunderous welcome to four bewildered negro youths freed in the latest chapter of the Scottsboro mass rape case.

Several elbowed and half-mauled spectators were trampled under foot when hundreds of cheering, shoving negroes stormed heavy police lines to shout a lusty salutation to the dusky quartet and to their chief defense counsel, Samuel Leibowitz, as they arrived from the south.

The negro youths, freed at Decatur, Ala., Saturday at the conclusion of 11 trials that resulted in five of their companions receiving sentences ranging from 20 years to the death penalty in an alleged mass attack upon two white girls on a freight train in 1931, were goggle-eyed at the enthusiasm of the welcome.

2 Persons Awarded Photo Tip Cash For Stories of Unusual Events

Atlanta Woman Paid $5 for Information on Police Involvement of "Copper" for Too-Long Blowing of Horn; Athens Man Also Wins.

The news photo value sense of Mrs. W. H. Paxton, 620 Bonaventure avenue, N. E., and Felton Gordon, Athens, Ga., has won each $5 photo tip prizes given weekly by The Constitution. Checks will reach them today.

When Copper, the police dog master of 115 tricks was duly summonsed and arraigned for violating the city anti-noise ordinance, for overtime blowing of an automobile horn, Mrs. Paxton tipped off The Constitution. As result, a first-class picture and feature story were made available exclusively to this newspaper.

Up in Athens, Clarence Faulkner graduated from the University of Georgia with all the trappings, although he was the only member of the class. Felton Gordon saw the photo and news possibilities and gave advance notice to the photo tip editor.

News photo tips are wanted by The Constitution, which will award $5 every week for the best turned in. Keep an eye open, it may pay you the $5. What's wanted are tips on unusual photos, of unusual people and unusual events. But they must be news and they must be printed first in The Constitution.

If you've a tip, call The Constitution photo tip editor and tell him about it. If the suggestion is news worthy, a cameraman will be on hand within a few minutes.

STANLEY IS SLATED FOR HIGHWAY POST

Smith Due To Resign as Chief Engineer.

The resignation of E. Jack Smith, chief engineer of the State Highway Department, who is now on sick leave, is expected to be filed with the highway board this week and the board expects to appoint Eugene Stanley, now acting chief engineer, to the post, it was learned yesterday.

Smith has told friends that his physicians will not permit him to return to the Highway Department because of his physical condition.

Stanley has been acting chief engineer since Smith's leave started. Prior to his appointment he was assistant chief engineer in charge of federal highway construction and it is understood that his place will go to H. E. Brantley, at present division engineer at Fitzgerald.

Chairman W. L. Miller, of the State Highway Board, left yesterday for his home at Lakeland to spend several days superintending the sale of tobacco grown on his farm. Before leaving he said he expected to have an announcement to make regarding the chief engineer's post on his return to Atlanta Thursday.

Stanley formerly served in the Highway Department but left during the Talmadge regime and for several years was an assistant federal engineer in charge of Florida projects. He is a resident of Warrenton.

CHARGES DROPPED

Tampa Ex-Police Chief Wins in Flogging Case.

BARTOW, Fla., July 26.—(UP) The state today dismissed second degree murder charges against Richard G. Tittsworth, former chief of police at Tampa and one of the original defendants in the Florida flogging cases.

Under agreement with J. Rex Farrier, special prosecutor in the flogging case which will be renewed in October, Judge Dewell nolprossed the charges.

Tittsworth was exonerated last year in a trial in which five former Tampa policemen were convicted of kidnaping in connection with the brutal beating of three Tampa socialist-labor organizers.

The kidnap convictions were reversed this month. The state, however, is pressing forward with plans to bring up the second degree murder charges.

MACON, Ga., July 26.—(AP)—A coroner's jury today called the fatal shooting of Clifford Cheatham, 45, World War veteran, who was felled yesterday at Lizella, justifiable homicide.

The verdict exonerated Homer McCollum, 20, Mr. Cheatham's nephew, of blame in the tragedy. Cheatham was shot to death in the yard at the home of his father-in-law, John McCollum, Lizella farmer.

McCollum told the coroner's jury he shot his uncle with a rifle after the latter had fired a shotgun at a group of persons in the yard.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the graveside in Ebenezer cemetery, with Rev. T. M. Bailey officiating.

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—With steels and motors drooping, many recent stock market leaders today lost their climbing urge.

Light profit selling appeared after the opening and small declines predominated at the colse.

At the same time a number of specialties gave a good account of themselves and an assortment of these retained modest gains.

Brokers said the stimulating force of favorable earnings statements and the possibility congress may go home shortly appeared to have worn off somewhat. Many traders, consequently, adjourned to the sidelines to await fresh inspiration.

Dealings were comparatively light, transfers totaling 896,210 against 909,000 last Friday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down .1 of a point at 70.

An upturn in this week's mill operating rate brought belated support to some steels, although most finished under water. The general belief tomorrow's United States Steel meeting would bring cheer to stockholders helped to stem the downward drift.

Share losers of fractions to around a point were United States Steel at 117, Bethlehem 94 3-4, Republic 38 1-2, Youngstown Sheet & Tube 91 1-2, General Motors 56 1-2, Chrysler 115, Westinghouse 155 1-2, General Electric 58 3-8, New York Central 41 1-4, Southern Pacific 49 1-2, Consolidated Edison 40 3-4, Electric Power & Light 23 1-4, Montgomery Ward 63 3-4, Allis Chalmers 68 3-4, Pullman 53 5-8 and Standard Oil of New Jersey 71 1-4.

On the advancing side United States Industrial Alcohol was up 2 3-8 at 33 7-8, and improvement was retained by National Distillers, Chesapeake & Ohio, Northern Pacifis, Kennecott, Woolworth, Auburn Motors, J. I. Case, Texas Corporation and Continental Oil.

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—Setbacks in Japanese dollar loans marked an otherwise apathetic bond market today. These issues gave way under pressure following word of a renewed outbreak of hostilities between Chinese and Japanese forces in China.

United States government obligations continued quiet and steady with total turnover in the neighborhood of $290,000 face value.

Interborough issues gave ground as traders weighed news of the proposed dissolution of the voting trust that has guided the company's destinies. The voting trust holds 347,995 of the 350,000 outstanding I. R. T. common shares and with its dissolution working control would be returned to stockholders. The refunding 5s lost 3 1-2 to finish at 64 1-2.

In the industrial section Penn Dixie Cement 6s climbed a point to 99 and Bethlehem Steel 4 1-2s ended at 104 3-4, up 1-2. Walworth 4s pushed up a major fraction to 81 1-8, while Armour 4s were unchanged. The Associated Press averages for 10 industrials showed an advance of .1 of a point to 103.1.

Rail liens moved divergently. B. & O. 4 1-2s slumped 5-8 to 69 3-8, while Chesapeake & Ohio 4 1-2s jumped 1 1-2 to 122. St. Paul 5s closed at 25, up 1-4 and Chicago & Northwestern 4 3-4s, 15 1-2, off 1-2. The averages for 20 rails were unchanged at 92.8.

Total transactions for all bonds amounted to $5,289,500, face value, compared with $7,869,000 on Friday.

Sugar and Coffee.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Raw sugar was quiet today and nominally unchanged at the last sales price of 3.42 for spots.

Cuban and trade buying caused prices to rally 4 or 5 points from the lows and final prices were 2 points lower to 4 net higher in No. 3 contracts. Sales were 10,350 tons. No. 4 contracts were under liquidation and closed ½ to 1½ points lower with sales of 8,900 tons.

Issues Mark Time With Price Shifts Confined to Narrow Limits.

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—With the exception of a few isolated run-ups, curb stocks marked time today with price shifts confined to narrow limits. Utilities showed a tendency to soften a little and oils were neglected.

Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company jumped 2 1-2 points to 8 1-2 and Aluminum Company advanced a point to 149.

Proving resistent to selling Northern States Power "A" gained 2 points to 27. American Gas & Electric gave up a major fraction to 37 1-8 and American Superpower dropped 1-8 to 1 7-8. Electric Bond & Share and United Gas steered an even course.

Creole Petroleum sagged 1-8 to end at 36 1-8 and Gulf Oil finished at 58 7-8, off 1-2. International Petroleum and Pantepec Oil were unchanged.

CROCKER OPPOSES HUSBAND'S STORY

Wife Accuses Him of Alienating Love of Spouse.

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—Charles Crocker, member of a wealthy San Francisco family, asked the state supreme court today to suppress a deposition from the husband of Mrs. Helen Thomas Hobart, who has brought a $500,000 alienation suit against Crocker.

It was Crocker himself who obtained court permission to take a deposition from the husband, Walter Scott Hobart Jr., who is an interior decorator in London.

Now Crocker contends the deposition contains scurrilous and irrelevant statements about him as the result of questions put to Hobart by counsel for Mrs. Hobart. Action is to be taken tomorrow on Crocker's application.

Mrs. Hobart, of Milwaukee, Wis., in bringing suit against Crocker two years ago on charges of allenating her husband's affection, accused him of building fires under her bedroom at 4 a. m. and twice trying to run over her in his car.

250,000 ARE POLLED ON SYPHILIS 'TEST'

Chicago Mailing Queries at Rate of 50,000 Daily.

CHICAGO, July 26.—(AP)—The nation's first mass attack on the syphilis plague was launched today when a quarter of a million persons were polled on the question of submitting to free secret blood tests.

At the same time 5,500 physicians were invited by Dr. Louis Schmidt, of Mayor Edward J. Kelly's Committee for Control of Venereal Disease, to enlist in the campaign sponsored by the United States Public Health Service.

Health authorities will poll approximtely 1,000,000 Chicagoans on the question of submitting to free secret tests.

The first bundle of 250,000 ballots and explanatory letters were delivered today.

The ballots, mailed at the rate of 50,000 a day, ask a yes or no answer to this question:

"In strict confidence and at no expense to you, would you like to be given by your own physician a blood test for syphilis?"

GEORGIAN ASKS $10,000 FOR 'ILLEGAL' ARREST

MACON, Ga., July 26.—(AP)—Alleging illegal and unwarranted arrest, Clyde Dale Ashbaugh, of Eatonton, today filed suit for $10,000 damages in United States district court here against the sheriff of Putnam county and others.

Defendants are Sheriff J. L. Paschal, A. J. Walton, chief of police of Eatonton; Julius Curry, of Midville, Burke county, and the National Surety Company, as surety for Paschal.

The plaintiff alleges he was arrested by Chief Walton on the morning of July 10, without a warrant, and taken by Chief Walton and Sheriff Paschal to Atlanta, later to Bibb county jail here for fingerprints, and still later back to Eatonton, where he was held in Putnam county jail.

WOMAN IS APPOINTED TO JENKINS TAX POST

MILLEN, Ga., July 26.—(AP)—The Jenkins county commissioners have elected Mrs. Newt Reynolds acting tax collector until a successor to her husband, who died last week, can be named.

Dan W. Johnson has been elected sheriff to fill the unexpired term of his father, Math Johnson, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident several months ago.

The commissioners will set a date later for the election of a tax collector to succeed Reynolds.

3 WARRANTS SWORN IN GILBERT SLAYING

GAINESVILLE, Ga., July 26.—The Hall county grand jury today was investigating warrants charging murder against three Hall county men in connection with the death Saturday of Ernest P. Gilbert.

The warrants were sworn out by Mrs. Josie Gilbert, the slain man's mother, and name Welburn Marchbanks, who, it was said, claimed self-defense and admitted shooting Gilbert; Herman Marchbanks, his brother, and William Latimer, operator of a filling station near the Marchbanks home, where the shooting occurred.

The three are held in Hall county jail without bond.

Market Outlook

By MAX BUCKINGHAM.
(Copyright, 1937, by United Press.)

NEW YORK, July 26.—(UP)—Commodities and steel, bringing further caution in market operations, held the chief interest for the trading group tonight.

The unsettling recent rapid decline in major commodities continued today with the result that:

1—Cotton futures broke to losses ranging to $1.35 a bale.

2—Wheat and corn futures in major markets continued weak, corn at one time dropping the limit of fluctuation before meeting resistance.

3—The United Press-Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., index of 30 cash commodities reached a new low for the year at 140.63 per cent of the 1930-32 average.

4—Hogs in Chicago reached a new nine-year high at $13.10 per hundredweight.

The nervous selling in the major commodity markets has had a dampening influence on traders. Many have been active in commodities during the recent months of stock dullness and any breaks that could bring major losses naturally would be a threat to liquidating of stocks to meet commodity commitments.

The steel picture presented an excellent one for the optimistic traders who would ignore the commodity picture. Steel production this week is scheduled at 84.3 per cent of capacity, a gain of 1.8 points over the previous week and the highest operating rate since May 24. Directors of United States Steel Corporation meet after the close of the market tomorrow and undoubtedly will declare a $3 dividend on the preferred to meet the quarterly requirements and clear up arrears. There are some optimistic enough to believe that a dividend of $1 per share will be made on the common stock—of which there has been no payment since 1932—although this view is not commonly held.

The result of these two situations accounts for a market such as developed today. Only 900,000 shares were exchanged and prices were ragged, "backing and filling" in the brokerage office vernacular.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—Trading turns dull on declines which is always a good indication of underlying firmness. We like the action of the metal stocks in recent sessions.

BEER & CO.—In the absence of news, it appears that the outlook for the market for the next two or three days will be continued irregularity.

FENNER & BEANE—The U. S. Steel meeting scheduled Tuesday is undoubtedly a market influence of potential importance, results are not expected until after the first.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—Business now remains on the constructive side and while the market may be undergoing a period of consolidating, bullish factors are still predominant.

COTTON OPINIONS.

COURTS & COMPANY—We feel that the market is temporarily oversold, but would not follow bulges very far due to thinness of bids.

BEER & CO.—We expect irregularly market to continue.

FENNER & BEANE—We think the decline has gone far enough and suggest purchases on further reactions.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—Due to extent of the decline would hesitate to recommend sales at these levels as interest on the constructive side appears to be broadening.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.—After such sharp decline in last week's technical readjustments can occur anytime, but at moment with present general belief very large crop, it will take serious turn in weather to restore confidence.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—We feel that the market will respond to any encouraging news and advocate accumulation of wheat around present levels.

BEER & CO.—We favor purchases at current levels.

FENNER & BEANE—We look for broader export buying and gradual reduction in primary offerings which should make for a two-sided market for the time being and for higher prices later on.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—Following third day of substantial decline within a week, we finally believe accumulation of long wheat should be begun on slight dips below current lows.

COTTONSEED OIL OPINIONS.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.—The action of the market will depend to a great extent on the action of the cotton market. There has been a good short interest built up in this market.

The holdup occurred a few minutes after a false alarm sent police rushing to a supposed robbery at an Allens avenue laundry, in the opposite end of the city.

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, July 26.—(AP)—The average price of middling spot cotton at 10 southern markets today was 11.30 cents a pound. The average price for the past 30 days was 12.35 cents a pound.

NEW ORLEANS, July 26.—(AP) Cotton lost approximately $1 a bale today after trading off to new low levels for the season. Continued selling on large crop talk and favorable weather in the belt met short realizing and covering and the close was steady at net declines of 18 to 20 points.

Despite fairly steady Liverpool cables first trades were slightly lower on accumulation of selling orders over the week end. Prices continued to recede under increased offerings composed of liquidation, hedging and some speculative selling.

At the lowest of the day active positions with the exception of May dropped below the 11-cent line to new lows for the season.

Around mid-session satisfied shorts began taking profits and there was some rebuying on the theory that a reaction was due following the recent sharp decline. The demand was sufficient to raise prices 10 to 14 points from the lowest but active months still showed a loss of about $1 a bale from Saturday's close.

October closed at 10.99, December at 11.01, January at 11.01, March at 11.11 and May at 11.15. Spots continued quiet and middling lost 19 points on sales of 44 bales, trading off to 11.34.

A report from South Carolina said rains have put much growth on plants but also have increased weevil activity while from North Carolina an account said early planted cotton has almost made its crop and late planted is well fruited.

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP)—Cotton broke into further new low ground today under heavy general foreign and domestic selling as crop advices continued highly favorable.

CHICAGO, July 26.—(AP)—Record-breaking receipts here, together with rapid increase of the United States visible supply total, thrust wheat prices down today 4 cents a bushel maximum.

Arrivals of wheat in Chicago, nearly 1,200 cars, made the largest single day's total in six years. Simultaneously, the domestic wheat visible supply increased 20,573,000 bushels, showing a gain of 42,000,000 bushels in two weeks.

Helping to rally wheat values, however, at the last were estimates that export purchases of United States hard winter wheat today to be shipped via the Gulf of Mexico amounted to 1,000,000 bushels. A late cable said Belgian millers find new American winter wheat to be of fine quality, and are expected to give this wheat preference.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 2 1-2 to 2 3-4 cents under yesterday's finish, July $1.18 to $1.18 1-8; September $1.15 7-8 to $1.16; December $1.18 to $1.18 1-8. Corn 1 7-8 to 4 1-4 down, July $1.04 to $1.04 1-8, September 96 7-8 to 97, December 72 3-4 to 72 7-8. Oats, 2 1-8 to 2 1-4 off, September 30 7-8, and rye showing 3 1-4 to 5 1-2 drop, September 81 1-4. In results were unchanged to 17 cents lower.

TARZAN THE MAGNIFICENT No. 26

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Wood shivered. "Don't you feel an invisible presence near us? Haven't you sensed unseen eyes upon us? Don't you hear those strange sounds? They are the manifestations of Mafka!" The shadow of an unaccustomed smile flickered on the Jungle Lord's lips.

"I have seen and heard and sensed many things," he said; "but my eyes and ears and nose have identified them all. There is nothing to fear." Tarzan admitted to himself, however, that this Mafka did wield some uncanny power. He had seen striking evidence of it.

First he had seen Lord Mountford die without apparent cause; then Wood had been struck down. But Tarzan was not disturbed. Many times he had been the object of the malign magic of potent witch-doctors. Like the beasts of the jungle, he was immune.

Perhaps it was because his psychology was more that of a beast than a man. Perhaps it was because he had no fear, and thus his mind was free from hypnotic suggestion. Oddly, it was this very fearlessness which was to draw him later into Mafka's evil orbit!

MAIL TEST FLIGHT IS PLANNED TODAY

Plane To Take Off From Alma in First of Series of Georgia Trips.

Taking off from Alma, Ga., at 6 o'clock this morning, Atlanta bound, a mail plane will launch the first of four trial flights to precede Georgia Airmail Week, proclaimed by Governor Rivers for August 9-16.

The trial flights, on which mail from nearly two-score Georgia towns and cities will be picked up, will bear heavily in determining whether air mail service shall be extended to these communities by the government, Postmaster Lon L. Livingston, Georgia chairman for Airmail Week, explained yesterday as he announced trial flight schedules.

Special Cachet.

"It is a matter of pride with Georgia that these trial flights develop a huge volume of mail. Every town will be permitted a special cachet of cancellation denoting the trial mail flight, and I call on every businessman, every firm and every individual to use air mail to the utmost."

Success of the flights, he explained, is a matter of pride for Georgia because three of her sons, Harllee Branch, second assistant postmaster general; James Cole, second deputy assistant, and Charles Graddick, superintendent of air mail, are identified with the promotion of flying the mails.

Enthusiasm Reported.

Postmaster Livingston reported that the cities and towns on the first and subsequent test flights are responding with enthusiasm.

"I understand that at Columbus alone, nearly 10,000 pieces of mail will be handled with the special cachet for the flight," he said.

Today's flight, running from Alma to Atlanta on a total flying time of five hours and 10 minutes, will be followed by another tomorow from Atlanta to Folkston.

Other Flights.

Regular flights have been projected for August 9 from Atlanta to Rome and return and from Atlanta to Athens and return. Other flights will be worked out and submitted to Postmaster Livingston today for approval.

These flights, used previously in other states to stimulate use of air mail, will be tried for the first time in Georgia this year and have been indorsed by Governor Rivers and others in public life.

TRAIN LIMIT VOTED.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(AP)—The senate passed today and sent to the house the McCarran bill to limit freight trains to 70 cars. Debate on the controversial measure lasted all day.

Collie, Lost for 15 Hours, Swims 7 Miles to Master

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 26. (AP)—A collie dog swam seven and a half miles in Narragansett bay last night to the Washington Park Yacht Club, 15 hours after he had been lost overboard from his master's boat.

The collie sailed yesterday afternoon with George Courtot, his master, and a party of Mr. Courtot's friends and relatives.

The collie was missed when the boat was about five and a half miles from Prudence island, in the bay. The waters there were searched without success.

This morning, Charles Cotton, caretaker at the yacht club, hearing whines on the club float, went to investigate and discovered the dog, dripping and exhausted.

EXECUTIVES TALK ON RESETTLEMENT AT PARLEY HERE

Officials From Four States Discuss Problems; Plan to Visit Project.

Rural Resettlement Administration executives from four states met here yesterday to correlate activities for the fiscal year just opened, with some 2,000 resettlement families in Georgia, Florida, Alabama and South Carolina affected by their decisions.

R. W. Hudgens, of Montgomery, regional director for the southeastern states, is in charge of the four-day conference. The executives will learn first hand by inspection of resettlement projects in Georgia and Alabama before returning to headquarters Thursday.

"We believe we are getting at the heart of the problem," Hudgens declared in reviewing administration achievements among the heretofore submerged class of small southern farmer. He added:

"We are developing a new type of farm leadership through education in farm and home management. Above all, we extend credit, and open to these families opportunities for improvement which they never have had before."

Will Visit Project.

The conferees today will visit the community resettlement project at Monticello. Yesterday was devoted to discussion of activities, standards for selection of families to be transferred from rural rehabilitation ot rural resettlement status, relationship of adult education, with particular emphasis on training in home and farm plan management.

"Rehabilitation and education go hand in hand," said Hudgens. He added:

"Our purpose is to educate these families from their present condition instead of merely checking them off the books as 'rehabilitated.'"

Rehabilitation families, some 50,000 in number, are scattered in virtually every county in the four states of the region, Hudgens estimated. Their plight has been attacked scientifically. The families first are given a plan of operation; secondly, credit, and then, supervision.

Supervision Important.

Hudgens explained:

"The fact that nearly all our families have exceeded average production in their neighborhoods, indicates that supervision is the most important phase of the process. Closer supervision is kept on these families transferred from rehabilitation farms to resettlement communities, because social adjustment in transferring families is risky business."

The entire rural problem in the south, Hudgens asserted, is traceable to the fact that our people have ruined the land for so long that the land has backfired and is ruining them. He said that picture is changing and added:

"We are taking to this hitherto lowest income group in the south what experiment stations and land grant colleges have devised as the standard for successful farming. We take this information directly to those families, working from Smith-Hughes act teachers in vocational schools. The families never before have had opportunity to apply these standards, mostly because they had no credit."

40 Years to Repay.

Hudgens explained that families transferred to hesettlement status in such communities as developed at Irwinville and Monticello, Ga., are given land, with houses and barns, allowed credit for implements, stock and essentials and are allowed a maximum of 40 years for repayment.

The high percentage of repayment so far, Hudgens described as "gratifying" and achieved through sound farming practice under careful supervision.

Today, the 30 or more community managers officials will go to Monticello, where about 60 families are located: tomorrow they will be at Irwinville, to inspect the achievement of the 100 families there. The party will go to Coffee county, Alabama, to look over the resettlement project near Elba, Thursday, before disbanding at Montgomery.

Gift From Amelia Received by Niece

MEDFORD, Mass., July 26.—(AP) — Six Oriental bracelets, spun from glass and gold, came out of the past today as a pathetic birthday present to little Amy Morrissey.

The gift was mailed by Amelia Earhart to her 5-year-old niece, when the flyer was in Bombay June 25 on her ill-fated air trip around the world. A note in Amelia's handwriting expressed the hope it would arrive in time for her favorite niece's birthday July 31.

SHOWERS AND COOLER FORECAST FOR TODAY

Moderate temperatures were forecast for Atlanta today by the weatherman, who said he saw signs of thunder heads which would probably materialize late in the afternoon.

With a high reading of 88 degrees expected at ground levels, the meteorologist said temperatures at high altitudes were low, and resulting rising air currents were fairly likely to bring showers to Atlanta.

He said the familiar "cumulus" clouds, meaning cumulating clouds, which could be seen at high altitudes late yesterday, were the basis of his prediction.

The low temperature predicted for today was 68, while extreme temperatures recorded yesterday were 73 and 86 degrees.

INDIAN SHOT DOWN BY COVINGTON MAN

'Medicine Man's' Alleged Slayer, Arrested Here, Denies Any Participation.

Charged with the murder Sunday night of George Thompson, 55, Indian "medicine man," a 25-year-old Covington, Ga., mechanic, listed as Duke Shaddix, was arrested at an Atlanta bus station yesterday by Atlanta and Covington officers.

Coroner J. L. Skinner, of Newton county, said a verdict of "death from a shot fired by Duke Shaddix" was returned at the inquest into the Indian's slaying.

Shaddix, directly accused of the murder by Walt Maddox, his neighbor, was being held in the Covington jail yesterday without bond on a charge of murder, according to Deputy Sheriff W. G. Benton.

"War Dance" Denied.

As preparations for the funeral of Thompson were being made by members of his tribe at a Covington funeral home yesterday, officers denied that the Indians went into a "war dance" after the slaying of one of their number, or that the fatal shooting started over white men refusing to pay Indians for helping get a stalled automobile started Sunday night.

"There was no demonstration by the Indians after the killing last night," said Bradford Bohanan, chief of police at Covington. "What some people described as a 'war dance' and 'Indians going on the war path,' was nothing more than the most pitiful demonstration of grief that I have ever seen."

Chief Bohanan said he was at the Indian camp within a few minutes after the shooting and that Thompson died before he reached the hospital.

Meanwhile, Sheriff B. L. Johnson, of Newton county, ordered P. J. Alewine, employer of Shaddix, who had been arrested on a charge of being an accessory after the fact, released under $500 bond. Officers declared Alewine let Shaddix have $10 with which to escape.

Had Purchased Ticket.

Atlanta Detectives J. J. Chester and W. M. Holland aided Deputy Benton and others in capturing Shaddix in Atlanta yesterday morning. They declared he had just purchased a ticket to Thomaston.

Shaddix denied firing the fatal shot, saying when officers arrested him here, "I ain't shot nobody."

"Pure cussedness" was the reason for the murder, Coroner Skinner told The Constitution.

"Shaddix and Maddox were standing in the road near where about 25 or 30 Indians were camped a quarter of a mile from Covington," said Skinner and Benton.

Four Shots Fired.

"Maddox told us that Shaddix fired four shots into the Indian camp, as the men in the tribe attempted to hurry their women and children to safety. Thompson was hit once in the left shoulder and he died a short time later at the Huson Memorial hospital in Covington."

"Shaddix and Maddox live close by where the Indians were camped," said Deputy Benton. "We have not discovered any trouble between the white men and the Indians previous to the shooting.

"In my opinion, it was just a case of promiscuous shooting while drinking.'

Pistol Found.

The officer said a .32-caliber pistol, the same caliber as the bullet which killed Thompson, the "medicine man," was found in Shaddix's house. The accused man's relatives turned the gun over to the sheriffs, Benton asserted.

"There was a car stalled near the scene of the shooting and Maddox and Shaddix were helping get it started," Benton said. "The Indians offered to aid them but they did not have anything to do with starting the car. When their offer was refused they went back to camp. Shortly after the car was started and gone, we were told that Shaddix took out a pistol and fired four shots into the camp."

Coroner Skinner said Maddox did not fire any shots and that Shaddix was the only one who fired.

Murder Verdict.

Maddox was held by officers yesterday but no charges had been made against him. Skinner started his inquest yesterday morning and concluded it late yesterday afternoon with the verdict of murder.

Benton said Thompson, who had a wife and family, arrived at the Indian camp Sunday morning. The Indians were gypsy-like traders, wandering over the country in automobiles. The main group had been camped at Covington several weeks.

Covington officers said the Indians were originally from Oklahoma but other reports were that they came from the Cherokee reservation in North Carolina.

"They have been as docile as lambs ever since the killing and they have given us no trouble whatsoever," Benton declared, denying reports that guards were thrown around the Indian camp Sunday night and yesterday.
